Eight Students Learn Market

By Jack Moore
336-EIGHT STUDENTS LEARN VIRGINIA BEACH—Anderson & Strudwick, the only member firm of the New York Stock Exchange located in Virginia Beach, has undertaken the training of eight "students" in the methods of the business.

The training division of the firm was organized January 1965. The firm itself opened the resort city office, its only Tidewater office, in June of 1962.

Anderson & Strudwick is the only NYSE member conducting training for its employees in Virginia and it is believed it is the only firm not headquartered in

New York City to train its employees.

There is another "first" involved also. For the first time, in Virginia, a woman is participating in such a program. She is Mrs. Elizabeth F. McClane, a resident of the Beach.

Allan Rothenberg, manager of the Virginia Beach branch of A & S said "The training program is unique in that it involves the potential investment of $100,000. This we believe, is the largest made, by an investment broker, in a formal training program in the Southeastern United States, certainly in Virginia."

"While Anderson & Strudwick

has decided to use the formal training approach on a permanent basis," Rothenberg said, "the Virginia Beach area is the only area in which we are doing it. The beach area was chosen because of its tremendous growth in economy, population and investment activities," he added.

Those who are taking the course, which includes field trips, go through rigorous training over a two-year period. "The first three months involve a rigid academic schedule," training director H. Norton Mason Jr., said. "Dr. David D. Bunting, president of the New York Institute of Finance said 'In my opinion, the Anderson & Strudwick training program is very well thought through and soundly administered with many of the qualities of a college program,'" Mason added.

"We feel that we don't have enough registered representatives to handle to present and unexpected population in this area," Rothenberg noted. "We serve Elizabeth City and other parts of North Carolina and many areas of Norfolk are closer to us than to down town Norfolk and we also feel confident enough of the growth of this area to want to grow with it. And, the only way possible was to have started an executive development program now," he pointed out.

"Before we decided on these final eight students," Mason said,

$4.5 MILLION CONTRACT

Contracts For Sewer Lines And Treatment Plant Awarded

VIRGINIA BEACH—Contracts totaling $4,513,903 have been awarded for a sewage treatment plant and sewer lines in Virginia Beach.

The Hampton Roads Sanitation District Commission made the awards late last week for the major portion of the Chesapeake-Elizabeth System.

The lions share of the money, $3,541,340 went to McElwaine-Corbin Construction Co. of Camden, N. J. McElwaine was the lowest of three companies bidding for the contract for the treatment plant which will be constructed at the Little Creek Amphibious Base.

The commission had expected more than three companies to bid on the plant and the final price was about $500,000 higher than originally expected. It is expected to be completed by the summer of 1968.

The rest of the contracts went for three main lines that will feed the plant. The most expensive of the three will run from Atlantic Avenue to the Hilltop section and will have a $407,001 price tag. That contract was awarded to the Virginia Beach firm of A. Stanley Mundy. That section will collect sewerage from the ocean-front that is presently being piped in to the borough's treatment plant.

A. G. Pinkston Construction Co., a Portsmouth firm, was awarded the contract for the main that will run from the Little Creek plant, along Shore Drive to the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel overpass. That section of the work will cost $316,382.

The third section contract also went to A. Stanley Mundy. It will run from the western side of the plant, along Shore Drive to Diamond Springs Road. At that point it will go south to the Lake Wright Motor Lodge. That section of the work will cost $240,120.

The new system will serve many Beach residents now being serviced by private utility companies.

Assistant City Manager Roger Scott said the city is considering several locations for the proposed "trash hill."

When asked what he thought of the plan Scott said, "I think it's a pretty good idea." He added that the innovation would be "something different."

The Southeastern Virginia Regional Planning Commission has also endorsed the proposal. Final approval on the project, however, must come from the U. S. Public Health Service in Washington. It is expected to be approved.

Ocean Hiway Photo Contest Offers $5,000 Cash Prizes

VIRGINIA BEACH—Cash prizes totaling $5,000 are offered for prize-winning photos in the new 1967 Ocean Hiway Photo Contest. It was announced today by Jeremiah Valliant, president of the Ocean Hiway Association.

There is no entry fee and contest rules are simple. The main requirement is that entrants must certify all photos submitted were taken in the coastal area served by the New York-Florida Ocean Hiway during the period July 1, 1965 and December 31, 1967, Valliant said.

Everyone is eligible to enter, except individuals connected with the sponsoring association, and there are no limitations to the number of entries. Entries will be made with the understanding the Ocean Hiway Association will have unrestricted reproduction rights to all winning photos.

In addition to four grand prize cash awards totaling $1,000, four cash prizes will be awarded each quarter during 1967, totaling $500. Too, $3,000 are offered in the form of $20 cash prizes for the three best entries from each of the 50 states and the District of Columbia. An additional $400 in $20 prizes will go to winners from foreign countries. Also offered are 500 certificates of merit.

Entries will be judged on the basis of general interest, picturesque and scenic beauty, human interest and unusual subject interest; with proper consideration given to photo coverage during the various seasons and to photographic quality necessary for purposes of reproduction.

The Ocean Hiway, along the coast from New York to Florida, is considered the nation's most interesting, scenic and enjoyable route for vacationing motorists at any time of year. Officials of the non-profit Ocean Hiway Association point out that the Ocean Hiway permits easy stop-off or stop-overs whenever one wishes. They emphasize that on the picturesque Ocean Hiway, travelers can truly "Discover America" along the Atlantic coast where so much of America's early history was made. Here they find the greatest and widest range of outstanding historic points of interest, scenic showplaces, beautiful sea-shore resorts and recreational facilities with appeal to all ages, and all readily reached.

The purpose of the photo contest is to stimulate interest among travelers and vacationers in recognizing the abundant variety of scenic and interesting subjects along the coast of New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia.

President Valliant said the contest will be under the direction of the Association's Advertising Committee, headed by M. Bishop Alexander of Charleston, S. C.

So, bring your camera when you travel the Ocean Hiway between July, 1966 and January, 1968, and visit the Ocean Hiway Association.

5,000 SEAT AMPHITHEATER

Garbage May Be Changed Into Scenic Gathering Place

VIRGINIA BEACH—The United States Public Health Service's regional office has given its preliminary stamp of approval to a plan to convert Virginia Beach garbage into a scenic hill.

The proposal calls for the city and the federal government to join together in a project to shape a hill from garbage and earth and eventually transform it into an amphitheater with a seating capacity of 5,000.

The new "scenery" will cost an estimated $300,000 and take three years to completely raise it to its planned 60-foot height.

The city is asking for $200,000 federal grant under a new government program for seeking new ways to handle the ever increasing tons of garbage and trash produced each year.

Assistant City Manager Roger Scott said the city is considering several locations for the proposed "trash hill."

When asked what he thought of the plan Scott said, "I think it's a pretty good idea." He added that the innovation would be "something different."

The Southeastern Virginia Regional Planning Commission has also endorsed the proposal. Final approval on the project, however, must come from the U. S. Public Health Service in Washington. It is expected to be approved.

IT HAS A NAME NOW—AT LAST! The Virginia Beach School Board deliberated nearly an hour Monday afternoon before deciding to name the new high school First Colonial High School. The name was a "compromise" between Virginia Beach High School and Oceana High School. (Sun Photo by Moore)

FIRST COLONIAL HIGH SCHOOL

School Board Makes Final Decision On High School Naming

By Jack Moore
VIRGINIA BEACH—Nearly 100 Virginia Beach High School students and a group of alumni from Oceana High School lost out in their bids Monday to rename the new high school on First Colonial Road. The students wanted the school to be renamed Virginia Beach High School and the "senior set" wanted the name to remain as the school board had chosen last fall—Oceana High School.

The students were led by Keith Gore an officer of the new school's SCA.

The meeting was originally scheduled to be held in the conference room at the School Administration Building at Princess Anne Court House, but the size of the audience made a transfer necessary.

The meeting was moved to Kellam High School's auditorium to better facilitate the nearly 150 persons who attended.

School Board Chairman J. W. Buffington opened the meeting by saying "The only subject being brought before the School Board today is the naming, or renaming, of that there school over yonder." He then began taking names from a list of those who wished to speak on the matter. First on the list was Gore.

"I ask that you reconsider Virginia Beach High School for the new school on First Colonial Road," the youthful leader said. "We (the students) believe we should have a major say-so in the naming of it—we'd like to continue our school."

"I have a class ring that says Virginia Beach High School, and I would like to have a diploma that says the same thing," Gore said.

Charles Vernoy, president of the Parents League of Virginia Beach High Spoke next adding "We (the league) realize the School Board has the right and power to name each high school in Virginia Beach, but we must back the wishes of the students in renaming the school Virginia Beach High School."

Mrs. Frances Clepper, also speaking in favor of VBHS said, "I have no children and therefore no emotional ties. I am, however, concerned with Virginia Beach. We should have a school by that name for publicity, if for no other reason." She then proceeded to cite the events in which Virginia Beach High School has participated in.

such as the world's fair and the Cherry Blossom Festival.

J. E. Garrett speaking for the proponents of Oceana High School made the same emotional plea for his alma mater's name to be retained. "I'm speaking for the old name of Oceana High School, but I leave it in your capable hands."

Garrett has been the spokesman for Oceana High School on several past occasions that the matter has come before the school board.

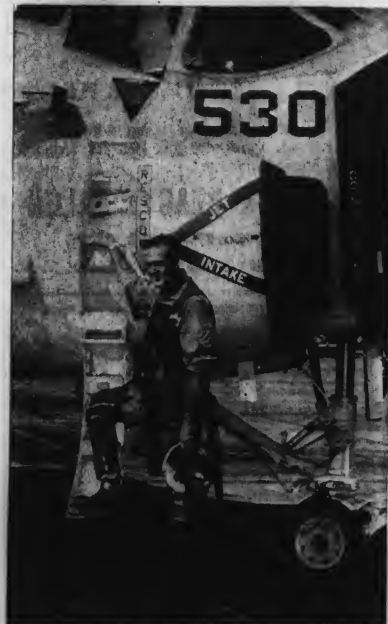

When every one concerned has offered his or her suggestion to the board, Buffington told the gathering that the Board would meet in an executive session to decide on a name.

Forty-five minutes passed before the board returned to the auditorium. "We have come to one conclusion at the outset," Buffington said, "75 per cent of the people would be mad at us."

"The fact that we took as long as we did indicated we had some division in the group," he said. "This is a problem that is difficult. We had to be bound by several decisions—we have had mixed emotions," Buffington added.

The chairman asked the board for motions and board member S. L. Lott took the floor. "Mr. Chairman, fellow members of the board, I make a motion that the earlier action of the school board

VA-42 Flies Mercy Mission

OCEANA—Because of the current Airlines strike, the Navy and an Oceana plane were called upon to perform a mission of mercy recently when Mr. Herman Blackman, a patient of St. Vincent's hospital in Jacksonville, Fla., was in need of a replacement part for a pump infusion for the Biliary system (Liver and Gall Bladder). The nearest available part was at the Leahy clinic in Boston, Mass.

Mrs. Blackman, wife of the patient, called the COMFAIRJAX Operations Office to see if they could provide transportation for the part. COMFAIRJAX didn't have an aircraft available and passed the request to COMFAIR-NORFOLK.

Attack Squadron Forty-Two, based at Oceana Naval Air Station, responded to the request and launched LeCh. Art Page and Lt. Wayne Robinson in one of their A4A Intruders to Logan International Airport in Boston.

Upon arrival at Boston Airport, the aircraft was met by an official from Leahy Clinic with the much needed part.

With Page piloting the A4A, and Robinson holding the part on his lap, they departed immediately for NAS Cecil Field, Jacksonville for delivery. After one refueling stop at Oceana, where fueling crews were standing by waiting for the aircraft and had it back in the air in minimum time, they arrived at Cecil Field and delivered the part to a representative of the Medical Department who rushed it to St. Vincent's Hospital.

Hit And Run

VIRGINIA BEACH—Mrs. Jean F. Rose, 35, of Maple Street, was injured Sunday in an accident on Shore Drive when her car was struck head-on. The driver of the other vehicle disappeared into the woods immediately following the accident.

Mrs. Rose was admitted to the General Hospital of Virginia Beach with a broken left knee and right leg.

Police are still searching for the unidentified driver.

ABC Store At Mall

VIRGINIA BEACH—Edgar R. Reese has been named manager of Tidewater's 27th ABC liquor store which opened recently at the Pembroke Mall Shopping Center. N. C. Taylor is the store's assistant manager.

MORE THAN 150 persons attended the School Board meeting Monday afternoon at Kellam High School. The meeting lasted for more than 1½ hours. (Sun Photo by Moore)

To England

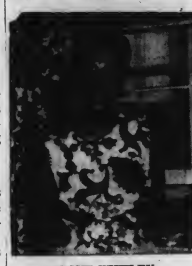

VIRGINIA BEACH—Mrs. Harry Whitley (Jessie), of The Mayflower Apartments, moved to Virginia Beach from Washington, D.C. five years ago. She wished to be near her daughter and son-in-law, Mrs. William Scott and Captain Scott, who live in Kings Grant. A Br'iger, Jessie was a former administrative assistant of the Reserve Officers' Association in Washington, D.C.

Her husband's death and two brothers' passing away leaves her few relatives in England. Recently, Cpt. and Mrs. Scott drove Jessie to New York where she flew by 301C Jet to visit those remaining of her family and her many friends there. She will be gone three weeks.

She has given of herself to the life of Virginia Beach by serving in many civic organizations. The YWCA needed her many hours as a recentist, and she has given many volunteer hours as Church Secretary and Bazaar worker.

We always get excited for our friends who travel and enjoy basking in their preparations for the trip! A highfashioned black and white checked cotton suit with capelike sleeves (Imported from London) and heavy gorgette black blouse and a blue mauve and white wool tailored tweed complete the presentation of a lady who is an asset to America and Virginia Beach.

"I'm a little nervous about flying Jet!", she admitted. "Just think—before Betty and Bill wake up in their motel from a normal night's sleep, I'll be in England!"—and they still will have to drive back to the Beach!

Chips, Etc. Delivered

By May Tapp.

VIRGINIA BEACH—A Welcome addition to services in Virginia Beach is the Charles Chips delivery service in many areas of Virginia, requested by former customers of Norfolk who have moved to the City of Virginia Beach.

Charles Chips Home Delivery service is for Potato Chips, Pretzels, etc. Many people seeing the cream colored trucks for the first time are curious about home delivery on these items. However, to the many customers from Maine to Florida to Albuquerque, New Mexico it is a sign of the elite in chips, pretzels, cookies, (peanut brittle in cool weather) and many related snack items from the Pennsylvania Dutch Country, Mountville, Lancaster County, Pennsylvania.

The family originating Charles Chips started frying chips in their home many years ago and selling them in the farmer's market. Today in two (2) plants they fry thousands of pounds of chips per hour.

The Charles products are not sold in stores. Established areas are served by route salesmen who call each two weeks and customers buy whatever they choose from the approximately twenty-seven (27) items offered. Charles Chips, pretzels and cookies are packed in sterilized containers, put into cartons and shipped to all dealers. The containers maintain freshness of the products for weeks.

Areas are set up by canvassing door-to-door, the salesman or saleslady offering samples of chips and pretzels. All items are available at the time of call so that it is not necessary to place orders.

The areas listed are now being served; however, all of the homes have not been canvassed. Should anyone desire service in these locations please call 497-4195 Monday through Friday and service can be arranged on a designated day. Most of Norfolk including many offices downtown are served. In Virginia Beach, Aragona Village, Pembroke Manor, Carlant Farm and sections of Kempville are served.

Thalia, Birchwood Gardens, Malibu, Princess Anne Plaza, and Windsor Woods are in the process of being canvassed. It will be several weeks before the area is completed, and if service is desired, please call Mr. Meekins for quicker delivery.

Five more routes are proposed for Virginia Beach in the near future for the many people waiting for the service. Some of these people are now getting the products through their friends that are already customers in other areas.

The service is franchised from Mountville and was started in Norfolk a little over three years ago by Albert W. Meekins of Washington, N.C. Franchising is handled from Georgia and their daughter Jean was born in Hopewell, Va., while Mr. Meekins was a civil service employee at Fort Lee, as a food service instructor. From there he assumed duties as manager of a bakery for several years before his venture into the selling of Charles Chips. Prior to this he served six years in the Navy. He has serviced and operated tubulating equipment in New York City and says that of all the many jobs and positions held none have been as satisfying as selling Charles Chips products.

The Meekins are members of the Freemason Baptist Church, Norfolk. They live at 530 Taldon Avenue, Virginia Beach and their daughter attends Thalia Elementary School.

Anytime that you see a Charles Chips Truck and want to buy their products, just stop the man and buy it right there.

Applicants for route salesman may write or call for interviews.

Party Line . . . By OLGA EDWARDS

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM L. GILLIAM and some friends of the Rev. Berkeley at Farewell Party.

Text and Photos by Guest Writer Doug Barnes

At the crowded reception, with children and grown-ups saying "Farewell, but not Goodbye", the Women of Galilee, had a well-kept secret as a climax to a lovely party. Jane Whittemore, a Galliean, had painted an oil portrait of Mr. Berkeley, in his clerical robes. As a surprise, it was unveiled, and given to Mrs. Berkeley by the Women's auxiliary. Responsible for the idea of the Party and the Portrait were Mrs. William Rueger III, president, Mrs. Edgar Tugman, Mrs. Rudolph Watson, Mrs. C. B. Forest, Mrs. Patrick L. Allen, Mrs. Kermik Robinson, Mrs. William Gilliam, and many others.

Commander Frank Bragg, Senior Warden, on behalf of the Men of Galilee, rendered a short address of praise and farewell, and gave the Berkeleys the complete set of the "Bible's Interpreters' Problems."

Over 300 people attended the Party, held in Tucker Hall, where cookies, coffee, punch & lemonade were arrayed on long tables. Among those pouring were Mrs. Hugh L. Meredith, Mrs. John Goode, and Mrs. Allen.

Thomas Clay Arundson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Edmundson of 3113 E. Chestingham, attended the 14th annual Summer Music Camp at East Carolina College. He is a junior at Virginia Beach High School, a cornetist, study band.

On last Sunday morning, after the regular 10 a.m. church service the Women and Men of Galilee Episcopal Church honored Reverend and Mrs. Edmund Berkeley at their usual Hospitality Coffee Hour. This hour was different. The rector, beloved by his fellow churchmen, and respected by young and old, sinner and saint, alike, had just completed 17 years as their minister. "Ever present in time of trouble", with little thought of himself, and never too busy to administer to the lonely, the bereaved, the ill, and the forgotten, Edmund Berkeley had preached his final "Change of Command" sermon in the large church on the hill. Here had been his and others' spiritual home, since Galliee moved from its original site on 17th St. by the sea in 1956.

Taking his text from the Sermon on the Mount, he had told his rapt listeners that they should face the future without undue anxiety. "It would be stupid not to worry enough to provide food and shelter for one's family, and loved ones", he said, "but the true lesson taught by Matthew over 2,000 years ago is to think and plan for the future and to 'Go forth in Faith, believing in the good in men here on earth, and laying unresolvable problems upon a stronger source than man and worldly attainments," he stated. "I and my family go forth in Faith, tho' we actually at this time, know not whether we go."

Reunion At The Beach

Text & Photos by Cassandra
When 14 members of one family, some of whom hadn't seen each other for 30 years and some of whom had never met before—separated by war, divorce, illness and recent death—decide to have a "Revel Rendezvous" at "Ginny Beach" where the oldsters had come as children and stayed at hotels not now in existence, many things can happen. The good things and the humorous incidents, the reminiscences and the tale-telling, the tears and the laughter, all make up a weekend of thankfulness and joy.

This family of Barnes, who are of English descent is a proud lot; the men, the losing ground fast, are still Kings of their households and makers of most decisions concerning their families. To Charles Fleming, of Laurens, S. C., the southern gentleman who married Edith, the oldest of the large tribe, this Reunion was dedicated, since it was he, deceased before his dream was realized, who planned the Rendezvous, and most of his plans were carried out.

Stopping at the Thunderbird, the Plantation, Le Player and a private apartment, telephone operators were kept busy locally, and talks to absent ones across the country which started with "Just called to say we miss you" and ended with all 14 putting in a word, and paying an enormous bill.

The Virginia Beach Branch hit the jackpot in suggesting that the Seashore might take care of the crowd, and the dinner, in a private dining room on a rainy Saturday night was a never to be forgotten one. With a vacant chair for Charles, the children behaved beautifully, although they had to wait for the "Colonel and his Lady" to make a grand late entrance. This was Colonel Francis Henry Barnes, U. S. A. (Ret.) who fought under Patton, has all sorts of ribbons and decorations, and who is now teaching in Miami, and the father of 6. His eldest daughter, Virginia, (still called "Baby Sis" at 30) accompanied him. She works in Richmond.

Mrs. Fleming, 70, was accompanied by 2 of her 3 daughters, Mrs. Frank Little, Mrs. Frank Powell, and 4 of their children—others were left at home—these are the South Carolina branches; Thomas H. Barnes of Hopewell, a World War II veteran and a Richmond banker, brought the smallest Barnes, Holly, age 2, and his wife, Celia. The women all wore white.

Silent prayers were offered, toasts were given and during the weekend, members of the clan returned again and again to eat at the Seashore, which now serves delicious breakfasts as well as lunches and their famous buffets. "Sunny" Vaughan is the charming manager, and the place is always crowded with in and out-of-town guests.

A Christmas in July, replete with a small tree was held for the children; it proved a success because of the rain. Steve and Mayling's hospitality at the Golden Dragon, and dining in the Crystal Room with Marty at the Americana, were all part of the sophistication of Virginia Beach to the world travelers.

Crises did occur. Margie Barnes, 15, got badly sunburned, but refused to be treated because the "boys on the Beach are so cute, and I don't want that greasy stuff on my yellow bikini." This was cute, too. . . . Matriarch Edith Barnes asked all not to smoke nor touch 'spirits'. . . . This was solved at a private short get-together by the men alone, who shook hands, toasted every body living and deceased whom they considered real men, not dictated to by women, and at the end of a 3-hour session, decided that "Broads are essential if they'd just stop talking so much", and that they all loved each other and Virginia Beach.

Christmas in July on a rainy Saturday afternoon.

Plays Host

LITTLE CREEK—The amphibious high speed transport USS Liddle (APD 60) has been named to host a Republic of Vietnam ship, the rescue, escort Ngoc Hoi, which will arrive at the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base at 8 a.m. Sunday, Aug. 7, for six weeks of training.

The Vietnamese ship is the former USS Brattleboro (PCE-832). It was turned over to the Republic of Vietnam in Philadelphia, Pa., on July 11.

Shakedown training under the operational control of the Underway Training Unit at the Norfolk Naval Station will be completed by the Ngoc Hoi during its stay here.

The 180-foot Ngoc Hoi will be berthed at pier 12 with the 300-foot Liddle. Lieutenant Commander Nguyen Ba Trang commands the rescue escort and its 90-man crew.

DAV To Meet

VIRGINIA BEACH — Disabled American Veterans, Chapter 20, will meet at the Scott Memorial Methodist Church, Thursday, August 11, at 7:30 p.m.

Delegates elected to go to the National Convention are Macon N. Salters, C. Eno Long, and alternate Ray D. Cope. The National Convention will be held in the Waldorf Astoria Hotel, New York City, on August 8.

Vows Exchanged

Porterfield-Coe

VIRGINIA BEACH—Miss Janet Anne Coe and Thomas Buchanan Porterfield II were married July 23 in South Mills, North Carolina. The civil ceremony was performed by Justice of the Peace, Mrs. Florence Jones.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Levan Coe of Pompano Beach, Florida. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Miller Porterfield of Glade Spring, Virginia.

She wore a beige linen sheath with gray embroidered neckline and carried a nosegay of yellow sweetheart roses. Maid of honor and only attendant was Miss Mary Ann Laughter of Winston-Salem, North Carolina.

Serving as best man was Earl Montgomery Tucker of Virginia Beach.

Following a wedding trip to Florida, the couple will make their home at 200 79th Street, Virginia Beach.

HH Needs Named

VIRGINIA BEACH—Mrs. Nancy Perkins, women's program secretary of the Navy Y for the past eight years, addressed a group of women at the Servicemen's Hospitality House, corner of 25th street and Arctic ave., recently.

The women from several of the local churches were told of the needs for the venture. Donations of cakes, cookies, watermelons, etc., and "even just plain money" will be greatly appreciated. Checks should be made payable to Hospitality House.

EDITORIAL SPEAKING

Is It Really Fair

As the harvest of vegetables in Virginia has progressed recently, we have noted an influx of farmers selling their crops along the streets and roads of our city. There is no law against this, and we certainly do not wish the hard-working farmers any bad fortunes, however there are certain matters we do strongly question.

The farmer need not have any license to sell foods, if he grows them himself. He may do so in any place in the city that does not impair traffic or cause any other problem. We feel certain, however, that he reports all sales to the Internal Revenue Department on his income tax forms.

We do not object to the farmer selling foodstuffs on his own property or at a roadside stand in the less populated areas, but we do object to the farmer selling foodstuffs while parked on a street less than a hundred yards from a large chain food store, which pays taxes and has a license. And this is being done.

These farmer hucksters do not block traffic and they may even charge a few pennies less for the food, but their overhead is also a lot lower, when they sell out of the back of their trucks and automobiles.

Again we do not object to free enterprise or anybody making an honest buck, but we certainly do think that the farmers and their stands should be restricted to rural and suburban areas. We do not believe they have any place on a downtown street corner in the busy shadow of a large food store, in business to serve the needs of the citizens of our city. Perhaps the law needs a revision or two in the best interests of those same citizens.

Now Let's Get Going With It

Now that the public hearings are over and the 20-year Recreation Master Plan has received unofficial and official endorsement by both citizens and city fathers, let us remember that twenty years moves by rather quickly.

The city of Virginia Beach has made great strides in the past couple of years where recreation facilities are concerned. We can now boast about the new Little Island center at Sandbridge, Redwing Park and a host of others. Property has recently been okayed for purchase from the City of Norfolk. This land too is earmarked for recreation.

We have already praised the Master Plan several times and we continue to do so. Now we want to see it all become a reality. When it does, not only the tourist but also the permanent resident will be able to look with pride at our city. We will have planned recreational areas, adequate facilities centrally and geographically located for everyone's use. What better recommendation can a city have in an era when free time and leisure is becoming even more important?

We hope that our citizens appreciate the hard work and study that went into the compilation of that Master Plan. It was done trying to please everyone. This was not possible, of course, but it did please most. The objectionable things were removed from the original draft, and now it is ready to go. We hope the implementation of the plan after final approval, can be speeded up. We hope it won't take all twenty of those years. But if it does, we are willing to wait, because when the entire plan is carried out, we will have a modern city complete in every way to offer to the scrutiny of everyone.

The Too Casual Dress

Bathing suits for women are getting so skimpy that it is hard for a guy to keep his mind on his work these days, if he works in Virginia Beach Borough. Girl-watching is one sport that is obviously seasonal here and it is highly enjoyable. We are fully used to seeing men and women at the beach in practically nothing, but we still do not believe they belong in restaurants and stores away from the beach in so little clothing.

There is still a law on the books that forbids this sort of apparel west of the boardwalk, but it is no longer enforced. It seems to us that lack of decent apparel then is up to the individual, and it seems to go hand in hand with common decency.

In the shopping centers throughout the city, the worst offenders are the women who appear in sloppy clothes and skimpy costumes, with curlers in their hair and with no makeup. Perhaps if they could see themselves in a full length mirror, they would scream in dismay and do something about it.

The younger girls generally dress better and look better than their older sisters and mothers. Not so with the boys. With the new long hair styles and sloppy clothes for boys, the least said about them the better. Perhaps they will grow up and realize the importance of good grooming.

We realize it gets hot during the summer. We realize that less clothing is more comfortable, but it seems that it is always the ones that look so miserable in the first place who take to the sloppy styles and lack of common decency.

All we ask is that casual dress not be carried too far, or soon the clothing manufacturers will go out of business entirely.

Lights On The Boulevard

Recently we recommended that a new traffic signal be placed on Virginia Beach Boulevard at the entrance to Malibu. It is still needed critically, and nothing has been done about it. But one new and necessary light has been added on the Boulevard at Independence Boulevard.

Now heading west, a driver meets a traffic signal at Thalia, at the entrance to Pembroke Mall Shopping Center, a few feet later at Independence Boulevard, a few feet later at the entrance to Aragona Village and a short distance later at Chinese Corner. We fully realize that each and every one of these stoplights is needed for safety and the smooth handling of traffic, but we do think that something could be done to synchronize all of these lights.

Just the other night, we missed every one of these lights in moderately heavy traffic, and because of this, the situation was made much worse. In many cities where a multitude of lights are needed on a given street or road, it is impossible to maintain a certain speed and make each of the lights for quite a distance. With all the new lights being added on Virginia Beach Boulevard, we strongly urge that the City fathers look into this matter.

More than likely more lights will be added when the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway is opened, and probably the old speed limit will be reduced. The old road will then definitely be a city street. The time is now to plan for a smooth traffic flow, and we feel certain that synchronized traffic signals will be a must then. They are already needed badly.

FUELING UP

Business Booms At Beach

The Special Tax Administrator for the City of Virginia Beach reported recently that special taxes on food, lodging, admissions and beach equipment is running nearly fifty thousand dollars ahead of the estimate. Hotel, motel and restaurant owners and operators are reporting a banner year, while cautiously adding that the ideal weather has had much to do with the fantastic business at the resort and citywide this summer.

The picture seems to be a wonderful one...almost. Then the City adds another one percent tax on to the three which goes into effect in September statewide. The special tax is citywide for food and lodging, etc. Most of the persons involved have accepted the new tax without question, however others feel it is a highly discriminatory tax. These opposing forces have promised to fight the tax, however we do not believe they will be too successful.

The original three per cent tax on food and lodging was first recommended by the Innkeepers Association for the purpose of maintaining a seven-day garbage collection at the beach, erosion control and for the convention center. No one complained, except those from other parts of Virginia who were not used to sales and use taxes. Then came consolidation of the City and the County. The three percent tax became city wide. The money, while not so earmarked was used for the same old purposes in the Beach Borough, and in the other six Boroughs was used to finance dredging and erosion projects, among other things.

Now the City has added another percent to that tax, since the State has gotten in on the act. In two years when the State adds another per cent, some innkeepers are worried about the effect of a 5% tax.

Frankly, we see no problem, since the money from this tax will definitely be used for the benefit of the beach and dredging and the like. We do not believe that tourists or residents will complain too much. As far as the residents are concerned, they would far rather pay an additional one per cent on food and admissions than suffer a rise in real estate taxes.

So the new tax is with us. It was first passed as an emergency measure, but it must also be remembered that so was the Federal Income Tax. That too was to be removed when the economy would permit. Don't hold your breath.

Thank You, School Board

It's over, at last. The School Board says the name of the new high school is now definite. It will be First Colonial High School, so named for the road which runs past its soon to be ivy-covered halls. Now this is the name we suggested over a year ago, when the naming controversy began. Obviously we are pleased that our choice was accepted.

We fully realize that not everyone is happy, but that could never be anyhow. If everyone had been happy, there would not have been any controversy in the first place. But it won't be Oceana. It won't be Owen. It won't be Virginia Beach. It won't be Alantone. And it won't be Lynnhaven. It WILL be First Colonial, and that is that.

It certainly took long enough for the powers to be to make up their minds. To our way of thinking, this should never have happened. The School Board and school officials should have taken a consensus, then moved quickly and decisively to name the new school. The way it actually happened, the matter grew far out of proportion and created much bad feeling.

Another new high school is on the drawing boards for the Princess Anne Plaza area, and should be built in the next few years. We heard that some forces are already gathering to get it named Oceana High School. Probably other forces will spring to the front too. But we hope the School Board and everyone involved regards the naming of the current school as some sort of lesson. We hope that when the time comes to name all new schools, it will be accomplished with a minimum amount of be rescinded and the school board name the school First Colonial High School. The motion brought groans from both sides but no violent opposition occurred—the School Board has spoken.

After the meeting adjourned, board member Kenneth L. Jard commented that the choice of Anne who attended the meeting expressed a desire to name a scheduled high school in their area Oceana High School.

The new high school is reportedly scheduled to be constructed within two years near Ship's Corner in the Oceana area. School Superintendent Frank W. Cox declined comment on the subject.

Gull's-Eye View

BY N. S. CROW

Hello there. I just flew in from my two-week vacation at home on the fishing pier of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge Tunnel. I've been resting and relaxing in the wake of the Senatorial Primary and eating high on the fish.

It has been a wonderful two weeks, not having to listen to political talk, but now that I'm feeling stronger again, I just had to come back. My third cousin, twice removed, Al B. Tross, was hanging around City Hall at Princess Anne recently and he heard what he thought was some terrible news. He flew out to see me. I listened and then roared with gull-like laughter.

Seems he overheard City Treasurer, V. A. Etheridge, making some sort of charge against the Robertson supporters of the recent campaign. He hadn't been around during the campaign itself, or he would have been used to accusations. The way he tells it, Etheridge now is saying the Teachers for Robertson Committee sent an illegal letter out to teachers urging them to support Senator Robertson. Etheridge says it was not signed correctly, according to election laws. Incidentally, I know several teachers who never even received such a letter.

This would seem to be a serious charge perhaps, if the situation were reversed. But Al and I just can't understand why Etheridge, who managed a winning campaign in the Primary, is complaining, if he had been unsuccessful, we could understand the griping. That always happens with the losers.

Anyway, as soon as Al told me about this, I made a suggestion and wrote a letter to the State Board of Elections. I told the State Registrar that Mr. Etheridge was absolutely right. The letter was illegal, and definitely should not have been sent or signed in that matter. I suggested that the letter must have made a great deal of difference in the outcome of the election in Virginia Beach; therefore, in all good faith, the elections returns from all Virginia Beach should be voided. Of course that would reverse one of the races entirely. Senator Robertson would be elected and State Senator Spong would go down in defeat.

It is best to let well enough alone and not try to cause new unrest when an election is over. Suppose the state registrar took the matter seriously. The outcome would actually be changed.

(The time has come now to support the winners, not tread heavily on the losers while they are down. There are far better ways to get one's name in the newspapers or to get undue publicity.)

Anyhow, I have Al straightened out, and he knows better than to panic again at most of the news he hears.

THE BEACH THIS WEEK

Attorneys representing the city are reportedly making progress in their paper work to have the U.S. Supreme Court hear the reapportionment case which involves the City Council. The city must file with the court prior to August 27.

City Council, at its regular meeting Monday, Aug. 8, will consider a $20 million community master plan for the Lake Smith Terrace-Aragona Village area. The proposed project, presented by developer Lee A. Gifford, was strongly opposed in the July meeting of the Virginia Beach Planning Commission.

City Manager W. Russell Hatchett said recently that he expects City Council to approve the purchase of 534 acres of Green Run Farm from Norfolk so that it might be developed into a recreational area. Last week the Norfolk City Council had agreed to sell the land to Virginia Beach for $1,200 an acre. Total sale price is $640,800.

The Virginia Beach Planning Commission will hear a request at its August 10 meeting for the construction of a professional building across the street from the General Hospital of Virginia Beach. The request for a zoning change and use permit is for 19 offices and a pharmacy. If approved the facility could be completed by February 1967. The Planning Commission hearings begin at 9:30 a.m. at the P.O.P. Lodge at Princess Anne Court House.

Ground was broken Sunday afternoon in King's grant for a $300,000 provisional church and educational building of St. Nicholas Catholic Church. The parish, which is 34 years old has almost 600 members.

The Virginia Beach Rescue Squad began its month-long fund-raising drive Monday. The squad hopes to raise $25,000 to supplement this year's budget. Last year the 42 members of the squad answered 2,040 calls, put in 13,700 hours of service and drove 38,000 miles. It is an all-volunteer group.

A 39-year-old Virginia Beach man died Saturday in an automobile accident near the Gilmerton Bridge in Chesapeake. Robert V. Savarese of the 300 block of East Farmington Road was killed when his westbound car skidded across U.S. 13 and crashed into a vehicle headed east. Savarese, according to Chesapeake Police was dead on arrival at Norfolk General Hospital.

E. H. Orange, director of Hampton Roads toll facilities, said that the latest engineer figures indicated that the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway is one-third completed. The traffic load, according to Orange, calls for about 17,000 cars a day when the road opens in 1967.

The Lumber Manufacturers Association of Virginia held a two-day conference Monday and Tuesday at the Cavalier Hotel. Nearly 100 loggers from across the Old Dominion gathered and talked over varied logging problems that face the modern-day lumberman.

Bids for the facelifting of the Princess Anne Court House will be opened Thursday, according to Assistant City Manager Roger Scott. Scott said the remodeling of the entrance to the City Manager's office is progressing nicely and crews have been strengthening the flooring of the Circuit Court room in preparation to the renovation.

Thirty-one year old Arthur A. Achon, a painter for Hammond, Ind. drowned in rough surf at Sandbridge while swimming with his family Sunday. The man's stepdaughter, Karen Klebowski, 16, went under with him, but was revived by mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. It was administered by Patrolman R. R. Monet, who was assisted by volunteers from the Princess Anne Court House Volunteer Fire Department. The man and the girl had been in swimming for about two hours before the accident occurred.

THE VIRGINIA BEACH OPEN FORUM

Our Virginia Beach Board of Education is preparing to name our new Senior High School. There is much in a name. Popularity, prestige, memories and community pride, all ride on a Senior High School name.

Certainly, no one living in our lovely City should shy away from the name "Virginia Beach Senior High School."

No matter where we live in Virginia Beach, this is our City. We should be proud of the name, for it is a part of each of us, and we are a dependent part of it. Ed. L. Applegate

Dear Mr. Loventhal:
The Cape Henry Woman's Club wishes to thank you for the coverage your paper gave our recent Lotus Festival.

In all, this tournament lived up to be the most popular event since the 21 payvons which resulted in over 350 youngsters in the tournament.

The individual winners and runners-up appear below:

Winners: Kingston—David Gowers, Allan Evans, Shene Evans, Rulven Evans, Judy Owens, Brandy Onley, Tom Exar, E. J. Stave, Tommy Akincin and Remy Richardson.

Runners-up: Thoroughgood—Adriana Harrington, Steve Harrington, Debbie Stare, Debbie P. Valvet Abraham, Roxanne Abraham, Kim Taylor, David

Walsh, Victor Bailey, Rennie Saunders, Diane White and Petic Walters.

Wardens Train

VIRGINIA BEACH—The entire game warden and law enforcement supervisory force of the Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries recently completed intensive 3 day in-service training programs at Camp Pendleton in Va. Beach. Law Enforcement Chief John H. McLaughlin announced. Approximately half of the field force attended each of two three-day sessions which were a scheduled part of the Commission's continuing in-service training program designed to upgrade and improve the efficiency of the state-wide warden force.

Among the subjects covered were new laws and regulations, law enforcement methods, public relations, court procedures, new boat regulations and general administrative procedures.

WORKMEN are in the process of tearing down the buildings and fences of Carey Field in order to build a new physical plant for R. K. Chevrolet. The Princess Anne Little League, the home team of the ballpark, played their last games there three weeks ago. They hope to build a new park by next season. (Sun Photo by Moore)

Tennets Over Gems

VIRGINIA BEACH — In play sponsored by the Virginia Beach Department of Parks and Recreation, Malibu outlasted the Sluggers to take a 6-5 win in the Intermediate League. The Merchants and Mets played to a 4-4 tie. The game will be replayed to determine a winner.

In the Pre-Teen Girls Softball League, the Tennets collected a 20-7 win over the Gems. They were led by Susan Williams and Jackie Horton, both slammed homers for the victors. Janet Lee was the winning pitcher. In another contest, the Alley Cats took a close decision over the Tennets, 11-10, behind the hitting of Patty Rudisell who went 4/4 at the plate. The League leading Larks banged out two more victories as they downed the Lassies 10-8 and the Raiders, 15-4. The big guns at the plate for the Larks in the two contests were as follows: Cathy Hollis, Jenia Liles, Wella McLawhorn, and Diane Lilley. Other action saw the Surfers hand the Lassies a 23-5 defeat.

In the Teen Girls Softball League, the Puritans edged the Bel-Aires 6-4.

The Class "A" League found Cambric defeating Rio's 16-13 in a come-from-behind victory. Rio's put 8 runs across the plate in the first inning. Ray Davis connected for a grand slam home run and was successful at the plate 3/4 times. He also was credited with 6 RBIs. Larry Brin and Bernie Gordon were 3/4. Johnny Cooke was 2/2. Brown's defeated DeLaf 16-14 in an extra inning contest. Eddie Harrison was the man of the night as he collected 3 RBIs and added his teams win with a grand slam homer. Walker won over Pungo 14-2 as Danny Collier hit 3/4 and scored 3 runs. Seaboard defeated Firestone 9-2.

In the Unlimited League, ITT downed Kempsville 8-3. Smith & Keene defeated London Bridge 17-7. Chesapeake Beach edged Thalia 5-4. Bob Huffin was 3/3 including one home run, a double and a single. Simon Thersault was 3/3, and John St. Sing 2/4. Lithonia defeated Pungo Texaco 15-4. Rick Simons had 2 homers and 4 RBIs. Ray Farrow was 4/4 including 3 doubles and one single. Curtis Ashley was the winning pitcher.

This competition is open to all girls from 13 to 19, inclusive. There are no requirements for entrance except attendance in both suits. There will be a cash prize for the winner.

Judges for the event will be the members of the "Fabulous Footnotes" dance combo, this week's major attraction at the Seaside Park "Frolic." Dave Cummins, local radio personality, will serve as master of ceremonies, and the event will be free to the public.

Another free attraction at Seaside Amusement Park this week is Billy Barton, aerialist known as "Mr. Sensation," and his famous "cloud walking" now to be seen twice daily, 2:30 and 10 p.m., on the outdoor stage at the park through Sunday. Barton has just returned from an extended tour of Germany and is currently on a personal appearance tour of major American amusement fun spots.

Admission to Seaside Amusement Park is free.

The students in addition to Mrs. McClane are: William Lennox, William J. Manning, Harry W. Phillips, Merle A. Rice, J. Bailey Swerfeger, James E. Taylor Jr. and Malcolm S. Wier. All but Taylor live in Virginia Beach.

A ninth student will begin classes when he retires from the military service.

After three months of intensive class work, the students must take an examination by the New York Stock Exchange and pass it, in order to be cleared by the National Association of Security Dealers.

Five months later, after many more class-room hours, the students must face another NYSE exam. If they pass this one, they qualify as registered "reps" of the exchange itself.

If all goes well, by that time they are familiarizing themselves with the market through the sale of stocks and bonds and are learning other aspects of their new careers.

Officers Lose Game, 3-2

By Bill Kohler

VIRGINIA BEACH—The rules kicked, the players grunted in frustration, the fans howled with laughter and when the dust had finally settled the enlisted men had defeated the officers 3-2 in Oceana's second annual donkey baseball game.

The object of the game is to hit the ball and circle the bases, however, from the way things turned out somebody forgot to tell this to the donkeys.

The game started off in a frenzy as the enlisted men took the field. Before the first batter came to the plate both the left-fielder and center-fielder were laying on the ground, via the ejection seat.

In the very first inning Chief Warrant Officer Wilson lined a hit to left and thus the fun began. He jumped on his donkey and headed for first as the leftfielder jumped off his mount to field it. Wilson somehow managed to reach first and after steering his donkey away from the outfield he started to head for second. The leftfielder finally retrieved the ball and tried to get back on his donkey in order to make the throw. By the time he finally did get the throw away Wilson had reached third and was on his way home. At this point his donkey decided that it was carrying a little too much weight, so... still holding onto the reins, Wilson picked himself up off the ground, hopped back on and managed to beat the throw for a home run. When! There must be an easier way to make a living.

In the third inning Parachute Rigger Third Class Jerry Russo tied the game for the enlisted men with a ground ball homer to center field. Russo, however, had a little easier time getting around the bases than did Wilson, but he just did manage to touch home before becoming airborne.

With the game moving along nicely into the fourth inning, Dental Technician "Moon" Mullins, shifted from second base to right field for the enlisted. With attention being focused on the batter and pitcher, Mullins suddenly lost control and to the surprise of everyone, especially Mullins, his donkey charged at the infield with Mullins hanging on for dear life. He raced across the infield, ran back out towards the outfield, almost knocking over this reporter and scattering crowds on his journey, made another U turn and started back towards home before Moon was able to bring him under temporary control. From that point on poor moon could do no right as he struggled to keep on his donkey the rest of the game.

Richard Johnson and "Willie" Austin also homered for the enlisted men while Lt. Geldart had one for the officers. The enlisted have now won both games in the annual classic but the officer have vowed to change that next year.

Mets Tied

VIRGINIA BEACH — The John B. Dey Merchants defeated the Greenwich Mets by the score of 9-2 to put them into a tie with the Mets for third place in the intermediate league.

Richard Dinkins was the winning pitcher allowing only 2 hits. Frank Smith gave assistance to the winning effort with 3 for 3 at the plate and 5 RBIs.

The defensive effort of the merchants was flawless in the game.

EDITORIALLY SPEAKING

Is It Really Fair

As the harvest of vegetables in Virginia has progressed recently, we have noted an influx of farmers selling their crops along the streets and roads of our city. There is no law against this, and we certainly do not wish the hard-working farmers any bad fortunes, however there are certain matters we do strongly question.

The farmer need not have any license to sell foods, if he grows them himself. He may do so in any place in the city that does not impair traffic or cause any other problem. We feel certain, however, that he reports all sales to the Internal Revenue Department on his income tax forms.

We do not object to the farmer selling foodstuffs on his own property or at a roadside stand in the less populated areas, but we do object to the farmer selling foodstuffs while parked on a street less than a hundred yards from a large chain food store, which pays taxes and has a license. And this is being done.

These farmer hucksters do not block traffic and they may even charge a few pennies less for the food, but their overhead is also a lot lower, when they sell out of the back of their trucks and automobiles.

Again we do not object to a honest enterprise or anybody making an honest buck, but we certainly do think that the farmers and their stands should be restricted to rural and suburban areas. We do not believe they have any place on a downtown street corner in the very shadow of a large food store, in business to serve the needs of the citizens of our city. Perhaps the law needs a revision or two in the best interests of those same citizens.

Now Let's Get Going With It

Now that the public hearings are over and the 20-year Recreation Master Plan has received unofficial and official endorsement by both citizens and city fathers, let us remember that twenty years moves by rather quickly.

The city of Virginia Beach has made great strides in the past couple of years where recreation facilities are concerned. We can now boast about the new Little Island center at Sandbridge, Redwing Park and a host of others. Property has recently been okayed for purchase from the City of Norfolk. This land too is earmarked for recreation.

We have already praised the Master Plan several times and we continue to do so. Now we want to see it all become a reality. When it does, not only the tourist but also the permanent resident will be able to look with pride at our city. We will have planned recreational areas, adequate facilities centrally and geographically located for everyone's use. What better recommendation can a city have in an era when free time and leisure is becoming even more important?

We hope that our citizens appreciate the hard work and study that went into the compilation of that Master Plan. It was done trying to please everyone. It was not possible, of course, but it did please most. The objectionable things were removed from the original draft, and now it is ready to go. We hope the implementation of the plan after final approval, can be speeded up. We hope it won't take all twenty of these years. But if it does, we are willing to wait, because when the entire plan is carried out, we will have a modern city complete in every way to offer to the scrutiny of everyone.

The Too Casual Dress

Bathing suits for women are getting so skimpy that it is hard for a guy to keep his mind on his work these days, if he works in Virginia Beach Borough. Girl-watching is one sport that is obviously seasonal here and it is highly enjoyable. We are fully used to seeing men and women at the beach in practically nothing, but we still do not believe they belong in restaurants and stores away from the beach in so little clothing.

There is still a law on the books that forbids this sort of apparel west of the boardwalk, but it is no longer enforced. It seems to us that lack of decent apparel then is up to the individual, and it seems to go hand in hand with common decency.

In the shopping centers throughout the city, the worst offenders are the women who appear in sloppy clothes and skimpy costumes, with curlers in their hair and with no makeup. Perhaps if they could see themselves in a full length mirror, they would scream in dismay and do something about it.

The younger girls generally dress better and look better than their older sisters and mothers. Not so with the boys. With the new long hair styles and sloppy clothes for boys, the least said about them the better. Perhaps they will grow up and realize the importance of good grooming.

We realize it gets hot during the summer. We realize that less clothing is more comfortable, but it seems that it is always the ones that look so miserable in the first place who take to the sloppy styles and lack of common decency.

All we ask is that casual dress not be carried too far, or soon the clothing manufacturers will go out of business entirely.

Lights On The Boulevard

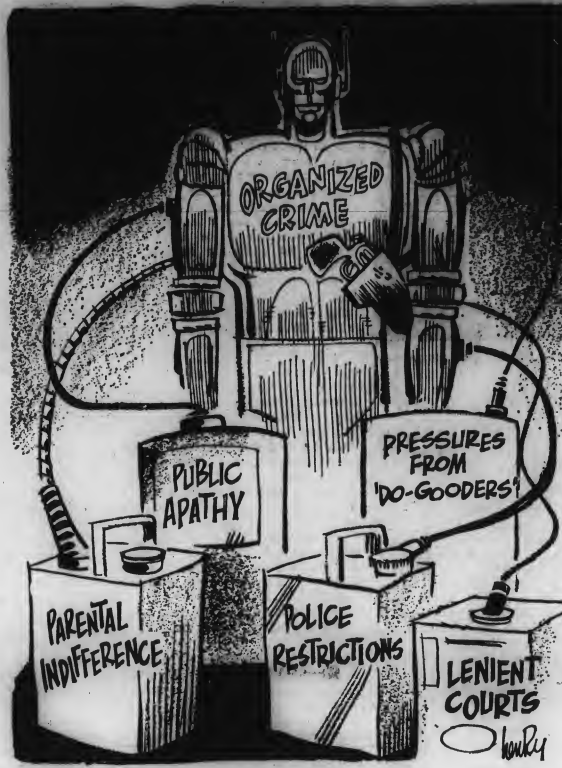

Recently we recommended that a new traffic signal be placed on Virginia Beach Boulevard at the entrance to Malibu. It is still needed critically, and nothing has been done about it. But one new and necessary light has been added on the Boulevard at Independence Boulevard.

Now heading west, a driver meets a traffic signal at Thalia, at the entrance to Pembroke Mall Shopping Center, a few feet later at Independence Boulevard, a few feet later at the entrance to Aragona Village and a short distance later at Chinese Corner. We fully realize that each and every one of these stoplights is needed for safety and the smooth handling of traffic, but we do think that something could be done to synchronize all of these lights.

Just the other night, we missed every one of these lights in moderately heavy traffic, and because of this, the situation was made much worse. In many cities where a multitude of lights are needed on a given street or road, it is impossible to maintain a certain speed and make each of the lights for quite a distance. With all the new lights being added on Virginia Beach Boulevard, we strongly urge that the City fathers look into this matter.

More than likely more lights will be added when the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway is opened, and probably the old speed limit will be reduced. The old road will then definitely be a city street. The time is now to plan for a smooth traffic flow, and we feel certain that synchronized traffic signals will be a must then. They are already needed badly.

Business Booms At Beach

The Special Tax Administrator for the City of Virginia Beach reported recently that special taxes on food, lodging, admissions and beach equipment is running nearly fifty thousand dollars ahead of the estimate. Hotel, motel and restaurant owners and operators are reporting a banner year, while cautiously adding that the ideal weather has had much to do with the fantastic business at the resort and citywide this summer.

The picture seems to be a wonderful one...almost. Then the City adds another one percent tax on to the three which goes into effect in September statewide. The special tax is citywide for food and lodging, etc. Most of the persons involved have accepted the new tax without question, however others feel it is a highly discriminatory tax. These opposing forces have promised to fight the tax, however we do not believe they will be too successful.

The original three per cent tax on food and lodging was first recommended by the Innkeepers Association for the purpose of maintaining a seven-day garbage collection at the beach, erosion control and for the convention center. No one complained, except those from other parts of Virginia who were not used to sales and use taxes. Then came consolidation of the City and the County. The three percent tax became city wide. The money, while not so earmarked was used for the same old purposes in the Beach Borough, and in the other six Boroughs was used to finance dredging and erosion projects, among other things.

Now the City has added another percent to that tax, since the State has gotten in on the act. In two years when the State adds another per cent, some innkeepers are worried about the effect of a 5% tax.

Frankly, we see no problem, since the money from this tax will definitely be used for the benefit of the beach and dredging and the like. We do not believe that tourists or residents will complain too much. As far as the residents are concerned, they would rather pay an additional one per cent on food and admissions than suffer a rise in real estate taxes.

So the new tax is with us. It was first passed as an emergency measure, but it must also be remembered that so was the Federal Income Tax. That too was to be removed when the economy would permit. Don't hold your breath.

Thank You, School Board

It's over, at last. The School Board says the name of the new high school is now definite. It will be First Colonial High School, so named for the road which runs past its soon to be ivy-covered halls. Now this is the name we suggested over a year ago, when the naming controversy began. Obviously we are pleased that our choice was accepted.

We fully realize that not everyone is happy, but that could never be anyhow. If everyone had been happy, there would not have been any controversy in the first place. But it won't be Oceana. It won't be Owen. It won't be Virginia Beach. It won't be Alantone. And it won't be Lynnhaven. It WILL be First Colonial, and that is that.

It certainly took long enough for the powers to be to make up their minds. To our way of thinking, this should never have happened. The School Board and school officials should have taken a consensus, then moved quickly and decisively to name the new school. The way it actually happened, the matter grew far out of proportion and created much bad feeling.

Another new high school is on the drawing boards for the Princess Anne Plaza area, and should be built in the next few years. We heard that some forces are already gathering to get it named Oceana High School. Probably other forces will spring to the front too. But we hope the School Board and everyone involved regards the naming of the current school as some sort of lesson. We hope that when the time comes to name all new schools, it will be accomplished with a minimum amount of

Meanwhile we have a new school to welcome to the fold in September. The students will be attending a beautiful and well-equipped facility. It is First Colonial High School and the athletic teams will be the Patriots.

Gull's-Eye View

BY N. S. CROW

Hello there. I just flew in from my two-week vacation at home on the fishing pier of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge Tunnel. I've been resting and relaxing in the wake of the Senatorial Primary and eating high on the fish.

It has been a wonderful two weeks, not having to listen to political talk, but now that I'm feeling stronger again, I just had to come back. My third cousin, thrice removed, Al B. Tross, was hanging around City Hall at Princess Anne recently and he heard what he thought was some terrible news. He flew out to see me. I listened and then roared with gull-like laughter.

Seems he overheard City Treasurer, V. A. Etheridge, making some sort of charge against the Robertson supporters of the recent campaign. He hadn't been around during the campaign itself, or he would have been used to accusations. The way he tells it, Etheridge now is saying the Teachers for Robertson Committee sent an illegal letter out to teachers urging them to support Senator Robertson. Etheridge says it was not signed correctly, according to election laws. Incidentally, I know several teachers who never even received such a letter.

This would seem to be a serious charge perhaps, if the situation were reversed. But Al and I just can't understand why Etheridge, who managed a winning campaign in the Primary, is complaining. If he had been unsuccessful, we could understand the griping. That always happens with the losers.

Anyway, as soon as Al told me about this, I made a suggestion and wrote a letter to the State Board of Elections. I told the State Registrar that Mr. Etheridge was absolutely right. The letter was illegal, and definitely should not have been sent or signed in that matter. I suggested that the letter must have made a great deal of difference in the outcome of the election in Virginia Beach; therefore, in all good faith, the elections returns from all Virginia Beach should be voided. Of course that would reverse one of the races entirely. Senator Robertson would be elected and State Senator Spang would go down in defeat.

It is best to let well enough alone and not try to cause new unrest when an election is over. Suppose the state registrar took the matter seriously. The outcome would actually be changed.

The time has come now to support the winners, not tread heavily on the losers while they are down. There are far better ways to get one's name in the newspapers or to get undue publicity.

Anyhow, I have Al straightened out, and he knows better than to panic again at most of the news he hears.

THE BEACH THIS WEEK

Attorneys representing the city are reportedly making progress in their paper work to have the U.S. Supreme Court hear the reapportionment case which involves the City Council. The city must file with the court prior to August 27.

City Council, at its regular meeting Monday, Aug. 8, will consider a $20 million community master plan for the Lake Smith Terrace-Aragona Village area. The proposed project, presented by developer Lee A. Gifford, was strongly opposed in the July meeting of the Virginia Beach Planning Commission.

City Manager W. Russell Hatchett said recently that he expects City Council to approve the purchase of 334 acres of Green Run Farm from Norfolk, so that it might be developed into a recreational area. Last week the Norfolk City Council had agreed to sell the land to Virginia Beach for $1,200 an acre. Total sale price is $400,800.

The Virginia Beach Planning Commission will hear a request at its August 10 meeting for the construction of a professional building across the street from the General Hospital of Virginia Beach. The request for a zoning change and use permit is for 19 offices and a pharmacy. If approved the facility could be completed by February 1967. The Planning Commission hearings begin at 9:30 a.m. at the F.O.P. Lodge at Princess Anne Court House.

Ground was broken Sunday afternoon in King's grant for a $300,000 provisional church and educational building of St. Nicholas Catholic Church. The parish, which is 34 years old has almost 600 members.

The Virginia Beach Rescue Squad began its month-long fundraising drive Monday. The squad hopes to raise $25,000 to supplement this year's budget. Last year the 42 members of the squad answered 2,040 calls, put in 15,700 hours of service and drove 38,000 miles. It is an all-volunteer group.

A 38-year-old Virginia Beach man died Saturday in an automobile accident near the Gilmerston Bridge in Chesapeake. Robert V. Savarese of the 300 block of East Farmington Road was killed when his westbound car skidded across U.S. 13 and crashed into a vehicle headed east. Savarese, according to Chesapeake Police was dead on arrival at Norfolk General Hospital.

E. H. Orange, director of Hampton Roads toll facilities, said that the latest engineer figures indicated that the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway is one-third completed. The traffic load, according to Orange, calls for about 17,000 cars a day when the road opens in 1967.

The Lumber Manufacturers Association of Virginia held a two-day conference Monday and Tuesday at the Cavalier Hotel. Nearly 100 loggers from across the Old Dominion gathered and talked over varied logging problems that face the modern-day lumberman.

Bids for the facelift of the Princess Anne Court House will be opened Thursday, according to Assistant City Manager Roger Scott. Scott said the remodeling of the entrance to the City Manager's office is progressing nicely and crews have been strengthening the flooring of the Circuit Court room in preparation to the renovation.

Thirty-one year old Arthur A. Achord, a painter for Hammond, Ind. drowned in rough surf at Sandbridge while swimming with his family Sunday. The man's stepdaughter, Karen Klebowski, 16, went under with him, but was revived by mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. It was administered by Patrolman R. R. Monet, who was assisted by volunteers from the Princess Anne Court House Volunteer Fire Department. The man and the girl had been in swimming for about two hours before the accident occurred.

THE VIRGINIA BEACH OPEN FORUM

Our Virginia Beach Board of Education is preparing to name our new Senior High School. There is much in a name. Prestige, pride, memories and Community pride, all ride on a Senior High School name. Certainly, no one living in our lovely City should shy away from the name "Virginia Beach Senior High School."

No matter where we live in Virginia Beach, this is our City. We should be proud of the name, for it is a part of each of us, and we are a dependent part of it. Ed L. Applegate

Dear Mr. Lowenthal, The Cape Henry Woman's Club wishes to thank you for the coverage your paper gave our recent Lotus Festival.

We were especially grateful for the fine editorial.

Mixed Title To Kingston

VIRGINIA BEACH—Two closely fought games in the semi-finals preceded a comparatively easier title game in the final of the Summer Playgrounds sponsored Mixed Softball Tournament. The low regular season winners met at Lynnhaven School Thursday July 28th for the championship. Thoroughgood took the measure of Arrowwood 4-2 while Kingston defeated Windsor Woods in another close match by the score of 4-3. Kingston then came back to beat Thoroughgood in the final by 7-4.

In all, this tournament turned out to be the most popular attendance was with 21 pay-goers and over 250 youngsters in the tournament.

The individual winners and runner-ups appear below:

Winners: Kingston—David Gavris, Alan Evans, Sherlene Evans, Ruthven Evans, Judy Owens, Brenda Onley, Tom Enger, E. Lee Stover, Tommy Akman and Richy Richardson.

Runner-ups: Thoroughgood—Adrianna Harrington, Steve Harrington, Debbie Storer, Debbie P. Valvet, Abraham, Rexxons Abraham, Kim Taylor, David

Walsh, Victor Bailey, Rennie Sanders, Diane White and Pette Withers.

Wardens Train

VIRGINIA BEACH—The entire game warden and law enforcement supervisory force of the Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries recently completed intensive 3 day in-service training programs at Camp Pendleton in Va. Beach. Law Enforcement Chief John H. McLaughlin announced. Approximately half of the field force attended each of two three-day sessions which were a scheduled part of the Commission's continuing in-service training program designed to upgrade and improve the efficiency of the state-wide warden force.

Among the subjects covered were new laws and regulations, law enforcement methods, public relations, court procedures, new boat regulations and general administrative procedures.

WORKMEN are in the process of tearing down the buildings and fences of Carey Field in order to build a new physical plant for R. K. Chevrolet. The Princess Anne Little League, the home team of the ballpark, played their last games there three weeks ago. They hope to build a new park by next season. (Sun Photo by Moore)

Beauty Contest

At Seaside Park

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Miss Teen Queen Contest, first of the bathing beauty events of the 1966 season at Seaside Amusement Park, Virginia Beach, will be held Sunday, August 7th at 4 p.m. on the park's outdoor stage.

This competition is open to all girls from 13 to 19, inclusive. There are no requirements for entrance except attendance in bathing suits. There will be a cash prize for the winner.

Judges for the event will be the members of the "Fabulous Footnotes" dance combo, this week's major attraction at the Seaside Park "Frolics". Dave Cummins, local radio personality, will serve as master of ceremonies, and the event will be free to the public.

Another free attraction at Seaside Amusement Park this week is Billy Barton, aerialist known as "Mr. Sensation," and his famous "cloud swing" now to be seen twice daily, 2:30 and 10 p.m., on the outdoor stage at the park through Sunday. Barton has just returned from an extended tour of Germany and is currently on a personal appearance tour of major American amusement fun spots.

Admission to Seaside Amusement Park is free.

20-7 win over the Gems. They were led by Susan Williams and Jackie Horton, both alarmed homers for the victors. Janet Lee was the winning pitcher. In another contest, the Alley Cats took a close decision over the Tennets, 11-10, behind the hitting of Patty Rudisell who went 4/4 at the plate. The League leading Larks banged out two more victories as they downed the Lassies 10-8 and the Raiders, 15-3. The big guns at the plate for the Larks in the two contests were as follows: Cathy Hollis, Jenia Liles, Welita McLawhorn, and Dianne Lilley. Other action saw the Surfers hand the Lassies a 2-5 defeat.

In the Teen Girls Softball League, the Puritans edged the Bel-Aires 9-6. The Class "A" League found Cambric defeating Rio's 16-13 in a come-from-behind victory. Rio's put 8 runs across the plate in the first inning. Ray Davis connected for a grand slam home run and was successful at the plate 3/4 times. He also was credited with 6 RBIs. Larry Brin and Bernie Gordon were 3/4. Johnny Cooke was 2/2. Brown's defeated DeHart 16-14 in an extra inning contest. Eddie Harrison was the man of the night as he collected 8 RBIs and aided his teams win with a grand slam homer. Walker won over Pungo 14-2 as Danny Collier hit 3/4 and scored 3 runs. Seaboard defeated Firestone 6-2.

In the Unlimited League, ITT downed Kempsville 8-3. Smith & Keene defeated London Bridge 17-7. Chesapeake Beach edged Thalia 5-4. Bob Huffin was 3/3 including one home run, a double and a single. Simmon Thericult was 3/3, and John St. Sing 2/4. Lithonia defeated Pungo Texaco 15-8. Rick Simons had 2 homers and 4 RBIs. Ray Farrow was 4/4 including 3 doubles and one single. Curtis Ashley was the winning pitcher.

Officers Lose Game, 3-2

By Bill Kobler

VIRGINIA BEACH—The mules kicked, the players growled with frustration, the fans howled with laughter and when the dust had finally settled the enlisted men had defeated the officers 3-2 in Oceana's second annual donkey baseball game.

The object of the game is to hit the ball and circle the bases, however, from the way things turned out somebody forgot to tell this to the donkeys.

The game started off in a frenzy as the enlisted men took the field. Before the first batter came to the plate both the left-fielder and center-fielder were laying on the ground, via the ejection seat.

In the very first inning Chief Warrant Officer Wilson lined a hit to left and thus the fun began. He jumped on his donkey and headed for first as the leftfielder jumped off his mount to field it. Wilson somehow managed to reach first and after steering his donkey away from the outfield he started to head for second. The leftfielder finally retrieved the ball and tried to get back on his donkey in order to make the throw. By the time he finally did get the throw away Wilson had reached third and was on his way home. At this point his donkey decided that it was carrying a little too much weight, so it still holding onto the reins, Wilson picked himself up off the ground, hopped back on and managed to beat the throw for a home run. Whew! (There must be an easier way to make a living.)

In the third inning Parachute Rigger Third Class Jerry Russo tied the game for the enlisted men with a ground ball homer to center field. Russo, however, had a little easier time getting around the bases than did Wilson, but he just did manage to touch home before becoming airborne.

With the game moving along nicely into the fourth inning, Dental Technician "Moon" Mullins, shifted from second base to right field for the enlisted. With attention being focused on the batter and pitcher, Mullins suddenly lost control and to the surprise of everyone, especially Mullins, his donkey charged at the infield with Mullins hanging on for dear life. He raced across the infield, ran back out towards the outfield, almost knocking over this reporter and scattering crowds on his journey, made another U turn and started back towards home before Moon was able to bring him under temporary control. From that point on poor moon could do no right as he struggled to keep on his donkey the rest of the game.

Richard Johnson and "Willie" Austin also homered for the enlisted men while Lt. Goldard had one for the officers. The enlisted have now won both games in the annual classic but the officer have vowed to change that next year.

Mets Tied

VIRGINIA BEACH — The John B. Dey Merchants defeated the Greenwich Mets by the score of 9-2 to put them into a tie with the Mets for third place in the intermediate league.

Richard Dinkins was the winning pitcher allowing only 2 hits. Frank Smith gave assistance to the winning effort with 3 for 3 at the plate and 5 RBIs.

The defensive effort of the merchants was flawless in the game.

what is Coffee Mill Flavor?

It's Fresh-ground flavor you can't get in a can.

Fresh-ground flavor you do get in A&P's whole-bean Eight O'Clock, Red Circle and Bokar Coffees.

You see, once the coffee bean is ground, the flavor begins to fade.

That's why, when we at A&P buy the finest coffees we can find, we bring them to you still in the bean.

And we custom-grind them exactly right for your coffeemaker.

Takes a little extra work, but we're happy to do it.

That way we can be sure you'll enjoy the full, fresh taste of A&P's Coffee Mill Flavor.

Are A&P Coffees a good reason for shopping A&P? They're one of many.

Life Guards - Pool Style

VIRGINIA BEACH—Whenever a native of the world's largest resort city mentions the words life guard "young and old think of the job as being one of the most coveted, the most desired, and the hardest to obtain. For, almost every Virginian Beachite worth his salt works in the summer, (even if he loafs a bit in the winter.)

Time was when there were very few pools at the Beach, except for the ones in private clubs, although the large indoor pool at the Cavalier has always been a show place and a tourist attraction since the hotel was built. Today, however, a pool is practically a requisite at any hotel or motel.

Most young men wish to be life guards because they are outdoors, their families approve, and inevitably they wind up as at the end of the summer bronzed, fit and resembling young Apollos.

This story is about two pool life guards whom we know quite well since for 3 summers we have swum in "their" pool and have observed them in action. Both are natives, both are college students—James (Jim) Jard, one of the popular 6 children of Mr. and Mrs. K. L. Jard attends R.P.I. in Richmond; Edwin (Ed) Kellam Jr., attends William and Mary. Both are well adjusted, loaded with personality, and both take their jobs seriously and with gratitude to the management for hiring them.

Jim is a brunette with deep blue eyes, Ed is a dark brunet with deep brown eyes. Each has a ready smile; each is witty and energetic, and each has a sense of humor which carries every unpleasant work-a-day incident to a pleasant solution. Jim has had his job for 3 summers; Ed for 2.

The duties of a pool life guard are many. "We have to keep the pool clean and chlorinated at all times. Children are of course our main concern," said Jim, "the little ones jump in at any given moment, running away from their parents, although half of them can't swim. We naturally would never recover if one of them were dropped. Most people think of us as baby sitters; I guess when people pay a large sum to stay at a hotel or motel, they take us for granted, but we do have permission to teach swimming to guests and add a little to our salary."

"What comment can you make on your salary?" we asked. "Adequate," he answered, "and the fringe benefits are excellent." Both laughed.

"We're not stupid," we said, "you mean the bikinis and the girls. You're where they are, all right. They certainly do overpower you in attention and numbers."

"It's part of our job," said Ed, "to keep everybody happy." He didn't smile. "Both Jim and I have widespread interests, but we're not going steady; you know—school, jobs, service obligations, etc."

"Sure, who else?" (They clean the grounds; cans, kleenex, soiled towels, etc., are all put in containers during the day. All beach chairs, tables and table chairs are kept in place; hundreds of questions about the Beach are answered with clarity and courtesy; children lose parents—parents lose children. The guards find them.)

"What about hours?" we asked. "Six days a week; one afternoon off, nine hours a day; we usually eat lunch around the pool. And by the way, don't forget to say that we can swim, and we have passed the Red Cross instructors' exam. And we like our jobs."

We once saw Ed save a 6 month old baby who slipped from his mother's arms to the bottom of the pool. He jumped in, grabbed the infant, held her on high, shook her hard. She came to gurgling with laughter and not wailer, as her mother sat frozen with fright.

Club Wins

Big 'E' Award

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Exchange Club of Virginia Beach has been awarded the BIG "E" Award for club excellence by The National Exchange Club. It was announced today at the 48th annual National Exchange Convention meeting in New Orleans, La. The award is given to Exchange Clubs meeting the requirements of efficiency, expansion, and education.

Dr. Porter L. Fortune, Jr., Toledo, Ohio, executive secretary of the men's national service club organization, said 87 Exchange Clubs qualified for the award—a banner for club display and a lapel emblem attachment for each member. The second annual award period ended June 30, 1965.

Winning clubs were required to actively participate in The National Exchange Club's Freedom Shrine and National Crime Prevention Week programs plus at least one other community service project. Also, they had to meet the highest standards of operational efficiency, and contribute to the expansion of Exchange clubs by increasing membership or establishing new clubs.

"It is most heartening to have so many clubs qualify for the BIG 'E' Award in its second year," Dr. Fortune said. "The award sets standards by which Exchange Clubs can render more service to their communities. At present, it is conservatively estimated that Exchange Clubs throughout the United States and Puerto Rico contribute a million dollars and a million volunteer hours to their communities annually."

Formal presentation of the banner and pins will be made later by a representative of The National Exchange Club at a local club meeting.

Soldier Returns From Viet Nam

In February of this year, The VIRGINIA BEACH Sun ran a story entitled "Letter from a Soldier in Viet Nam". The story told of the trials faced by Sergeant Palmer, whose family lives in Virginia Beach. Palmer related some of the horror of the war there. Now he has come home . . . and we are able to write a happy ending to the story. —ED.

By H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr., Sgt. (E-5) Harold T. Palmer Jr., 5th Special Forces Group, United States Army, is now a hero of the Viet Nam war. He saw combat many times in his ten and dangerous job during the eleven months he spent as a "green beret" advisor in Southeast Asia, but in one four hour period on a day in April he will never forget, he became a hero. He did not earn that title knowingly. He merely carried out what he considered to be his mission as a career soldier in the United States Army.

But his actions on that fateful day earned him not only one high decoration and a nomination for another, but also the respect of his superiors and the thanks of the American people.

themselves to possible enemy fire to rescue the wounded men. Palmer treated the wounded and called a medical helicopter to evacuate the men.

Again the patrol came under heavy fire, and again caused the enemy to retreat, but the then strung out patrol came under heavy fire once more. Palmer and Conway risked their lives to silence the machine guns. They were successful and began to regroup when four machine gun positions opened fire pinning the patrol down in a crossfire. Two were finally taken out of action, one by a grenade lobbed by Palmer, but the other two held the men down. In addition 60mm mortar shells rained down.

Realizing the relative hopelessness of the situation, Palmer and Conway called for close air support. Palmer directed the fire of the aircraft, but the enemy continued to hammer away undaunted. Considering the situation to be almost lost, Palmer called for bombing of the patrol's own position. While the bombs fell, the patrol attempted to withdraw.

Suddenly a machine gun began firing directly into the remainder of the patrol, completely pinning them down. Conway was killed instantly and bullets hitting his body shielded Palmer. Palmer was able to locate the rest of the patrol. They were again attacked, and Palmer again distinguished himself by killing several of the enemy with no regard to his own safety. When the tiny patrol was almost out of ammunition, they were finally evacuated by a helicopter.

Thirty men started out, and remarkably twenty-five returned, but only due to the extreme courage, skill and leadership of Conway, a Vietnamese officer and Sgt. Palmer.

Palmer returned from the four-hour combat patrol completely exhausted, but volunteered to go back into the jungle to recover the body of his close friend, Captain Conway. On this patrol, too, Palmer also came under enemy fire several times.

The narrative description, recommending Palmer for the Distinguished Service Cross reads, in part:

"Sergeant Palmer's calm under fire, his repeated disregard for his own personal safety, and his aggressive leadership and initiative in a seemingly impossible position are in the highest traditions of the military. By his actions, he has reflected great credit upon himself, the 5th Special Forces Group, the U. S. Army, and the joint American-Vietnamese effort in this war."

"I didn't think I was coming out of it," he said. "I just wanted to talk to my wife once more." He said he was not frightened when facing death in the field, but felt he had not finished all that he could do in life. "I didn't want to die, not having done enough to win this war," he added. Palmer was also wounded slightly ly in the attack, but continued the fight after discarding equipment around his belt where he was struck by a mortar fragment.

"After it was over, Palmer said, "It doesn't seem that it all happened. Now it is best to forget." General Westmoreland asked to speak to Palmer to hear the story of the patrol first-hand, and Palmer tells of meeting the General with great pride.

In February, Palmer had said in his letter to his parents from Viet Nam. "You have to have a reason for being here . . . Now he states that reason. "Basically, of course, it's my job, but you have to have another reason. It's more to help the people fight communism."

Palmer added, "Some of the people don't even know we're there. Many of them disregard the war as much as possible and go on trying to exist."

He explained that there is widespread poverty in the country and except in the larger cities, the people are relatively uneducated. And he explained that the Vietnamese people are beginning to rely too heavily on the Americans today. He said they look to the Americans for help, "but they can't understand why we have to drop bombs on their villages to help."

Palmer praised the ability of the Viet Cong soldiers, but said that most of them were not vicious, but misguided. He said that about 80% of the VC captured is reor-iented and turned loose in South Viet Nam, many to fight for the South.

The young sergeant feels that the war in Viet Nam is now approaching a crossroads. He said the war will either be escalated by the North or Red China in the next few months, or we will win. "That will depend on what Red China does," he said. He added that he believes the bomb runs in the North should be stepped up, but not hitting the towns of Hanoi or Haiphong. "The bombings really came too late," he said, "after the mass infiltration of troops and supplies. It should have been done sooner."

Palmer considers the war there costly to America but not to the Communists, but he says, "We will win." Concerning the possibilities of the war touching off World War III, Palmer said, "I don't see that in the near future. Red China is still too much like a bowl of jelly. The country just isn't ready for a full-scale war."

Palmer is home now, visiting his parents in Virginia Beach, and thankful to be alive and well. He considers his being alive "a miracle," and perhaps it is.

His proud father beamed as he discussed his son's heroism. But the unassuming and modest Sergeant Palmer said simply, "I don't think a career Army man is really a soldier until he has been in combat."

Sergeant Palmer is truly now a soldier.

HOME ON LEAVE AND DRESSED CASUALLY Sgt. Harold T. Palmer, Jr. and his father, a Virginia Beach resident, took over the February 17, 1966 edition of the Virginia Beach Sun, in which a feature story about the young soldier appeared.

Happiness is . . . a wedding. Weddings are very much a part of the news all the time, and especially now, with nuptial plans of Luci and Pat. There will be a TV spectacular, the social event of the year and hopefully, a lifetime of happiness together. Weddings of well known personalities though gawked at by thousands, read about by millions, and examined by commentators still remains a personal special event of the couple involved.

Because a wedding is a ceremony honoring the closest of human relationships, it is a happy time. While the ceremony and pageantry cannot possibly promise "happiness ever after", it is one of life's treasures which should not be discarded as a lot of nonsense.

Precious moments of happiness shared with others enrich memories for years to come.

Suppose you are a young couple in love and you want to get married, but somehow you feel it's no one's business but your own, so you run off somewhere and are married. That's what you want so that's what you do. What have you missed? . . . Most everyone who has done that, even after years of marital contentment, regret the fact that they did not have a wedding! Not that a ceremony makes a marriage, but that the moment was not shared with others.

On the other hand, suppose you do "do the whole bit", what have you gained? No doubt the closer the ceremony gets, the more tired and the more nervous and irritable you may be, yet in spite of the disadvantages, the glow of good wishes surrounding you is constant. To your family it is probably the most important event of the moment and all efforts are made to assure it's properly done. The details are taken care of for you.

A wedding ceremony is a beautiful ceremony, and whether it is big or small, the bride is lovely because she feels loved, and the bridegroom is handsome and proud. You may worry about the actual ceremony, but when it is the moment, you see only each other. Your glow radiates to all present.

Usually the ladies cry (and the men's eyes are suspiciously bright) with happy tears. Then the organ swells at the conclusion of the ceremony and you go gaily off together. And even after you have left for your wedding trip, the wedding guests are infected with harmony and fellowship for hours to come.

While material gains may be better with showers and parties and wedding gifts, you also realize that others are thinking of you and show their desire to have a part in your new life beginning. Maybe you'll always remember that you had to start house-keeping with six clocks and no coffee pot. . . but you'll laugh about that for years. (Or perhaps you will eat your first meal together served from a silver casserole and eaten on paper plates!)

Not only weddings, but many things which touch the emotions, are too often considered "old-fashioned". Emotions are what make humans human, and ceremonies which bring the emotions to the surface bring us closer together. Too many people today try to keep to themselves and not become involved in the lives of others. Yet if the good feelings are submerged, the less-desirable ones rise to the surface. Everything that is good and proper and shared brings happiness.

Mankind can survive anything except uncaring. Whatever touches you does touch others; whatever the occasion, make something "important" out of it. Have a wedding if you want to get married, salute the flag at a parade, stand up when the National Anthem is played, cry and mourn at a funeral, travel miles to be at a graduation, visit and admire a new mother's first baby, see your friends off on voyages, welcome home when they return—make a big thing out of life's little moments when they come home when return—make a big thing out of life's little moments.

Be human. Be happy.

Golden Agers

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Golden Age Club of Virginia Beach under the supervision of H. C. Benjamin, Adult Supervisor of Union Kempsville School, held a program in the form of a question and answers period at the First Baptist Church, Lynnhaven on July 26, at 8:30 p.m.

This program was held to enlighten Golden Agers and the community of the many Social Security Benefits of today. Mrs. Dorthy M. Knight, a representative of the Social Security Administration, conducted the question and answer period. Mrs. Knight discussed many interesting benefits, including Medicare, which are available to Senior Citizens who have no credits.

There were about 50 persons present. Benjamin and The Golden Agers are very grateful to Mrs. Knight for the information which she brought to the group.

Navy Officer Gets Medal

LITTLE CREEK — For helping protect the coast of Vietnam from communist forces, Commander Eugene Rueff received a Navy Commendation Medal.

Vice Admiral Charles K. Duncan, Commander of the Atlantic Fleet Amphibious Force, presented the medal to Commander Rueff. The ceremonies took place aboard the dock landing ship USS Ashland (LSD-1) at the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base.

Commander Rueff, who is now commanding officer of the Ashland, earned the high Navy citation for his service as commanding officer of the amphibious repair ship USS Krishna (ARL-38). The Krishna, which is homeported in Norfolk, left for Vietnam on June 14, 1965.

He was cited for directing the "extensive modification and conversion of the Krishna for support of coastal surveillance operations . . . supporting Coast Guard and Navy patrol boats engaged in counter-insurgency efforts and combat operations in the Gulf of Thailand off Vietnam . . . planning and directing a maintenance and support program for the patrol boats . . . and planning and coordinating the establishment of shore facilities to house and support patrol personnel."

Commander Rueff also was commended for directing "many other special projects over and above his normal support commitments which led to significant improvement in the capabilities of the coastal surveillance forces."

The commander took command of the Ashland on July 8. It is homeported at Little Creek. Commander Rueff lives at 1901 Frizell Drive in Virginia Beach.

Ashland Returns

LITTLE CREEK — The dock landing ship Ashland is home from No Man's Land.

Exercises with two Seabee battalions took the Atlantic Fleet Amphibious Force ship to No Man's Land last week. The small desert island three miles south of Martha's Vineyard in Massachusetts was used for landing practice.

The Ashland, which is homeported at the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base, made two trips to No Man's Land. The ship took a battalion of Seabees on each trip, landing them and leaving them ashore overnight. They were landed by LCU 1473 and its crew from Assault Craft Unit Two, also from Little Creek.

The Seabee battalions are MCB 38 and MCB 40, from Davisville, R.I.

The operation trained the Navy's construction specialists in landing personnel and construction equipment. The battalions were reactivated last year for the first time in 20 years. The Seabees also are scheduled to train with the Marines at Camp Lejeune, N. C.

Back From Med Tour

LITTLE CREEK—Six ships of Amphibious Squadron Six returned Tuesday to end a five-month Mediterranean deployment.

The returning ships are the attack transports USS Cambria (APA-36) and USS Sandoval (APA-194), tank landing ship Walworth County (LST-1164), attack cargo ship USS Ogilthorpe (AKA-100), and dock landing ship USS Shadwell (LSD-15) and USS Casa Grande (LSD-13).

The ships stopped at Morehead City, N. C. Monday, to disembark 1,400 Marines of Battalion Landing Team 1.8. The Marines embarked in the squadron's ships on March 9.

USS Cambria, USS Sandoval and USS Ogilthorpe arrived at the Norfolk Naval Station. USS Shadwell, USS Casa Grande and USS Walworth County arrived at the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base.

Captain Arthur H. Berndtson, Commander Amphibious Squadron Six, commanded the squadron during its deployment. It was relieved as Task Force 61 of the Sixth Fleet by Amphibious Squadron Two, commanded by Captain Raymond M. Harris.

Battalion Landing Team 1.8 was relieved as the Sixth Fleet's Task Force 62 by BLT 2.6.

While serving in the Mediterranean, the returning amphibious task force conducted routine training exercises with other American and allied forces in the area.

VIRGINIA BEACH—A collection of eleven photographs currently on display at the Princess Anne Plaza Office of Virginia National Bank constitutes a salute to the public educators in the City of Virginia Beach.

Included in the collection of formal portraits, photographed and prepared by William McIntosh of McIntosh Studios, co-sponsors of the showing, are the Superintendent of Schools, two Administrative Assistants, and each of the principals of the eight area schools.

VIRGINIA BEACH—A parade of local beauties will be presented at the Civic Center Friday, August 5, from which only one will be chosen to reign for the next year as Miss Virginia Beach. The Miss Virginia Beach Pageant will be an evening of fine entertainment for the audience but serious business for the fourteen young ladies vying for the crown.

How serious they have been learning all this past week with hours of rehearsals for their talents, seemingly simple acts of how to walk, the routine of getting into and out of a dress.

YELLOW SPRINGS, O.—James Phillip Mather, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond J. Mather, 400 Jacqueline Ave., Virginia Beach, is learning to cope with chickens, strangers, kama bligh and the Spanish language this summer as one of 73 Peace Corps trainees, preparing at Antioch College for service in Colombia.

Mather, who completed his junior year at East Carolina College, is taking part in the first phase of an Advanced Training Program (ATP) designed for students between their junior and senior years who plan to serve in the Peace Corps after their graduation in 1967.

The second stage of the training will take place on Mather's home campus where some of his senior year studies and activities will be directed toward deepening and extending his preparation for Peace Corps service. Final training following his graduation will probably be based at the study center in Bogota, Colombia, operated by Antioch for the Great Lakes Colleges Association.

A political science major at East Carolina, Mather is preparing, with the rest of the group, for community action work in both rural and urban areas of Colombia. Mather's preference is for an urban assignment.

The intensive 10-week training program at Antioch comprises a rigorous schedule running from 6 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. with time out for a typical Colombian siesta. In addition to many hours devoted to Spanish language studies, academic work in Colombian history, geography, economics and cultural patterns and the mastery of simple technical and agricultural skills, trainees will receive on-the-job training.

ATP trainees will be sent to work for a week or two this summer with urban renewal projects and social service agencies in the Dayton, O. area and those choosing rural community action will get a week's practical experience at Greenville, national training center for the Grass movement in the U.S., which is located on a 350-acre farm near Loveland, O.

With emphasis placed on the ability to find workable solutions to unexpected problems, trainees have had a considerable range of such situations to practice on this summer—from the care and feeding of 30 chickens suddenly thrust upon them to means of getting along in and finding out about a strange town to which they were individually sent on the Fourth of July weekend with $8 they were expected to bring back.

Mather has been secretary of his college fraternity.

J. H. Moore, Virginia Beach representative of The Lincoln National Life Insurance Company and a member of Roy F. Mitte & Associates, Norfolk, has been named a winner in the company's recent President's Month sales contest, according to an announcement by Henry W. Persons, senior vice president and director of agencies.

In recognition of his achievement in the company's annual month-long drive honoring its president, Moore will receive a personal memento from president Henry F. Root.

Tucker is currently attending his final six weeks of training.

Medals Awarded Posthumously

VIRGINIA BEACH — Five awards of medals for Vietnam service were presented posthumously to Odr. Leonard Vogt at Oceana Naval Air Station at Virginia Beach on July 28.

The commander's widow Mrs. Nancy Vogt, accepted the medals from Rear Adm. Harold G. Bowen, Jr., Deputy Chief of Naval Operations for Development, who flew to Oceana from Washington for the ceremony.

Included in the awards presented were air medals for missions Vogt flew in Vietnam. The medal bore two stars in lieu of additional air medals.

Also presented were the Purple Heart, the Armed Forces Expeditionary Medal, the National Defense Service Medal with a star in lieu of a second medal, and the Secretary of the Navy Commendation for Achievement Ribbon.

Attending the ceremony were Mrs. Vogt and her four children. Vogt's parents also attended the ceremony at which their son was posthumously decorated.

Vogt was serving as the commanding officer of Attack Squadron 75 when he was killed in action. His squadron was the first to take the new A-4 Intruder into actual combat following its introduction in the Navy.

Peter Nero At Virginia Beach

PETER NERO

VIRGINIA BEACH—WAVY Radio and WAVY-TV will present another summer attraction under the Dome by bringing to Tidewater the magnificent piano of Peter Nero on Saturday, August 6, at 8:30 p.m.

Nero, the brilliant 31-year-old pianist, is possessed with a stage personality as rich as his music. He is not only a sensitive music artist, but an entertainer who affords his audiences with a complete complement of serious, comic and captivating entertainment.

His multiple talents all are demonstrated in every media at his disposal, concerts, his RCA Victor recordings, television appearances and motion pictures. MGM's hit comedy "Sunday in New York" was the recipient of his imaginative film score and he appeared in the motion picture as well.

In the past few years Peter has become the most sought after performer by colleges throughout the United States. This past year he played close to two hundred colleges. Earlier this year he also arranged, appeared and recorded with the celebrated Boston Pops Orchestra and RCA records has released his Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" recording with the Boston Pops. His individualistic style has brought him world fame. He is neither a jazz, pop nor classical pianist. His style is all his own.

Tickets are now on sale at the box office at the Virginia Beach Civic Center and at all Carroll's Drive Ins.

Day Of Prayer

VIRGINIA BEACH—A "Day of Prayer for World Peace" will be held at Friends Meeting House, Laskin Road, Saturday, August 6, from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

All members of the community are invited to come to the Meeting House at any time during the scheduled 12 hour period. Those who wish to come and pray at a specific time may call 426-7511.

'The Boyfriend'

"THE BOYFRIEND"

Wedgewood Dinner Theatre, Toano, Virginia. The Boyfriend. Directed by Paul Iddings. Technical Direction by Betty Oliver. Musical Direction by Francis Breeze. Choreography by David McClung. Costumes by Carollee Silcox. Lighting by Stephen Orsback.

Once a year, Wedgewood Dinner Theatre stages a spectacular, mostly as a nice showcase for its summer apprentices. Usually a spirited musical comedy, the production gives all or most of the budding actors and actresses a chance on stage. Such a production, and a nice one at that, is the current bill of fare. It is the tried and true spoof of "The Roaring Twenties". The Boyfriend.

From the first "Do Wacka Do" to the last one, it is a light-hearted, action-packed piece of nonsense and tomfoolery. The Wedgewood production moves at a stimulating pace, creating a wave of excitement onstage that is contagious to members of the audience. In every way, The Boyfriend at Wedgewood is good entertainment. Much of the success of this one can be credited to the unusual and remarkable settings designed by Betty Oliver. The orchestra pit had to be devised, and it was devised well.

The plot, while clever, is really rather loosely defined and even somewhat trite, but no one minds. There is always enough going on to make up for that. The characters range from loud to tender and from hilariously laughable to deeply touching. The slender plot deals with an exclusive girls' school in France during the 20's, operated by Madame Dubonnet, a magnetic romantic with an interesting past. Polly Brown, daughter of a very rich gentleman, is one of the students. She does not have a date for the big ball planned by the school, but pretends she does. Madame Dubonnet, who realizes this, contacts her father who comes to the school. We learn quickly that he has known the head mistress in years past. Meanwhile Polly, posing as a poor girl, so that she can interest a boy in herself and not her money, meets Tony, rich boy posing as a poor boy. There it all gets rather complicated, but as can be expected in a farcical musical comedy, all works out well.

There are no haunting songs in the play that will be long remembered, but the music is good fun. The many dance routines are choreographed by David McClung, who also plays Tony. The choreography is easily the high point of the production. McClung's own dance routines are choreographed by his wife, Sandra, who plays the spirited and cavorting schoolgirl, Malsie. The musical numbers are also staged to perfection by Francis Breeze, who gets the ultimate from her chorus members. Two standout performances worthy of special note are turned in by Claudine Iddings as Hortense, the French maid, and by the versatile Frank Staroba, in the role of Tony's lecherous and laughable father, Lord Brockhurst. Mrs. Iddings and Staroba keep the audience laughing throughout.

Lovely to look at and pleasant to hear is Vi Galvin, a vibrant Canadian import, who does what must rank as the finest job in the show, as the sparkling and sympathetic Madame Dubonnet.

J. C. Calhoun, as Polly's father is perhaps the only member of the large cast who handles his accent well. Most of the other British and French accents are unconvincing. Calhoun's mannerisms are well-studied, and he also has a fine singing voice.

Ginger Montague, as Polly Brown, brings tenderness and a lyrical voice to her role. Lively Sandra McClung, as Malsie, explodes onstage and leads the chorus in several dynamic song and dance offerings.

The chorus must necessarily be the backbone of any musical, and in the Wedgewood production, the members of the chorus prove a strong backbone. The chorus members—mostly apprentices—are Sheri Smith, Betty Bugg, Ellen Sanderson, Ben Brooks, Paul M. Jones, Tom Eaton, Ken Heist and Don Michael. Miss Bugg, although an audience favorite, is perhaps a shade too loud and sharp in an otherwise nice schoolgirl role.

Wedgewood regular Bailey Davis, as schoolboy Bobby Van Heusen and Sandra McClung are well paired, and present a nice team. Carrie Curtis, an apprentice, plays Lady Brockhurst with great finesse, and Joel McClure does a nice job as the gendarme, as does Roger Peacock, as the waiter.

A dramatic and skilled dance routine is performed by Joyce Brown as Lolita and Don Michael as Pepe in a well staged scene. While The Boyfriend will probably not be a long remembered play, the Wedgewood production directed by Paul Iddings, is a lot of fun and a nice summer vehicle.

Cook Elected

FRENCH LICK, IND. — P. S. Cook of Virginia Beach, and Wallace R. Pierson, Jr., of Cromwell, Conn., have been re-elected President and Vice-President, respectively, of the Society of American Florists at its 82nd Annual Convention here.

Cook, Secretary and General Manager of the Norfolk (Va.) Wholesale Floral Corporation, formerly was President of the Wholesale Commission Florists of America, and of the Allied Florists Association of Tidewater. Va. Pierson, Treasurer of A. N. Pierson, Inc., wholesale florist firm of Cromwell, Conn., is a Past President of Roses, Inc., and of the New York Florists Club. He was Treasurer of the Society of American Florists prior to his election as its Vice-President in 1965.

Cook and Pierson were re-elected to one-year terms at the Society's convention, attended by growers, wholesalers, suppliers, and retailers, from coast to coast.

BAILEY DAVIS AND SANDRA MCCLUNG are featured as rich American Van Heusen and Madcap Malsie in Sandy Wilson's light-hearted spoof of the roaring twenties musical comedy, "The Boy Friend," at Wedgewood, Dinner Theatre, Williamsburg, through August 28th. (Photo by Williams)

New Comedy At Cavalier

NORFOLK—The current bill of fare at Cavalier Dinner Playhouse is a spicy comedy by Norman Krassa, Sunday in New York. It opened August 3rd and will play until September 5th.

The plot deals with a young girl who meets a man on a Fifth Avenue Bus. They literally become "attached to each other" when her jeweled pin catches on his coat pocket. And from that moment on the attachment, detachment and reattachment present a hilariously funny situation comedy.

Cavalier Dinner Playhouse producer-director Timothy Jones has relinquished the directorial reins in this production in order to play one of the lead roles. The play has been directed by H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr., Managing Editor of the Virginia Beach Sun.

Ann Fulcher, well known to Virginia Beach audiences for her multifaceted role in the Virginia Beach Little Theatre's production last year of Stop the World, I Want to Get Off plays the female lead.

Others in the cast include Matthew Chait and Terri Lee Reed, both coming directly from Cavalier's successful engagement of Shut the Dark, Vincent Bryant and William Casper.

The play also has one other star—the sofa. The remarkable piece of furniture becomes a byth at Longchamps, a Fifth Avenue Bar, movie theatre seats, a Ferrari, a Japanese restaurant back-ground, and even a sofa.

Performances are given Tuesday through Sunday for the next month and reservations may be made by calling Cavalier Dinner Playhouse. 835-8033

A REVIEW

'Mary, Mary' Well Done

Virginia Beach's Summer Sands Players proved their relation to the players of Vaudeville and Broadway last Saturday night by "making the show go on" to an excellent performance despite the most formidable weather of the season.

With a late start due to the elements, the attendance of more stage-hands than audience, and much more wind and rain than called for in the script, the cast of the summer drama group presented a well-enacted production of Jean Kerr's comedy, "Mary, Mary."

Louise Buxton played the title role of Mary, the ex-wife of Bob McCalloughway, who is at first crushed by a divorce suit and then swifly off her feet by Oscar Nelson, an old friend of McCalloughway's who just happened to come on the scene.

Played by WAVY radio and TV's Horace (Mac) McManus, Nelson cajoles Mary to the edge of a budding romance before his actions arouse a jealousy in McCalloughway that brings him back from a romance with Tiffany Richards to search again for the love of the "girl who was once his beloved bride". Tiffany, played by Susan Epstein, is left without a way's who just happened to come on the scene.

Although the lack of "type casting" made Mary appear about 15 years older than her husband, the actors have answered Director W. B. Covington's cues in creating production of very believable characters.

The production will run through August 7. KEN BLACKWELL

MARIE WHITE and Vincent Baron at the barber shop.

Fire Control Technician 2/c Clyde M. Mosher Jr., USN, husband of the former Miss Sally J. Higgins of 1108 60th Street, has departed Charleston, S. C., for Holy Loch, Scotland, aboard the Submarine Tender USS Simon Lake.

Army Sgt. Virgil W. Rawlins Jr., a paratrooper with the 101st Airborne Division from Fort Campbell, Ky., is at Fort Devens, Mass., as an instructor in the Reserve Officer Training Corps summer training program. Sgt. Rawlins, son of Mrs. Shirley M. Rawlins, 2113 Thoroughgood Road, is a member of Headquarters Company, 2nd Battalion of the division's 501st Infantry.

Male Patrons Like Lady's Haircuts

By Mae Tippo
LYNNHAVEN—"A lady is a barber", and a good one at that is Mrs. Marie White, mother of four grown sons and living in the Princess Anne Plaza area of Virginia Beach.

Marie is well-liked by all the patrons, especially the men and boys. She specializes in flat tops.

Growing up with many brothers, she cut their hair for them as well as her dad, and that was her inspiration for choosing barbering as her career.

She started barber college at Tialia in 1956, left this area, and was a manager of a barber shop in Saugerties, New York. An opportunity to be the first woman barber on a luxury liner came her way, but she chose to come back to Virginia Beach instead, and work with Vincent Brown, manager of the Birchwood Barber Shop.

Vincent retired from the Navy after twenty years of service, and having spent the latter years barbering and finding it interesting and to his liking, he took a refresher course at Grady Barber College, then was named manager at Birchwood.

He and Mrs. White work well together and they keep the customers a happy lot.

Mrs. White's sons are James, 18; Garrick, 14; Duane, 13; and Douglas, 12—all proud of their barber mother.

Pvt. William L. Good, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ormond L. Good, 23th and Cypress, recently completed eight weeks of military police training at the Army Training Center at Fort Gordon, Ga.

Paul E. Brugh, son of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Brugh of 2509 Haven Road, has been promoted to technical sergeant in the U. S. Air Force. Sgt. Brugh is a command post technician at Maxwell AFB, Ala.

TWO MEMBERS of the Williamsburg Sing-Out group sing "Dear Willy", one of the original specialty numbers which precedes a greater number entitled "Freedom Isn't Free." These young people are part of the cast of "Virginia's Sing Out South" coming to the Dome on Tuesday, August 9, at 8:30 p.m.

'Sing Out' Previewed At Ticket Rally

VIRGINIA BEACH—Approximately twenty-five of the more than one hundred young people who make up the cast of Virginia's Sing Out South motored down to the Beach from Richmond and Williamsburg last Sunday night to spearhead a student ticket salesman rally and spread enthusiasm for their musical show appearing at the Dome next Tuesday night.

Drums, guitars, banjos, and even an electronic portable organ accompanied the chorus of talented singers in an outdoor preview of the big "Sing Out" coming here on August 9th.

The natural elements cooperated, providing their own splendid brand of air conditioning. Even natural lighting was donated in generous quantities when the moon rose just as the show started.

Young people from the area, assorted parents, and interested parties all caught the happy spirit of these upbeat young performers.

The cast of Virginia's Sing Out South is made up of college and high school students from Richmond and Williamsburg. A group from Arlington is also to be part of the program, and even some representatives from Baltimore may join in at the last minute.

These various local groups have burgeoned since Sing Out '66 began touring the countryside during the past year. This international group has been appearing at many summer resorts during the past few months and are presently at Cape Cod. Everywhere they go, they are wildly acclaimed, and new Sing Out groups spring up behind them.

Virginia's Sing Out South will be at the Alan B. Shepard Civic Center in Virginia Beach next Tuesday night, August 9th, at 8:30 p.m.

Posters have been distributed all over the Norfolk-Virginia Beach area, and flyers are available to the public at strategic locations. Material for the posters was donated by the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce, and the Department of Parks and Recreation printed the flyers, as well as 2500 tickets at 75c each, which many area youngsters will be selling during this week.

The Food Committee of Galilee Church plans a fried chicken dinner to be served to members of the cast of the "Sing Out" on August 9, from noon until 6:30 p.m. A bus supplied by the Norfolk Academy will transport the cast from the Church to the Dome before show time.

Those interested in buying one or several or even a whole block of tickets in advance may call Richard Hanger at 428-5183. Or they can be purchased at the box office for only 75c.

Doctor (Captain) Julius L. Klein, whose wife, Maureen, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn Mumford of 555 Virginia Beach Blvd., has completed the orientation course for officers of the U.S. Air Force Medical Service at Sheppard AFB, Texas. He is being assigned to Patrick AFB, Fla., to practice as a dentist with the Air Force Systems Command.

Airman Stanley C. Gimbert, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley C. Gimbert of 200 Victoria Drive, has been selected for technical training at Amarillo AFB, Tex., as a U.S. Air Force supply specialist.

Miss Virginia Beach

ting on and off the stage, putting personality into their smiles, and most of all, how to be professional in a natural way.

The Miss Virginia Beach Pageant is one of the most talked-about and looked-forward-to events sponsored by the local Jaycees and all members of the organization work side-by-side with the young ladies to make the annual show better each year.

This year professionals will be in charge of the technical aspects. Producer-director is Cary Wayne from Broadway who is in charge of many of the presidential shows and musical events at the White House. Choreography will be under the guidance of Hugh Johnson, chief of the entertainment branch of the First Army Command. More spot and show lights have been made available from the Army who will furnish the sound and lighting equipment.

In addition to the fourteen contestants presenting themselves for judging, entertainment will be given by Miss America (Deborah Bryant) and Miss Virginia Beach (Kathy Carson) while both Wayne and Johnson will perform for a good segment of the show.

The spectacular pageant's theme will be a "Masquerade Ball" which will add to the excitement and color of Friday's entertainment.

The fourteen contestants and their talents are Barbara Bell, daughter of L. P. Bell, 600 Woodworth Lane, skit; Barbara Craddock, daughter of Mrs. Hazel Jane Craddock, 477 Baldwin street, dramatic reading; Barbara Denning, daughter of Matthew H. Denning, 1828 Ohio Ave., singing; Jayne Eaton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin H. Eaton, 1421 Rittman road, comedy skit; Brenda Lett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Lett, 2821 Mars street, comedy skit.

Jeanette McKee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. McKee, 4213 Sandy Bay Drive, singing; Nancy Miles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Miles, 1901 King Charles Court; Kathleen Niernman, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. L. M. Niernman, 1313 Alston drive, fashion designing; Tamera Nock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm A. Nock, 4042 Rampart Ave., singing; Karen O'Grady, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James P. O'Grady, 453 Kirkwood Lane, art and sculpture.

Mary Jo Parker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George R. Parker, 3837 Shadow lane, piano; Michelle Powell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Powell, 1033 Pickwick road, dancing; Lynn Prangley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy R. Prangley, 4141 Duncannon lane, dancing; and Gail Ward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Ward, 4708 Nolan Ave., dancing.

One of the fourteen girls will be chosen and she will go on to compete in the Miss Virginia contest later, and perhaps even get to Atlantic City and become Miss America.

But no matter who wins or how far she goes, all fourteen will gain something from the contest. Winners are awarded scholarships and other prizes. Jaycee director Bill Stewart has announced that prizes this year will outdo any previous years pageants.

Airman Richard O. Flora II, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard O. Flora of 222 Poplar Point, has been selected for technical training at Lowry AFB, Colo., as a U. S. Air Force munitions specialist.

CAROL LINDSAY speaks to the contestants of the Miss Virginia Beach Pageant, at their first rehearsal in the auditorium of the old Virginia Beach High School. Standing correctly, and speaking in a modulated voice, Carol emphasizes the seriousness of practicing.

Rehearsals Serious Business

Text and Photo—Douglas Barnes VIRGINIA BEACH—On last Friday night, the fourteen Miss Virginia Beach contestants, dressed informally in slacks, shifts, shorts, etc., had their first rehearsal run-down in the Virginia Beach High School auditorium. Giggling nervously and trying to realize the gravity of one of them being selected on Friday night, August 5, in the Civic Center as Miss Virginia Beach, 1965, they received their admonitions.

Bill Stewart, Jaycees' executive entries director; Carol Lindsay, former Miss Norfolk and current model; Bob Kraemer, president, and others were preparing the lovelies for hard work and, in 13 cases, disappointment, in the short time they had before the great night and moment of truth. Kathy Carson and Mrs. Carson were on the front row of the audience, watching and lending their professional and moral support and suggestions.

The girls practiced thing, smiling, personality, stage presence, and walking-getting on and off stage, all of which go to make up a beauty which will be the new Miss Virginia Beach.

Carol, reddish blonde and serious in her effort to be of help, dressed in a yellow linen with several ruffles on the skirt, told the girls that they were still immature in their conception of the seriousness of the contest, that they had to get more self confidence, that they must realize that the contest is a "business", and that their boy friends would have to understand and "help each of you to feel as if you were a queen, although you might have to scrub the kitchen floor at home. Carry your heads high, and create an image of your all American self. Get down to earth in your talent rehearsals, and be on time. This contest is a business, so be serious."

Deborah Bryant, the ruling Miss America will be here for the Pageant. She will appear on the program, as will Miss Virginia Beach, Kathy, Cory Wayne, and Hugh Johnson, all professionals.

The girls' talents include singing, sewing, delivering comedy skits, dancing, dramatizing, sculpturing, painting and good looks and nice figures.

Tomorrow night, at the Alan B. Shepard Civic Center, a new Miss Virginia Beach, who will compete in the Miss Virginia contest later this year, will be announced.

Four Lectures Next Week At A.R.E. School

VIRGINIA BEACH—Dr. Marcus Bach, world traveler and author, known as the foremost authority on contemporary religious movements, will give a series of four lectures at the Association for Research and Enlightenment, 67th Street and Atlantic Avenue as follows: on Wednesday, August 10th at 2 p.m.; on Thursday, August 11th at 8 p.m.; and on Friday, August 12th at 2 p.m. and again at 8 p.m. The subject of the lectures will be "The Awakening and Growth of Consciousness."

Dr. Bach, who holds a Ph.D. from the University of Iowa and honorary degrees from three other universities, has served under the International Educational Exchange program of the State Department as a cultural specialist in southeast Asia and the Orient. He is the author of 12 best-selling books.

These lectures will be a feature of the Association's annual Summer School being held through August 13th and are open to the public. Further information concerning them and other features of the School may be obtained by calling the Association.

Army Pvt. Joseph W. Morse Jr., whose parents live at 3740 Harton Road, recently completed eight weeks of advanced infantry training at Fort Ord, Calif.

Midshipman 1/c Michael P. Currie, son of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Currie of 1117 Chumley road, is on annual summer leave at home after completing his six-week Midshipman Cruise aboard the submarine USS Thresher, which is homeported in Key West, Fla.

Marines Here For Training

LITTLE CREEK—The final increment of Marine Corps Reservists to be trained at the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base this year, arrived here Sunday.

Representing nine different Organized Marine Corps Reserve units from the eastern half of the United States, the final increment of approximately 1,000 Marines will conduct training through August 13. The training will be essentially the same as the 1,000 Reserve Leathernecks who preceded them and returned to their home training centers earlier this month.

While here, emphasis in training will be placed on basic amphibious subjects and will include instruction in wet and dry net debarkation techniques, helicopter vertical envelopment techniques and counter-guerrilla warfare exercises.

Midway in their training, on Saturday, August 6, they'll conduct a ceremonial parade, on the Naval Amphibious Base parade ground adjacent to Rockwell Hall. Step-off time for the parade is 9 a.m. and the public is invited to attend.

The citizen Marines will climax their two weeks annual training duty when they join forces to form a Provisional Marine Expeditionary Brigade for an amphibious assault landing August 12 at Camp Pendleton, Va. Following a critique of the landing, they'll return to their home training center.

Units arriving here Sunday were: 10th Staff Group, Greensboro, N. C.; H & S and I Companies, 3rd Battalion, 25th Marines, Cleveland, O.; K Co., 3rd Bn., 25th Marines, Akron, O.; L and M Cos., 3rd Bn., 25th Marines, Columbus, Ohio.

Also, 4th Motor Transport Bn., Atlantic, Ga.; B Co., 4th Amphibious Tractor Bn., Jacksonville, Fla.; Communications Co., Hq. Bn., Cincinnati, O.; and 17th Rifle Co., Evansville, Ind.

Council Shelves Park Decision Until August 22nd Meeting

VIRGINIA BEACH—City Council has shelved, for two weeks, a resolution calling for the approval of a state park along the water Banks, from the Wildlife Refuge to the North Carolina state line.

City Treasurer V. A. Etheridge asked council to delay its decision until they heard from property owners in the area. "I'm not arguing the merits of the park—good or bad—but I think the property owners should be heard," he said.

Etheridge pointed out that he owned property in the area sought and was completely unaware of the city's resolution. He said the other property owners in the area did not know either.

C. B. (Neal) Owens, one of the representatives from the Virginia Beach Borough said "This is the only oceanfront property we have left. I feel that we should study it more." He then made a motion to hold a public hearing on the matter at the next Council session, which is August 22.

City Manager W. Russell Hatchett told council Monday that the bids for the renovation for the courthouse front were opened last week and the low bidder was Commercial Builders, Inc. Hatchett said their bid was for $12,100—$100 more than the architect's estimate.

Hatchett said the total cost for the whole project, including the architect's fees would be $2,850. Council appropriated the money for the work in a unanimous vote.

In other money matters, council: reappropriated $183,453 for outstanding purchase orders as of June 30, 1965; voted to loan $3,500 to the Ocean Park Volunteer Fire Department for the purchase of additional equipment; appropriated $40,000 for several drainage and pumping projects.

With much less opposition than was expected, council approved applications for zoning changes on 355 acres of land fronting long Independence Boulevard and Absalom Road. Developer Lee A. Gifford plans a $15 million residential-business complex in the area, which will feature homes in the $30-50,000 bracket, apartment houses and a shopping center.

Civitan Club Installs Officers

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Virginia Beach Civitan Club installed its new officers July 19 at the Bay Harbor Club. Those installed into office are: Mayhew Sawyer, president; David Proulx, vice president; Joe Frye, treasurer; and Ed Tymmes, secretary.

MAYHEW SAWYER was installed recently as president of the Virginia Beach Civitan Club.

Sawyer is a native of North Carolina where he graduated from East Carolina College. He taught school in North Carolina for three years, but since he has been in Virginia Beach, he has been in the retail grocery business. He and his wife have two daughters. The oldest is attending East Carolina College and the other will attend First Colonial High School this fall.

His son attends school at Linkhorn School.

Sawyer and his wife Edna reside in the 1100 block of Laskin Road.

The Virginia Beach Civitan Club presents four two-year scholarships each year and contributes toward the support of Camp Civitan, a home and training center for crippled children.

The money for these projects is raised through the sale of Christmas trees, fruit cakes and various other activities.

Beach Scout To Travel

VIRGINIA BEACH—Edward Stevens, Kellam High School Senior, will represent the Princess Anne-Virginia Beach Boy Scout District as a delegate to the Third National Explorer conference to be held in Bloomington, Indiana, August 14-18.

EDWARD STEVENS

The four day convention is expected to draw 3,000 Explorers from all sections of the United States. The delegates will attend classes and participate in competitive events.

The classes are designed to aid the delegates with their leadership abilities when they return to their local Explorer Chapters. Classes include International visits, Post operation, trip planning, and Professional Scouting.

Competitive events that Stevens will participate in include Rifle marksmanship, skeet/shooting, and first aid.

Stevens represents the Explorers from the City of Virginia Beach and was selected on a merit basis by the local Explorer Cabinet which is an administrative and coordinating group composed of two members from each of the 10 Explorer Posts in the city.

Ray Van Drew, adult Explorer leader of Post 62 will accompany Stevens and other area Explorers to the conference.

In other action, Council:

- Allocated, on second reading, $73,107.03 for the city's portion of Wesleyan Drive.
- Unanimously voted to make it a misdemeanor to keep any vehicle on property in residential areas—unless enclosed in a building—that is economically impossible to repair and operate.
- Voted to allocate $7,000 for a revolving fund for office supplies for the purchasing agent's office.
- Assured the Navy that the city will do all in its power to protect the Navy's interests in Lake Joyce and Lake Bradford.
- Appropriated $160,711.50 for gravity and force sewer mains along Birdneck Road. The contract was awarded to Carter-Bell Corp.
- Appropriated an additional $3,391 in architects fees for the addition to the city jail.
- Agreed to rent the F.O.P. Building at $3,000 a year. The department of Finance will move its offices there.
- Acknowledged a request for water supply mains in the Woods of Avalon section of Kempsville.

Marines Will Land Friday

LITTLE CREEK — Commencement exercises are slated for Friday morning at Camp Pendleton for 1300 Marine Reservists.

For the Reservists it is their "graduation day exercise" for which they have been preparing over the past two weeks.

The exercise will take the form of a large scale invasion for the "Green Leathernecks" as they storm ashore at Camp Pendleton, culminating two weeks of amphibious and counter guerrilla warfare training.

Under the guidance of Marine regulars from the Landing Force Training Command, Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base, the men have undergone an intensive indoctrination program. The landing will demonstrate just how well they have learned their lessons.

The first wave of the invasion force will hit the beach at 9:00 a.m. obvious assault capability.

The Provisional Marine Expeditionary Unit landing exercise is open to the public. Beachers will be set up directly adjacent to the landing area for better viewing by spectators and a public address system will be in operation to give an account of the action.

Access to the parking area at Camp Pendleton may be gained through the north gate of the camp, one mile south of Rudee Inlet on Atlantic Avenue. Visitors should plan to arrive by 8:30 A.M. for this summer's final landing exercise.

TWO EMPLOYEES PISTOL-WHIPPED, TROOPER SHOT

Four Suspects Arrested In First National Bank Holdup

VIRGINIA BEACH—The combined efforts of the Virginia State Police, the Federal Bureau of Investigation and Virginia Beach Police Wednesday made quick work of arresting four men for the armed holdup and assault of two employees of the Pembroke Office of First National Bank. The robbery took place at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday, and State Police had detained the four suspects on Interstate 64 in Hampton one hour later.

Virginia Beach Police radioed a full description of the car used in the holdup and the descriptions of the four men involved, and placed a cordon of police in key spots on main roads in Virginia Beach. The suspects apparently left Virginia Beach immediately, however, and eluded Norfolk Police on their flight toward the Hampton Roads Bridge Tunnel, although Norfolk Police had been alerted.

They were apprehended a short time later by State Police after they had left the toll plaza in Hampton. A car answering the description was spotted by State Trooper Martin L. Wizer, 22, in attempting to stop the car, the trooper was shot in the shoulder by one of the men. Moments later a dozen or so State Police cars converged on the scene and captured the gunmen. Wizer sustained only minor injuries but was admitted in satisfactory condition to a Newport News hospital.

Wednesday afternoon the four men were being interrogated by FBI agents and Virginia Beach Police, according to Charles Cusick, Special Agent in Charge of the Norfolk FBI office. The facts of the case were being presented to the U.S. Attorney, said Cusick, and he was expected to secure warrants for violation of the bank robbery statutes. In this case, assault of the two bank employees was expected to be charged also.

The four suspects, reportedly apprehended with the stolen money, were identified by the FBI as: Bobby Gene Ross, 28; Johnnie Samuel Harris, 18; Lawrence Leonard Malry, 22; and McKinley Andrews, 25. All four are Negroes, believed to be from Pennsylvania. Wednesday afternoon the recovered money was being counted, according to Cusick. Bank auditors and officials were also checking to find out exactly how much had been stolen. No figure was available Wednesday afternoon.

though one policeman said, "It was quite a haul." Cusick said he thought $25,000 would be "a little high."

Details of the holdup were still sketchy Wednesday afternoon, because the only two persons who could tell the story firsthand were hospitalized. The branch manager of the temporary bank John O. Neal, and Head Teller, Peggy Evans, were the only two employees in the bank at the time of the robbery. Both were struck repeatedly on the head by the gunmen before they made their escape. Neither appeared to be seriously injured, and both were conscious when taken to Norfolk General Hospital by Davis Corner Rescue Squad. Both were bandaged by rescue squadmen, but it was obvious they had been bleeding profusely about the head. Three of Neal's fingers were bandaged and they were possibly broken. Both were admitted to the hospital and were reported in satisfactory condition.

Police say the gunmen reportedly hit Neal and Miss Evans with pistols, then rifled the cash drawers, taking most of the loose money. They then made their escape in a 1965 or 1967 pink and black automobile bearing North Carolina license plates. No customers were believed in the bank at the time of the holdup, according to the FBI.

The first Virginia Beach policeman on the scene was Patrolman David Embury of the First Precinct. He and fellow officers sealed the bank off until the investigation was complete.

This was the third bank robbery in the Tidewater area recently, but the first in Virginia Beach.

Beach Chief Retires Here

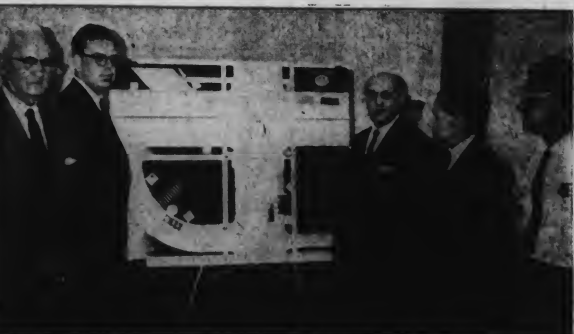

NORFOLK—Navy Chief William A. Askew retired here at the Atlantic Service Force headquarters, ending a 24-year naval career.

Chief Askew, an aviation ordnance officer, entered the service in 1941 and spent the war years at Ford Island, Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. From 1946 to 1960 he served with the Norfolk Naval Air Reserve Training Unit.

During the last two years of his career the Chief was assigned to the Service Force staff where he was an assistant to the Aviation, Strike Ordinance Officer.

Chief Askew, and his wife Alice, consider the Tidewater area their home, having spent 16 years of his duty assignments here. His Askews, and their two younger children, David, 12, and Allison, 22 months, live at 1084 Sanford Ave., in Virginia Beach.

They will remain in the area and he will work at a local firm.

Chamber Off To Toronto

VIRGINIA BEACH—Members of the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce will journey to Toronto, Canada, later this month for the annual Canadian National Exhibition. The largest "fair" in the northern hemisphere begins August 19 and runs through September 5.

Albin R. Mailhes said Wednesday he will attend for the first ten days and will be relieved by administrative secretary Wilma Davis, who will stay the second half.

Mrs. S. G. Mitchell, who is also being sent by the Chamber, will remain in Canada for the full twenty days. She attended the exhibition last year.

Two people will be at a Virginia Beach-Norfolk Booth all through the 20-day period.

The exhibition, in its 12th year, draws approximately three million people each year.

While there, Mailhes said, the Beach representatives will appear on a local television program and will meet with the various Canadian travel agencies. The Beach Chamber will also have a display window on a prominent Toronto Street.

3 DAY CONVENTION

Clerks Meet At Beach

VIRGINIA BEACH—The 56th Annual convention of the Virginia Court Clerks Association will meet at the Cavalier Hotel, for a three day session, which starts today.

John V. Pentress, Clerk of Circuit Court of Virginia Beach is president of the Association.

Registration will begin at 1 p.m. this afternoon followed by a general session in the Colonial Room at 3 p.m. At that time, the clerks will be welcomed by Mayor Frank A. Dusch and will be addressed by the president. After the president's speech, the secretary-traveler will present his report and various committees will be appointed.

This evening will begin with a social hour at the sunken gardens, followed by a banquet sponsored by the city. After dinner, those delegates who wish will attend a dance at the Beach and Cabana Club. Music will be provided by Ted Weems and his orchestra.

Friday will begin with a general session in the Colonial Room at 10 a.m. At that meeting attorney Charles R. Purdy of Richmond will discuss new legislation that affects court clerks.

Declared Insane

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Spruill, Jr., 33, of the 1400 block of Old Virginia Beach road, was found not guilty by reason of insanity in Circuit Court. He had ran down five pedestrians last year and was being tried on five charges of attempted murder and five of hit and run.

He was ordered committed to Central State Hospital, Petersburg, for an indefinite period.

Declared Insane

The four suspects, reportedly apprehended with the stolen money, were identified by the FBI as: Bobby Gene Ross, 28; Johnnie Samuel Harris, 18; Lawrence Leonard Malry, 22; and McKinley Andrews, 25. All four are Negroes, believed to be from Pennsylvania. Wednesday afternoon the recovered money was being counted, according to Cusick. Bank auditors and officials were also checking to find out exactly how much had been stolen. No figure was available Wednesday afternoon.

Declared Insane

Clerks Meet At Beach

While the men are in session, the women will be given a guided tour of Pembroke Mall Shopping Center. After the morning session ends, the clerks will attend a luncheon hosted by the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce.

No business session is scheduled for Friday afternoon, but a boat trip is. The delegates will tour the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel by private yachts. The charter will again pay host to the clerks this evening at a social hour.

The main banquet of the convention will be held tomorrow night in the Virginia Colonial Rooms. The evening's guest speaker will be the Honorable Robert C. Fitzgerald, the state senator from Fairfax.

After the banquet there will be dancing at the Beach Club to the music of Russ Carlyle and his orchestra.

Saturday's session, which is scheduled to begin at 10 a.m. will feature the election and installation of new officers. Prior to the election will be the report of the various committees.

Ballet Benefit Set For Aug. 26

VIRGINIA BEACH — A benefit production of the Tidewater Dance Guild, Inc. (The Thuesen Dancers) will be held at the Alan B. Shepard Civic Center on August 23 at 8:30 p.m. to the benefit of the American Cancer Society.

"Music in Motion Summer '65" will consist of ballets called "Yall Come Do A Hotstanny," "The Lotus Tree," an original ballet choreographed by Barbara Thuesen, adapted from a short story by Anthony Vickers to an original music score by Thomas Rice; "Beautiful Gales," "Jazz Is," and "Clair de Lune," a solo ballet to be danced by Barbara Thuesen.

The Tidewater Dance Guild, Inc. is a non-profit regional ballet company composed of young adults from the Tidewater area. It promotes the finest standards of regional ballet in this area, and aims to develop and give the greatest enjoyment of the ballet to the audience and the dancers, to provide training and performance experience through lecture demonstrations, benefit performances and theater productions.

The members of the company pay no membership fee and the directors receive no remuneration. Members of the Guild have appeared in the Cavalier production of "Terra La Duce," the Virginia Beach Civic Chorus "South Pacific," took part in the Northeast Regional Ballet Festival in Washington, D.C., and has performed for the Business and Professional Women of Haddassah.

Virginia Beach members of the Board of Directors include Thomas Ceremak, Van H. Cunningham, J. Carroll Pears, Mrs. T. C. Ferguson, Mrs. Kay Foulkes, Senator William P. Kellam, J. B. Oglesby, Thomas Rice, and Samuel W. Scott, Jr.

Arrowhead Garden Club Community Beautification

KEMPSVILLE — When a new community builds up, an active garden club soon springs into action. Such is the case at the Arrowhead subdivision. New homes and new neighbors came together and formed the Arrowhead Garden Club just last March.

Though less than six months old, the young club is working diligently to promote neighborhood feelings of pride; and to stimulate interest, are designating the most beautiful and best-kept yard as the "Arrowhead Yard of the Month". The winner has the honor of displaying the large artistically designed plaque on the front lawn for an entire month.

The first winner so designated is the home and grounds of the James Landrum family at 5745 Pontiac road. Their colorful borders of wee flowers surrounding a green velvety lawn and precision-cut bushes show the pride they feel in the home and community in which they live.

Mrs. Landrum does not belong to the garden club. That was one of the rules of the competition; no garden club members were allowed to enter the contest. The club felt non-membership would stimulate a more active participation of the entire community, and interest in the club itself. Mrs. Landrum, though not a member yet, is thinking seriously about joining the active group now.

James Landrum is with the U. S. Navy stationed at Norfolk. They have two sons, Mitchell and Mike. They are all happy to have been selected as having a prize-winning yard. The fact theirs was chosen only proves their hard work in creating and keeping their own particular area beautiful reflects the pride they feel about their home in Arrowhead.

Edward D. McQuitty made the distinctive plaque which is wooden in the shape of an arrowhead with the cut-out letters filled with gold reading "Arrowhead Yard of the Month." Sponsor Arrowhead Garden Club. It is awarded for condition and overall neatness of the yard.

Runners-up in the "yard of the month" contest are Mr. and Mrs. Ramon Albrecht, 5801 N. Pawnee; Mr. and Mrs. Spillane, 5308 N. Pawnee; and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Potter, 5809 Susquehanna Drive.

Aubrey Lane of Wedgewood Nursery headed the panel of judges in the selection of the winners. Other judges were Mrs. James L. Krantz, beautification chairman of Arrowhead Garden Club; Mrs. Edward D. McQuitty, first vice-president; and Mrs. William M. Austin, president.

A new yard will be selected each month by the Arrowhead Garden Club to display the plaque.

Party Line . . . By OLGA EDWARDS

Photos and Text by Douglas Burtis, Guest Writer

Rainy nights bring out the "Gad About" in a lot of people. Some like to stay indoors and passively watch television; others prefer to actively engage in some form of hard work, be it physical, mental, or both; and when the Auxiliary of B.P.O.E. No. 2288 of Virginia Beach staged a Dutch Buffet last week, it became a party.

The Elks' Lodge is located in the Jefferson Hotel at 19 and Atlantic, and the decor is new, tasteful, and colorful.

As we entered the large ballroom, and hung our drenched coats to dry, Charlie Tucker, with a smile as sunshiny as the canary yellow sport shirt he was wearing, greeted us. "Charlie" was taking up tickets, seated at a small round table—helping the ladies. A low black urn filled with a bouquet of brilliant summer flowers, chased away the rain blues.

Crowds of people—entire families, dates and their friends, strangers out of the rain, and Elk husbands were already finishing their meal; more were forming a line at the long Buffet table, to which each Auxiliary member had contributed a dish. Ethel Ottinger, president, Sarah Day, John Adams, and Mrs. Stephen Kota were working hard in the kitchen arranging the dishes of potato & chicken salad, baked beans, slaw, deviled eggs, mixed greens, hot rolls, and other delectables. They rushed in and out, keeping everyone happy. A huge array of ice-cold watermelon slices filled another long table as dessert, while "serve-yourself coffee" enticed the diners again and again for another cup.

We sat with Mr. Kota, and as he was remarking how hard his wife was working, she rushed from the kitchen, saying, "Steve, go to Colonial and get some more potato salad—we're out!" Steve must have had a tiger, etc. because he was back in no time, saying "I got it, and I ran all the way!" Ah, Women!

Frank Farino, present with Mrs. Farino, announced a White Elephant Sale for one of their numerous charities, to be held in Harrell's Drug Store on 19th St., beginning on the 13th and 14th, and continuing until everything was sold. It is sponsored by the Auxiliary. "Anything can be used," said Ethel Ottinger. He also spoke of a Cake Sale at the same time, and announced that the American Showcase of Music, tentatively set for Sept. 17th and 18, an Elks' Chorus Project, was also in the air, though male voices were still needed.

Trustee Robert L. Simpson, and Mrs. Simpson attended. "I've been in court all day," he remarked. "We're starved." Others who braved the rain were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Curran (Exalted Ruler) and little Beth, Mrs. Mary Murray, Mrs. Edgar White, Mrs. Edith White (from Norfolk), Mrs. Joseph L. Hunt, Mrs. Edith Shea, Elk Chaplain Winfred Crum and Mrs. Crum and party, and many others.

Wedding Guests

VIRGINIA BEACH—Present for the wedding of Miss Eve Brookie Ellis Jr. and Martin Harry Adams which took place Saturday were many out-of-town guests.

Included on the guest list were Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Schmidt of New Orleans, La.; Mr. and Mrs. James P. Bauckis, Miss Cynthia Bauckis and Robert Bauckis of Panama City, Republic of Panama; Mrs. James C. Keith of Fayetteville, North Carolina.

Also Mrs. Margaret Franklin, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Vanderbeck and Miss Doris Vanderbeck of Elizabeth, New Jersey; Mrs. Jody Samian and Kurt Samian of Mahwah, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Gerald B. Abraham of Murfreesboro, Tennessee; Mr. and Mrs. Jido Capay of Arlington, Va.

And Mr. and Mrs. William M. Senon of Richmond, Mr. and Mrs. William Roberts and Miss Jacqueline Roberts of Williamsburg, Miss Nina Robson of Charlottesville, and Miss Lucy Dahl Johns and Miss Agnes Johns of Farmville, Virginia.

In 1888 most of Norfolk's marketing and shopping was done in Commercial Place.

. . . Then H. D. Oliver had been serving Tidewater 23 years.

For many years Norfolk has been its fresh produce, meats and fowl from the local farms and markets in Commercial Place. When this photograph was taken in 1888 H. D. Oliver had also been filling a community need for dignified, respected funeral and burial services for nearly a quarter of a century. Today H. D. Oliver still provides the community's most respectful services, with an experienced staff and gracious modern facilities, including a brand new home in Virginia Beach, to assure you of the best. Call on H. D. Oliver to serve you.

LET'S TALK FASHION

By ALICE BREWER WHITE

From slick to soft is the theme of the latest teen Fall fashions. "Boysish, girlish, shiny, wooly, furry, funny, jivy, color crackling, military and Carnaby clothes click for back to school and books" is the way the teens' favorite Seventeen magazine puts it. They range from red and yellow striped vinyl patent coats and leather-look pants suits to jewel-toned Paisley print dresses and pale, moire gowns. Short skirts flip, often from the hip, with pale casual shoes and textured hose completing the look. Shiny coats, skirts, boots and hats lead the crackle color parade, joined by snaps of skirts in eggplant with red, yellow or avocado diamonds. Soft real French rabbit coats are stenciled to look like giraffe, zebra or tiger. Geometrics play the pattern game in offset checks, striped or zigzags of red, orange or plum.

BOY LOOKS

New boy looks are commanded by the military, with navy C.P.O. shirts, pea jackets and officers' coats. "Speedster" pants suits include camels, brushed plaids, "leather", corduroy and buckskin. Jeans mean pants and skirts, too, to wear with flowered shirts. Variety streaks in with horizontal stripes, cheering boldly in red, yellow, orange and plum. Single-breasted jackets make suits with no waistband skirts, and ribby sweaters go with patterned skirts.

CARNABY AND ALL THAT!

Carnaby street comes to the U.S.A. with its now-popular English touch, with English riding jackets, Edwardian styles, four-in-hand ties, vests, foulards, checks and pin stripes.

GIRL LOOKS, TOO!

Fashions that are casual but elegant in the back-to-school wardrobe indicate that with all the above "looks" the girl looks are here, too. The charm of unexpected colors and fabrics glows in purple crepe, playful again, pale blue for a fluid shift dress that breaks into a sudden flare, and in corduroy skirts shown with crepe skirts in three surprise combinations: pink and green, purple and banana, orange and plum. Victoriana makes a romantic evening with ribbon and lace-trimmed gray, black or claret. Paisley takes covered-up smock and skimmer shapings, and jumpers with deeply cut-away sides to wear over ribbed sweaters are a real fall find. For evening, ripple-patterned blue or pink moire glimmers in short bow-trimmed skimmers or long Empire gowns. Simple, pared-away T dresses glitter with the sheen of silver.

ENSEMBLES GOOD

Dress-plus-coat makes the newest ensemble news. Corduroy, check or plaid coats go over skiny dresses with matching skirts and solid bodices.

THOSE FUN LOOKS!

Fun looks means that a girl can pick up mischief in little-boy knickers, go on a cape or beach caper, play cavewoman in fake tiger or leopard skirts and vests or enjoy some Merlin magic in sweaters blocked, banded or patched with jester colors. She might play Sedie Hawkins in a down-country shirt plus a jumper or suspended skirt, or copy a pilot in an authentic-looking aviator's suit complete with matching hat and curly pile collar and lining. So, there you have the general teen Fall fashion picture and if you shop around the many well-stocked stores and fashion shops at Virginia Beach you'll be able to find many of these Carnaby, Boy, Girl and Fun Looks in the current back-to-school taggery.

Committee Will Meet Tonite At PAHS

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Tide, water Committee to Promote the Schwarz-Philbrick Anti-Communism Rally will meet next Thursday evening, August 11th, at 8 p.m. in the Princess Anne High School Auditorium, 4400 Virginia Beach Blvd., Virginia Beach.

The meeting is open to the public and all patriotic Americans are invited to attend. Progress reports on current promotional efforts and anticipated activities will be discussed.

This meeting is expected to reveal the extent of support the Committee has been able to generate for the Rally to be held at the Alan B. Shepard Civic Center on September 2nd which will feature Fred C. Schwarz—noted authority on the Communist mind, Herbert Philbrick—former FBI counteragent, and Miss Janet Green—patriotic folksinger.

Arthur G. Tucker has been named to the dean's list in Virginia Tech's College of Engineering for the spring quarter.

LESLEY'S FUN-TYPE HAT

Singing-star Lesley Gore and junior college student at fashionable Sarah Lawrence College, says "The casual, sporty type clothes that are most of our college wardrobe need a topping-off if you want to have an 'original' look to your own appearance." Here Lesley wears this perky "Robin Hood" gold velvet Adolph II designed hat with her gold-buttoned golden waffle wool cape.

'Jumping Beans' At Seaside

VIRGINIA BEACH—Leo and Josephine Gasca, billed as "The Mexican Bounding Wire Sensations," are the free circus act at Seaside Amusement Park, Virginia Beach, this week.

This team performs a bounding routine on the slack wire, which impels the jovial Leo Gasca to refer to his group of performers as "Mexican jumping beans."

This is the second season the Gascas have appeared in the Norfolk area. They present their act twice daily, at 2:30 and 10 p.m., on the park's outdoor stage.

The Frolics, dance spot at Seaside Park, has the "Hang-5 Mann" six piece recording combo on a return engagement. The group plays every night and for jam sessions Saturdays and Sundays, starting at 11 a.m.

Less than four weeks of the Seaside Amusement Park season remain for resort visitors and homeowners to take advantage of the Atlantic surf bathing on the park's clean, alertly patrolled beach; the variety of thrill rides with separate, small-scale copies for the youngsters in an area set aside especially for them; the frugging and twisting at the "Frolics," the free picnic area and the other entertainment features which may be enjoyed at any time regardless of weather conditions, for virtually the entire park is under rain and sun-proof shelter.

Admission to Seaside Amusement Park is free.

Vows Exchanged

MRS. MARTIN HARK' ADAMS

ADAMS-ELLIS

VIRGINIA BEACH—Marriage vows were exchanged by Miss Eve Brooke Ellis Jr. and Martin Harry Adams on Saturday at 4 p.m.

MRS. STEVE SMITH

SMITH-BRIDGES

VIRGINIA BEACH—The marriage of Miss Nancy Bridges and Steve Smith took place July 23 at 2 p.m. in the Beach Grove Methodist Church. The Rev. Roy R. Jackson, pastor, performed the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Bridges of Virginia Beach. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Betty Smith of Virginia Beach and Frank Lloyd Smith of Largo, Florida.

Those attending were Mrs. Norman Bridges, mother of the bride; Norman Bridges Jr., brother; Betty Kight, Barbara Bridges and Jackie Bell, sisters of the bridegroom; Eleanor Fay Cartwright, cousin, and Frank Lloyd Smith, father of the bridegroom.

The reception was held at the home of the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Betty Smith. The couple will live at 416 Norfolk avenue, Virginia Beach.

The former Miss Bridges was a student at Kellam High School. Mr. Smith is employed by the City of Virginia Beach.

Brooklyn Girl Wins Title

VIRGINIA BEACH—A 15-year old girl from Brooklyn who has been vacationing here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Pico, was declared the winner of the Miss Teen Queen Contest held Sunday afternoon at Seaside Park.

Andrea Pico will be a rising junior at Bishop McDonald High School back home, but for the past 2 weeks she has been with her parents at the Sea-Sun Motel enjoying their annual vacation spent at Virginia Beach. An older sister, Susan 19, is with them also.

Mr. Pico who is employed as a meter tester by Consolidated Edison in New York has been bringing his family to Virginia Beach for the past eight years for his vacation. They are all very familiar with the Miss Teen Contest held each summer at Seaside Park as another daughter, Mary Jo, now married, had been a runner up two years in a row. But this year little sister walked off with the title.

Andrea is a little over five feet tall and her 106 pounds is well distributed over her small frame. Her long dark hair and dancing brown eyes speak of her delight at being "Miss Teen Queen."

Official judges of the contest were the "Fabulous Footnotes" who declared her the winner over 10 other contestants. A cash prize was awarded her, which she liked receiving, but she wished she had a trophy to take back home. "Money is spent too fast," she says, "and I'll have nothing to show my friends."

Engagement

HIX-RUEGER

ROCKY MOUNT, N. C. — Mr. and Mrs. John Alfred Hix announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Frances Alfred Hix, to William Louis Rueger.

Mr. Rueger is the son of Mr. & Mrs. Louis Rueger III, of Richmond and the late Mr. and Mrs. William Archibald Brown of Richmond and King and Queen County. Miss Hix is attending the County College of Virginia in Richmond.

Mr. Rueger is a graduate of Randolph-Macon College where he was a member of Kappa Alpha Order.

An early October wedding is planned.

Rehearsal Dinner

VIRGINIA BEACH—Mrs. Norman Adams was the hostess to a rehearsal dinner held at the Little Creek Officers Club last Friday evening, following the wedding rehearsal for the Ellis-Adams ceremony.

About forty guests of the wedding party were present. Mrs. Adams is the mother of the bridegroom and from Elizabeth, New Jersey.

Midsummer Night's Dream . . . Again

We had a recurring dream again the other night. We dreamed there were fine cocktail lounges in the larger hotels, motels and restaurants in Virginia Beach. We dreamed what a nice business they were doing and about the quiet respectable clientele. We dreamed happily of the large amounts of tax revenue the City of Virginia Beach was gleaming from the sales of liquor-by-the-drink in these establishments. Then we awoke to the reality of the situation.

If all had gone well, Virginia Beach would have local option sale of alcoholic beverages this summer. Our delegates in the House of Delegates and our State Senator certainly pushed for it. They spoke out in favor of it. They garnered a strong task force in favor of it. They did everything in their power. But, as is well-known, all the efforts failed, and liquor-by-the-drink in Virginia Beach or anywhere else in Virginia remains only a dream.

We are hopeful that the close vote on the issue in the last session of the Virginia General Assembly is indicative of a favorable vote in 1968. We hope that many of the "old guard" members have finally seen the importance to the economy.

So to our tourist friends, who continue coming to Virginia Beach every year looking for a nice cocktail lounge, we ask you to bear with us a little longer. It looks good for 1968, or at least we hope so.

The arguments against liquor-by-the-drink are getting feebler and less important with each passing day, and barely make any sense. The arguments in favor get stronger with each passing day. It must be remembered that most persons and groups who are fighting liquor-by-the-drink are really fighting alcoholic spirits. They refuse to recognize the fact that the spirits have been around quite awhile, and that it is up to the individual whether he wishes to partake.

For those in favor of this local option, we do not feel it is too soon to let it be known to your elected representatives. When the time comes for another vote in the Virginia General Assembly, perhaps the forces in favor of local option, liquor-by-the-drink will be as organized as those forces against. Then perhaps the issue can be completely aired on its merits and not on an emotional and sometimes pseudo-religious basis.

We strongly favor liquor-by-the-drink on a completely and strictly controlled basis in Virginia Beach and any other community in Virginia that wishes it.

The Passing Of The Crown

Kathleen Carson, in her active year as Miss Virginia Beach, has served the city well, and has made us all proud to have her representing us in the many functions she has taken part in. Not only is Miss Carson a charming, talented and attractive young lady, but she also has a radiant personality which has endeared her to many she has met during her year's reign.

In the Miss Virginia Pageant Miss Carson was first runner-up, an important position. In the event that the reigning Miss Virginia cannot perform her duties, Miss Carson will step in. We are extremely proud of her achievements.

Now another charming, talented and attractive young lady takes over. Miss Carson has passed the crown to Joy Lynn Prangle, better known as Lynn. She is a most poised winner with a winning smile. We feel certain she will carry on in the traditions set by Miss Carson and all other past winners. Miss Prangle will now have a year to prepare herself for the Miss Virginia pageant in Roanoke. Although we still do not approve of the year's wait situation, it seems to have paid off for Kathy Carson. Perhaps history will repeat itself.

Whether Miss Prangle goes on farther or she wins the Miss America title is of little consequence. We believe we have a real winner again this year and we'll be rooting for Lynn Prangle, the new Miss Virginia Beach, all the way.

We also offer our congratulations to the Jaycees for the fine job done by them in this year's Miss Virginia Beach pageant. The show is getting bigger and better every year through the hard work of those dedicated fellows. And getting the reigning Miss America to be there was a fine added touch.

A Solution, Please

A few weeks ago, we complained of the need of road work in one section of Malibu. A few short days later, the City dropped a mess of rocks and a few buckets of tar there, and the situation was fine for awhile. Then it rained, and what a big mess again. Something must be done on a permanent basis, so that the residents there do not have to worry about the chuck holes and a new tire alignment everytime they drive on the streets. And incidentally Plaza Trail, in its one block on the north of Virginia Beach Boulevard was part of that "paving job". It looks and feels like it was paved with the new "ridgies" potato chips. A solution, please. . . .

DOUBLE - CROSS FIRE

The Virginia Beach Rescue Squad

The month of August has been set for the fourteenth annual fund raising drive of the Virginia Beach Rescue Squad, Inc. We always support the work of all rescue squads, and strongly urge participation by all Virginia Beach Borough Citizens in this fund-raising campaign.

There are 42 dedicated members of the squad on call 24 hours a day, and supported entirely through contributions, and its services are entirely free to everyone, tourist and resident alike.

During the past year, the squad answered the call of nearly 2,000 people. The majority of those people have been in serious trouble, and the squads were on the scene in moments going about their work promptly, efficiently and competently. What better recommendation can any group have?

The Virginia Beach Rescue Squad was formed in 1952 with only 18 men and has grown considerably as the demand for men and equipment has grown. Now the squad has the best

Over The Top This Time

Last year the United Communities Fund goal for Virginia Beach Borough was not reached. It lacked three hundred dollars of that goal in a year when business set new records and had businessmen and merchants happier than we have ever seen them.

This year reportedly business is even better and new records are again being set, and the Beach Borough UCF campaign begins Monday. We hope this time that businessmen and merchants will help meet the goal and even surpass it.

The UCF campaign is run separately in the Beach Borough, and is held in August before so many business establishments close around Labor Day. The regular campaign for the rest of Virginia Beach is still some time away. Conducting the campaign at this time certainly should bring in more money than at a later time.

Because it is the only completely organized charity conducting a unified campaign which will benefit a large number of smaller charitable organizations and many worthy people, we urge the support of all Beach Borough citizens in making this year's campaign a complete success. We fully believe in the work of UCF and we are thankful for its existence. The Fund does an excellent job all year long in our city and deserves full co-operation now and throughout the year.

One of the organizations as yet not included in the Beach Borough UCF distribution formula is the Hospitality House in the old hospital, which has been so actively successful this summer. We would like to see it included in the Fund and financially supported by it for a year round basis of operation. This has been a great attraction to tourist and area servicemen and we think it can best serve needs of these people by being open all year. It must therefore become part of UCF, and the sooner the better.

available emergency equipment and the men who know how to use it.

The operation of the squad requires large expenditures in the upkeep of existing equipment and the acquisition

All contributions to the Virginia Beach Rescue Squad are tax deductible. The squad is soliciting public help. We urge your co-operation.

In its appeal letter this year, the squad was asked to enclose a Red Cross brochure concerning swimming. The members gladly added this brochure in the hope it could save perhaps one life. Since the letter went to so many people, Red Cross workers were grateful for the mass distribution.

Because of the change of address of some addressees or for other unexplained reasons, several letters were returned. A member of the squad told us he hoped that anyone who did not receive an appeal letter would not feel slighted. We add to that with this thought. . . . Even though you did not get a letter in the mail, you can still contribute financially to the fine work done by these gentlemen, and we hope you will.

One-Third Is Finished

According to the latest figures, one-third of the work on the newly named Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway is finished. The road is not scheduled to open until the end of next year, and the work is proceeding nicely on time or slightly ahead of schedule.

The excellent weather (hated by the farmers) this summer helped considerably, and construction crews took full advantage of it. They have been working around the clock on the road, and wherever one looks in the path of the road these days, he can see a mass of activity.

In case memory is short, it was just about a year ago that the first stages began. We could see stakes beside the road in many places, and here and there houses, businesses and even a service station were being moved out of the soon-to-be-built roadbed. But that was all.

For the casual observer we suggest a good look today, a year later, along that same route. Man-made mountains have risen. Creeks have been filled. Bridges and overpasses have been built. Thousands of tons of dirt have been moved. A road is being built, and the work is now one-third finished.

From time to time we have pointed out the lack of traffic problems due to the building of the new road. We still congratulate the construction crews, The City Fathers who planned ahead for this and to the Virginia Beach Police and Auxiliary Police who have done such a fine job in averting real trouble.

The worst is over. The first third of the work is the messy stage. Now we get into the hard work of just building the entire road. One year has passed, and we have come a long way. Think what it will be next year this time. Then think how wonderful it will be when it is finished and has alleviated so many of our traffic problems.

THE BEACH THIS WEEK

Virginia Beach police have issued a warning to register all bikes because the Juvenile Bureau is planning a crack-down on the unregistered ones. The registration stickers would act as a deterrent to the bike stickers may be purchased for $1 from the Princess Anne Court House headquarters of the Second Precinct at 10th and Ayle Ave. Owners caught without the registration stickers will be subject to a $10 fine.

Staff Sgt. Roy A. Fitzgerald Jr., who is stationed at Ft. Story has been named "Soldier of the Year" of the Army Defense Command's 5th Region. Fitzgerald, his wife and their three children live in Trailer City in Virginia Beach. He won the title in recent competition with men from air defense units in Florida, Texas, and Alabama. He is a native Virginian, born in Augusta.

City Manager W. Russell Hatchett has been authorized to apply for federal aid to purchase Norfolk's Green Run Farm. The city decided to purchase the farm last month after Norfolk's city council approved the transaction. The portion the city is buying will cost about $340,000. It will be used as a recreation area, providing camping, hiking trails and bridal paths.

Fighter Squadron 11, which is stationed at Oceana Naval Air Station has received the Chief of Naval Operations annual safety award. The award is presented each year and is based on the squadron's number of accident-free hours. VF-11 posted a record of 2,750 hours, which included more than 1,000 carrier landings.

City Sergeant John E. Marr has been re-elected treasurer of the Virginia State Sheriff's and City Sergeants' Association. The association held its convention recently at Roanoke.

Nearly 3,000 Citizens Band radio enthusiasts are expected to travel to Virginia Beach Sept. 17 for a two-day convention.

The first of the band for the Tidewater area and will be held at the Virginia Beach Civic Center. The event is being co-sponsored by CJB (Citizens Band) and Norfolk. About 50 displays of different equipment will be shown during the two-day affair. The group is also sponsoring a dance at the Cavalier Beach and Clubhouse Sept. 17.

City Engineer, Charles Kiley, told the VIRGINIA BEACH SUN Monday at City Council meeting that the $36,000 crane which the city is buying to build a marina is expected to be delivered on the 15th. Kiley said the federal government's demand on such items has made it difficult for the company to deliver. He added that the work on the marina cannot begin until the crane is delivered.

Six-year-old Benjamin Craig Williams, who was struck by a car while attempting to cross the road at Robb's Corner Monday night, died Tuesday morning at Du Paul Hospital in Norfolk. The youth, according to hospital officials, died of head injuries. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Williams and lived in the 1700 block of Lawson Road.

Civic Center Director Sam Scott said Wednesday that more than 1,000 people attended the "Sing Out, South" program staged Tuesday evening. A group of young people, nearly 100, patterned the show after the national tour "Sing Out '66" which took notice by storm. They offered instrumental groups and choruses from Williamsburg, Richmond, Arlington, and Baltimore Sing Out groups.

THE VIRGINIA BEACH OPEN FORUM

Gentlemen:

I am attempting to trace the origin of my Great Grandfather, Bartlett B. Munden, born about 1807, died 1848, who lived in the Mr. Pleasant area of Norfolk County between 1827 and 1848. It is said that he was born in England.

He married Catherine Etheridge, daughter of Frances Etheridge and sister of Samuel Etheridge in 1832.

From the County records it is possible that John Munden, who lived in the same area was his uncle or maybe an older brother.

My particular interest is where Bartlett B. Munden was born and his parent's names. Any other information that is available will be very much appreciated.

If your paper carries a feature such as "Letters to the Editor" will you please print this request for information as time and space permits.

Yours truly,
J. W. Munden

Dear Sir:

It has come to my attention that our city's School Board is not working through the will of the majority of the people but to suit the wishes of a small minority.

To many people, I am sure, the naming of a school is a petty thing. To the School Board members and a small group of their followers the naming of a school—the new high school on First Colonial Road—has become a full-scale war between themselves and over 5,500 students and citizens who wish to maintain the traditions of Virginia Beach High School. I attended the meeting held on August 1, 1966, at which the school's name was decided upon through a compromise. I feel that this is outrageous! At this meeting there were approximately 200 citizens and students present to support the name Virginia Beach High School and only 3 supporters of the name Oceana. I definitely feel that the wishes of over 200 citizens should prevail over those of 3 people.

Among the V.B.H.S. supporters were the President of the Parents League of the said school, the chairman of the Virginia Beach Luncheonette Association, Mr. Axel, Mrs. Frank Klapper (all voters of the city of Virginia Beach), and several students. Speaking for the name Oceana, however, were

Many of us who are involved with this school and are deeply concerned about its name will be able to vote in the next election of our Town Council. Therefore I feel that our city's young people and their ideas will have a great impact on its future and should thus be given more of the consideration of the city officials.

Sincerely yours,
Janet Litchfield

Dear Mr. Lowenthal:
As a long-time subscriber to The Sun, I would like to add my congratulations to you for continuing to keep The Virginia Beach Sun the most readable weekly paper, giving us the feeling of friendship with all the Beach people, through your reporting of local events, and the excellent camera coverage by Cassandra, who seems to get to so many interesting viewpoints both in her writing and pictures.

The only thing I miss in the Sun is the review of real estate transactions that used to be published from the information on file at the Courthouse.

So thanks for a friendly paper for a really friendly town. Very truly yours,
Mrs. D. R. Dalby

Tax Series Starts Today

VIRGINIA BEACH—Beginning September first, the cost of living across the Old Dominion will go up noticeably. On that date, the State will impose its two per cent sales and use tax, and most cities, towns and counties will tack on an additional one per cent. Generally speaking, the consumer will pay about three cents more on every dollar he spends, with certain limitations and restrictions.

The new law is a complicated one. Seminars have been held throughout the state informing businessmen and merchants about the tax and how to cope with its collection and reporting. Seminars are being held also for consumers. The Virginia Retail Merchants Association has compiled, copyrighted and circulated a most comprehensive question and answer study of the new law. The Virginia Beach Sun will publish the text of this study in this issue and the next two issues prior to September first.

In Virginia Beach there will be a two per cent sales tax imposed by the State and one per cent imposed by the City. In addition, City Council has levied a special one per cent tax on lodging and food, the revenue from which is used for erosion control and dredging projects and the like. The funds are not so earmarked in the budget, however.

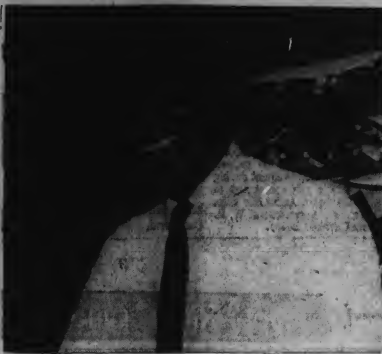

In 1968, the State is expected to enact an additional one per cent sales tax, causing the additional burden to be as much as 5 cents on a dollar in some places. Where food and lodging are concerned Virginia Beach would be a good example.

Virginia is one of the last states in the Union to impose a statewide sales tax, and the percentage is still far below many other states. The statewide tax was enacted at the last session of the Virginia General Assembly after many Virginia cities had already imposed their own sales taxes. Va. Beach has had a two per cent sales tax with certain restrictions since June, 1966. There has been a three per cent tax on food and lodging for several years. So in Virginia Beach the new bite will only be a penny higher on every dollar.

The tax series, to be found elsewhere in this section of the newspaper, should answer many questions. Any questions left unanswered, however, may be referred to the Virginia Beach Commissioner of Revenue's office, the Virginia Department of Taxation or the Virginia Retail Merchants Association.

Letter Written On Lakes

VIRGINIA BEACH—Lakes Bradford and Joyce may be a little closer to purchase from the city of Norfolk, according to steps taken at the Monday meeting of City Council which approved a letter pledging two vital points to the Navy.

ONE OF VIRGINIA BEACH's smaller private clubs is the Cape Henry, located in the Americana Motor Lodge. Dancing to the tunes of "Woody" the pianist is enjoyed during the weekends, and the refreshment bar is open each afternoon at 5. Here the candid camera catches Rodney Miles (whose family has worked at the Americana for many years) preparing to open the club. Miles is studying for his Master's degree this summer at Hampton, and is a teacher of mathematics at Kempsville High school. His smile is because he has a three-month old son, his first.

VANDALS OR UNSUPERVISED CHILDREN have been causing much distress to the members of the Lake Smith Garden Club whose important project has been the beautification of the entrance of their area "Lakeview Park". The ladies not only spend much time picking up trash that the litterbugs spread, but they also find themselves frantically replacing missing letters in their entrance sign. The Club was awarded a prize early last spring by the Federation of Garden Clubs for their efforts at beautification. Is all their work to be for nothing?

Beach Miss At Banquet

NORFOLK—Colonel C. W. Woodson, Jr., superintendent, Virginia Department of State Police, will be the principal speaker at the Virginia Truck Rodeo "Banquet of Champions" Thursday night. The banquet will be held at the Lake Wright Motor Lodge. It will start at 6 P. M.

The banquet will officially open the Virginia Truck Rodeo. Written examinations will be given contestants after the dinner, and driving tests start Friday morning at Janss Shopping Center.

Councilman Paul Schweitzer will officially represent the City of Norfolk and deliver a speech of welcome.

Banquet guests will include Rodeo contestants and their wives, state officials, members of the press, and safety officials throughout the state. Approximately 200 are expected to attend.

Shearer C. Bowman, Jr., President of the Virginia Highway Users Association will head a delegation of VHUA officials who will attend the banquet. E. H. Williams, Jr., Executive Vice-President of the association will act as master of ceremonies.

One of the special guests at the banquet will be Miss Roddy of 1966, Miss Georgia Anne Bick of Virginia Beach.

Presentation of awards will be at the shopping center Saturday noon.

Champions will receive $1,125 in cash awards, trophies and the right to represent Virginia in the national Rodeo championship in Minneapolis, Minn., September 18-21.

AL CRAFT, president of the Seahawk Gridiron Association presented new uniforms to First Colonial's High School's head football coach Lew Brecklove and Principal James Mounie Wednesday morning in the First & Merchants National Bank conference room. The uniforms, for the "Patriots", sport the school's colors, blue and white. The presentation was the last act of the now defunct association.

Fund Drive Starts Monday

VIRGINIA BEACH—The United Community Fund drive for the resort borough of Virginia Beach will begin August 15, according to drive co-chairman Robert Gay. The other co-chairman is Earl Slattum.

The workers held a meeting last night and mapped out last-minute plans for the drive. Those with special groups are: Mike Savides, restaurants; Bill Decker, hotels and motels.

The "small business" group will be divided into several sections and a captain will head each particular section. Those captains will be named at a later date.

Gay said this year's goal is $5,000 and he hopes that all business leaders, managers and presidents of firms will donate one per cent of their gross annual income to the drive. "We believe that with the business boom in Virginia Beach our goal will be exceeded," he said.

"Success is indicated by the number of people that have agreed to work on the drive," Gay added. "In the past, we in the beach borough have not made our fair share to the city-wide drive, but we have improved each year. 'We believe that this year will succeed', he noted.

Servicemen In The News

why does the fish in Cap'n John's frozen fish dinners taste fresh-cooked?

Because you cook the fish.
It takes no longer than heating pre-cooked frozen fish...only 20 minutes.
You see, we're sort of fanatics about fresh fish flavor.
So we refuse to pre-cook the fish.
Here's what we do:
We dip the fillet in milk batter.
Bread it. Top it with butter.
We blanch the peas.
Partly cook the potatoes.
So everything's done at once (in only 20 minutes) when you cook it.
The result.
A fish dinner that tastes like the fish is fresh-cooked.
It should. Because it is.
One important tip.
Be sure the oven is really pre-heated to 400° F.
Are our Cap'n John's Frozen Fish Dinners a good reason for shopping A&P?
They're one of many.

VIRGINIA BEACH ANGLERS had a billfish off Oregon Inlet—When this party of five Virginia Beach anglers went Gulf Stream fishing last week off Oregon Inlet with Capt. Chick Craddock aboard his cruiser "Lollipop" two of them hooked billfish. L. E. Radford and R. N. Menzel accounted for the white marlin and sailfish. Others in group, flanking Radford and Menzel in center of picture are Bob Geary, Hal Edge and Howard Pittman. At right in photo are Capt. Craddock and his mate Richard Baum.

Giants New Champs

VIRGINIA BEACH — In play sponsored by the Virginia Beach Department of Parks & Recreation, the John B. Dey Giants, of the Senior League, made it three straight as they downed the Creeds Eagles, 10-3 to take the City Championship. John Knight, outstanding throughout the season on the mound and at the plate, again was the leader as he pitched a three hitter—had 19 strikeouts and contributed a triple and a double to the winning cause at the plate. Dough Dill, of the Giants had the only other extra base hit for his team as he connected for a double. Dough Brown hit a home run for Creeds.

In the Church League, the Bobcats upended the First United team 10-2. Larry Lawson allowed but four hits in a winning pitching effort, and hit 2-3 at the plate. Robert Pittman went 2-2 and Glen Campbell 2-4, including a home run. Prince of Peace downed Bayside Bapt. 7-3 behind the hitting of George Ligman who slammed 2 homers and a single, and had 3 RBI's to his credit. The winning pitcher was Ronny Ruinhardt. The Crusaders blanked Scott Foundry 12-0. This was the 10th straight victory for the Crusaders. Leon Bailey pitched his first shut-out victory of the season and had 2-2 at the plate. Monty Howell had 3 hits including his 4th homer of the season. Jim Futrell had his 6th homer of the season.

In Unlimited League action, Lithonia and Thalia played to a 16-1 tie. The game will be replayed if its results will have any bearing on tournament positions.

Wins Three Events:

OCEANA — A member of the Oceana Naval Air Station Otters the bases' swimming team, took three events in the Intermediate Boys competition Saturday at the base.

Dan's Hays took the 400 meter Freestyle, 5:54.3; the 200 individual Medley, 2:57.4; and the 100 Butterfly, 1:21.6.

The young swimmer was the only member of the team to win any events.

In the Women's League, the Travelers continued to win as they downed Bill's Braves 10-7 and Argonne 11-1. Catherine Bolton was perfect at the plate in both contests, collecting 7 hits in as many attempts at the plate. Courthouse defeated Argonne 11-3 and upset the Truckers 6-3. Bill's Braves downed Overton's 9-1. Ann Greco scored 4 runs and hit one homer, a double and a triple. Debra Casper continued her hitting streak to 18 games in which she has hit safely. Right behind her, Ann Greco, has hit safely in 17 straight contests.

Intermediate League action saw the Malibu Braves downing the Mets 11-4. Pete Crowley was the winning pitcher.

In the Teen Girls City Softball Championship Tournament, the Puritans raced to the honors by downing Greenwich 14-7 and the Bel-Aires 12-2. Barbara Thomas was the winning pitcher in the first game; Cathy Mathews the winning hurler of the second game. Sue-Merula blasted a triple with the bases loaded in the championship contest to break the game open and move the Puritans towards the BIG win. The Bel-Aires had advanced to the finals by virtue of their win, 9-4 over the Offbeats, earlier in the evening.

Lehigh Classes

ETHLEHEM, PA. — Two hundred wrestlers, from 14 states and the District of Columbia, are attending the second session of the annual Billy Sheridan Memorial Wrestling Clinic which began Monday at Lehigh University.

Gerry Leeman, coach of Lehigh's perennial eastern intercollegiate championship mat squads, is director. He has guided the Engineers to four eastern titles in ten years and has won 25 victories against only 25 losses and three stalemates.

Among his guest instructors for the second week of the clinic are Johnny Johnston, varsity wrestling mentor at Princeton University and a former national title at Penn State.

Clinic participants receive instruction in stance, take-downs, escapes, reverses, physical conditioning and other aspects of the sport during two-day sessions at Grace Hall where the Lehigh varsity holds its home dual meets.

Attending the second session is Arthur W. Singleton, Virginia Beach, who attends Bayside H.S.

Rec. League
Ball Results

VIRGINIA BEACH — sponsored by the Virginia Beach Department of Parks & Recreation, the Class "A" leaders, Walker Realty, downed D. Hart 13-4. Al Bonney led the winners as he went 3-3; scored 4 runs, knocked in 3 RBI's—two of his hits were home runs. For De-Hart, Bob Johnson was 3-4 at the plate. Carriere threw 4 1/2 innings. John Cooke went 4-4 including 2 homers, Ray Davis was 3-4 including 1 home run.

Pungo swamped Rio's 20-5. Jimmy Knight went 4-5 and 6 RBI's. Otto Halstead and Junior Swanner had 3 hits each, including one home run apiece for the game. Firestone outslugged Brown's 16-13. Jackie Statler was 4-4. Trudy Hampton homered during the game. Ed Hutcherson, Sr., went the distance on the mound to collect the win for his team.

In Unlimited League play, Thalia defeated Smith & Keene 17-10. Glen Jones was 4-4 including 1 triple, 2 doubles and a single. Jones had 3 RBI's. John Suggs was 3-4 and had 3 RBI's. Britt also was the winning pitcher as he pitched a strong 6 hitter. Donald McBride went 3-4 and collected 3 RBI's. Lee Dider and Bob Spradlin, both were 2-4 and drove in a total of 3 runs. The Benchwarmers downed the M-Boys 10-8. Hoff connected for the 16-6. Joe Smith defeated the Rebs 16-8. The game was a 3-3 tie.

Church League play found Prince of Peace defeating the Crusaders 11-4. Pastor Elmer Medley went 4-4 including a homer and had 3 RBI's for the contest. Max Flaig was 2-3, and his teammate, Herb Gyer, went 2-4 and had 3 RBI's. The Bobcats downed Plaza Bapt. 16-9. Ed Turner was the winning pitcher and contributed to his own cause by connecting for 2 hits that brought 5 RBI's across the plate. Gary Guerin was 2-4 including one grand slam homer. Boyce Van and Frank Hightower were 5-5 at the plate.

Bayside Baptist downed First United 12-3. Bill Quill was the winning pitcher for a two hit pitching effort. The victory was contributed to a team effort.

In the Intermediate League, the Merchants swamped the Mets 19-3 in the last game of their regular season. For the Merchants, Richard Dinkins pitched a no-hitter as his teammates rapped the Mets pitching for 15 hits.

DAVE BOLLMAN withstood a final day charge by Martin Finley to win the 5th Naval District Golf Tournament at Oceana on Thursday. Although shooting his highest round of the tournament, Bollman finished up with a birdie on the 18th for a final round of 75 and a winning total of 280. Finley had the day's lowest round, a 72, to finish three strokes behind at 282. Andy Mosley came home third with a 229 and Bruce Morgan finished fourth with a 300. The four will now progress into the Southeast Regionals next week at Oceana. From that tournament the top four players went to the All Navy Championship at Patuxent River, Maryland being held through August 12. Ray Hawk won the Senior Division with a 238. Jim Graham finished second one stroke behind and Steve Kona had a 233. These players will go directly to the All-Navy Championships without playing in next week's regionals.

ROTC Test

RICHLAND — Vice Admiral B. J. Semmes, Jr., Chief of Naval Personnel, has announced that the 21st annual national competitive examination for the Regular Navy Reserve Officers Training Corps (NROTC) will be given on 10 December 1966.

The Regular NROTC Program prepares a young man for a Navy or Marine Corps commission while he is studying at one of 52 civilian colleges. All tuition, fees, uniforms, and books are furnished by the Navy, and the student receives $50 per month subsistence allowance for not more than four years. During the summer, the student goes on interesting training cruises as a Midshipman. After successfully completing a baccalaureate level college course, he is commissioned in the Regular Navy or Marine Corps.

Eligible high school seniors and graduates should submit their applications before 19 November 1966. Application forms are available from high school counselors and Navy Recruiting Stations, or from the Chief of Naval Personnel (Pers-36261), Department of the Navy, Washington, D. C., 20370.

KATHY CARSON, the outgoing Miss Virginia Beach in white formal and queenly hairdo has just presented Lynn Prangley with the "oscar of Congeniality", voted on by her competitors. Lynn thanks all concerned.

MILDRED ALEXANDER and Julie Collum with Gene Loving (back to camera) listen to suggestions from interested spectators during intermission at the Miss Virginia Beach Pageant.

Meet Miss Virginia Beach... till now known as Lynn Prangley. The newly crowned queen is still dazed with the fact of her winning. "So many of the girls had such wonderful talent, I didn't think I had a chance," she admitted recently.

Her talent was a bouncy Charleston performed in an authentic roaring twenties dress which belonged to her mother. A Miss Virginia Beach should be a natural unassuming typical teen-age girl with the ability to meet situations as they arise. She proved her poise and personality when her vigorous gyrations across the stage caused her headband to come loose. She lost not a step, not a beat and kept on smiling to a victorious conclusion.

As the standard bearer for the still young city of Virginia Beach, Lynn Prangley is a fitting queen—statuesque and sincere, graceful and girlish, nutty, but nice! Apparently the other contestants for the crown agreed for they voted her "Miss Congeniality", the award most appreciated by the winner.

Eighteen year old Miss Prangley was a June graduate of Princess Anne High school and plans to attend the University of Colorado in the Fall. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy R. Prangley of Thalia, the new queen has an older brother and sister, George and Pat, who are both married and living in Denver.

The Prangley family came here from Denver. From the mountains to the seashore... and they have found both areas compatible for athletics. Lynn is 5'9" and weighs 125 pounds ("It was 130 before we started with the Pageant", she laughed). She is firm and muscular but feminine. Her appearance in her bathing suit brought whistles of approval from the audience at the Pageant.

She swims, sufs (but not very good, she says), water skis and land skis, rides horses, plays tennis, and loves to dance. She likes to talk too, and isn't afraid to express her ideas. As proof of that, she appeared at the General Assembly last Spring and presented an impassioned plea to reduce the voting age to 18. Though she didn't get the law passed, she won the respect and admiration of all lawmakers present.

During her high school days, she entered into many extracurricular activities as well as keeping up with her studies. She competed in the Jr. Miss Pageant and in both her junior and senior years was a contestant in the Miss Princess Anne contest. Though not a top winner in those, she evidently learned a great deal for she was not a novice at beauty contests and worked hard to come across a winner this time.

And now that she has the crown, it's a beginning and not the end. Following the successful conclusion of the Pageant, the contestants and parents and Jaycees and others journeyed over to the Cavalier where a reception was held poolside. It was a happy celebration party in which all had fun. A huge Miss Virginia Beach cake was cut by the new queen, while cake and punch was served and everyone gradually unwound from the tensions of the past days and past hours. The party broke up about 2:30 a.m.

Last Sunday afternoon, Mrs. Fred Winfree honored all the beauty contestants and their mothers with a tea and final get-together at her home. But the friendships made and the lessons learned make it doubtful if such an experience will ever be forgotten by any so involved with each other.

Miss Virginia Beach is relaxing now, but there are moths ahead for her in which she will be trained and tailored to meet the most rigorous inspection for the judges for Miss Virginia and who knows, perhaps Miss America. With her bright green eyes, long brown hair and ready smile, she's a natural to go on up the ladder of success.

TODAY'S BEAUTY QUEENS look and act just like the "girl next door"...and also very often is.

Jaycees Present Professional Pageant; Pretty Participants; Pack Of Fun

VIRGINIA BEACH—Joy is her name; the rest is Lynn Prangley but for the coming year she will be known as "Miss Virginia Beach." Selected and crowned from a group of fourteen shapely and talented young ladies, the new queen was almost overcome with surprise at being named the winner, right on top of having been awarded the "Miss Congeniality" trophy from the other contestants.

"I can't believe it!" she bubbled amid happy tears and clutching her two trophies and bouquet of roses up on the stage of the Civic Center last Friday night near midnight.

It was a happy conclusion to the best presented and best produced "Miss Virginia Beach Pageant" ever held. While much of the credit for "a good show" must go to the girls themselves (many who had never performed on the stage before) for their charm and decorum as well as talent, and to the superbly professional production and directing staff, none of it would have been possible without the dedicated hardworking members who make up the Virginia Beach Jaycees.

And it all begins many months before the climatic presentation.

How does a girl become a Miss Virginia Beach contestant? They do not enter; they are selected by the entries chairman. He must study many college and high school annuals and publications seeking Virginia Beach girls with outgoing personalities who might be interested in becoming contestants for the local pageant.

Many girls are contacted and interviewed with their parents. Those who are receptive to the idea are brought before a panel for preliminary judging and to meet each other and to learn the many facets of competing. Finally fourteen are selected, and then the hard work for the girls and their Jaycee sponsors begins with earnest.

In the meantime, a piece for the pageant to be held must be secured, a production staff found, dignitaries contacted, professional help added, special events planned, and many more details ironed out.

Among those who deserve a "well done" for duties assigned them are Don Fentress, president of the Jaycees; Robert Creamer, Jr., Pageant general chairman; Bill Stewart, entries; Jack Garnett, publicity; Fred Winfree, ticket sales; Tyrone Evans, personnel; Bill Porter, judges; Darrell McKeown, program; Dan Hefflin, special events; and Dr. Donald Kern, general arrangements.

Night after night rehearsals were held. Thursday night was dress rehearsal where the final polishing was made. It went like most dress rehearsals with frayed tempers, loss of parts of costumes, going over and over the same routine, and the constant reminder to smile, smile, smile!

Jaycees were quietly on the spot as "Girl Fridays" for the contestants as each girl has to be accompanied at all times by the wife of a Jaycee. The professional, Cory Wayne, director-producer; Hugh Johnson, choreographer; Carol Gay, songstress; Jack Jennings, stage coordinator; and others were there alternating encouragement and discipline, and turning amateurs into professionals in a very short time.

On Friday the rains came, and so did Miss America. Arriving at Norfolk Municipal Airport, Miss Deborah Bryant, accompanied by her chaperone, Lucille Previlly, was met by Don Fentress, other Jaycees, and a bevy of reporters and cameras late Friday morning.

Though the red carpet, brought all the way from Virginia Beach in Bob Creamer's car, could not be used in the downpour, Miss America was whisked under a protective umbrella to the Port Room in the airport building and she was presented a pin of the Space Capsule by Senator William P. Kellam welcoming her to Virginia Beach as an especially lovely VIP, and the traditional welcoming bouquet of red roses.

Miss America wore a bright red linen dress topped by a smartly checked derby, personifying a spick and span American girl with the air of a debutante combined with the natural manner of a college coed. Deborah, completely at ease, smiled and smiled as she answered the rapidly fired questions of the reporters. After the 20 minute conference was up, she rode in a motorcade to Virginia Beach where she stayed at the Cavalier.

A private buffet luncheon was held at the Cavalier for Miss America, and the Miss Virginia Beach contestants, and some of the Jaycees. Food and fun relaxed the girls who were understandably nervous about meeting Miss America, and worrying about their dampened hairdos, and the soon-to-come pageant. Deborah fit in so well with their girl-talk and her first hand knowledge of their problems that they soon forgot she was such a famous personality. She became a never-to-be-forgotten friend.

The clouds began to lift toward evening, and the banquet held for Miss America, the Miss Virginia Beach contestants, and their parents at the Cavalier gave them all the courage to go on. And soon after 8 p.m., with the Dome filled with an appreciative audience, the Pageant got underway.

The blue-green curtain opened and revealed the Masquerade theme with a colorful setting of an enormous eye mask painted on the center wall through which lighted candles glowed. Rounded archways of orchid and rose with a 3-step dias back stage center, and nine mammoth electric candles blazed a welcome.

Small electric candles lighted the well-constructed runway extending well into the audience. A blue-green carpet, edged with magnolia leaves was a fitting path for the aspirants to the Miss Virginia Beach crown.

Cory Wayne in black trousers, shiny white jacket and ruffled shirt was master of ceremonies ably assisted by Carol Lindsay gownned in a lovely formal from Rose Hall. Her sense of humor and her amazing memory for names and faces added much to the performance of all concerned.

The girls first appeared in sport outfits in this order—Karen O'Grady, Jaymine Eaton, Barbara Bell, Mary Jo Parker, Petra Karn, Theresa Neck, Lynn Prangley, Barbara Denning, Nancy Miles, Jennette McKee, Brenda Lett, Kathleen Nearman, Gail Ward, and Barbara Craddock. They selected and bought their own outfits for all categories of the pageant. They also appeared in evening gowns, and after the talent presentation, in their swim suits.

Comedy and dramatics, singing and dancing, sculpture and sewing, and instrumental playing combined to give a many-sided look at the various talents of the performers. No mistakes were made and each girl acted like the queen she aspired to be.

Time for change of costumes were given by the professionals rendering tuneful melodies in the best Broadway fashion. Both Kathy Carson, the outgoing Miss Virginia Beach, and Deborah Bryant, Miss America, spoke of their experience as "queens." Their calm presence on stage and well-modulated voices told of their happy times and great education they had realized from having been so honored. They wished all contestants well, and told the girls the most memorable gain they will realize from a reign such as theirs will be the friendships they make and the wonderful people they will come to know personally.

Having the difficult chore of choosing just one girl to represent the city of Virginia Beach for the next year fell to experienced Mildred Alexander, Julie Collum and Gene Loving. The audience breathlessly awaited their decision.

First trophy given was the "Miss Congeniality" award voted on by the contestants themselves. It was awarded to Miss Joy Lynn Prangley.

Then the five finalists were called upon stage. They were Lynn Prangley, Nancy Miles, Petra Karn, Jennette McKee, and Mary Jo Parker.

The envelope was opened... Petra Karn who showed amazing dexterity on her accordion was named second runner up. Nancy Miles who sang the haunting "Shadow of Your Smile" with unusual tone and feeling was selected as first runner up; and then Miss Lynn Prangley, who had Charleston her way to the title, was awarded the shiny crown and became Miss Virginia Beach.

Virginia Wesleyan College Opens September 12

VIRGINIA BEACH — Virginia Wesleyan College will open for its first academic session on September 12 with a new president, new faculty members, a new physical plant and a new educational complex located on 300 acres of land in Virginia Beach.

The small opening chapel begins its period of construction on Monday, September 12, at Virginia Wesleyan College here.

Virginia Wesleyan, a coeducational, Methodist-related, liberal arts college, offers a unique approach in education. It is designed according to the Jeffersonian concept of living and learning in academic villages. Dormitory facilities, for men and women, dining hall, lounge, classrooms and faculty offices are all located in a compact $15 million academic village. A science and library building is located adjacent to the academic village complex.

Ground was broken for the new college buildings in July, 1965. Administrative offices will be located initially on the ground floor of one dormitory unit.

Wesleyan's new president is Lambuth M. Clarke, vice president for development for eight years at Randolph-Macon College in Ashland, Methodism's oldest college, by date of charter, February 3, 1893. President Clarke holds a Master's degree from Johns Hopkins and taught at Randolph-Macon in the English department for three years before joining the administrative staff at R-MC as assistant to the president in 1961. He has 18 years of college experience.

Directing Virginia Wesleyan's new academic program will be Dr. Robert C. Provine, an experienced educator who is a former faculty member and registrar at Vanderbilt University and holds graduate degrees from Vanderbilt, Harvard and Brown Universities.

Virginia Wesleyan will offer the basic freshman liberal arts program this first year in English, mathematics, foreign languages, science and social studies. The college will have a very favorable student-faculty ratio. Two additional administrative officers have been appointed.

"Personalized, high quality education is what we're after," says Judge Jerry G. Bay, Jr., chairman of the Board of Trustees at Virginia Wesleyan. "The student will live, study, eat and play under the roof of the compact, self-contained academic village."

The academic village was designed by Philip Brotherton of Perkins and Will, a Chicago architectural firm recognized as a national leader in educational design. The local associated architectural firm is Shriver and Holland of Norfolk. The contracting firm for the first village now under construction is W. H. Belange and Associates of Norfolk.

This present complex is the first of four academic villages projected for the new college. The projected long-range maximum enrollment for the college of 2000 students will be carefully maintained in the atmosphere of a small college. No decision has been made at this time as to the definite plan of increase in enrollment each year. The second academic village is scheduled to be added in 1967. These two villages would provide facilities for a total of 600 students. A center complex of auditorium, student union, library, science building and other general facilities to serve the four villages planned is to be added as the needs arise and as funds are available over the next five to ten years.

President Clarke indicates the enrollment will be kept small the first year. "Most of the applicants have been well qualified," says Donald E. Davis, Director of Admissions. "We want to keep our standards high from the very beginning," says Davis.

Admissions Director Davis reports that applications from qualified students continue to come in and are being considered.

Plans Complete For Balt. Trip

VIRGINIA BEACH — Members of the Virginia Beach congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses have completed their plans to form a delegation to the Group's "God's Sons of Liberty" district convention in Baltimore, Md., and will leave early next week.

Mr. Earl H. Jacobs, Jr., of 400 36th Street, local presiding minister, said the gathering will be held in Memorial Stadium, home of the Orioles baseball club, August 17-21 and more than 50,000 persons will attend.

Jacobs said all meetings of the local congregation will be suspended during the convention week.

"This will in no sense be a revival or religious crusade," said Jacobs. "It is rather a five-day program of Bible talks, discussions and interviews designed to strengthen our faith and equip us for life and service to God in the days that lie just ahead."

According to Jacobs, an added feature of the program will be the presentation of full-costume dramatizations of important portions of the Bible.

"These will cover incidents in the lives of such men as Joseph and Joshua and the prophets Daniel and Jeremiah that demonstrated their unshakable integrity to God under the most severe pressures. The practical lessons to be learned from these incidents are more deeply impressed upon us by dramatizing them."

Other outstanding features of the gathering, according to Jacobs, will be a mass baptism on Friday, August 19. Several hundred persons are expected to undergo water immersion in the public ceremony.

The five-day meeting will reach its climax on the final day, Sunday, August 21, when a special public Bible discourse will be delivered to peak attendance on the subject "What Has God's Kingdom Been Doing Since 1914?" The speaker will be Fred W. Franz, vice-president of the Watchtower Society.

"The entire convention will be operated by no less than 10,000 volunteer workers," said Jacobs. "They will all be delegates to the assembly who offer their time and skills without payment of any kind."

Many of the local Witnesses will have overnight accommodations in private homes because Baltimore's commercial lodging facilities will all be filled to capacity, Jacobs concluded.

Amphib Force Chief-of-Staff Gets Commendation Medal

LITTLE CREEK — A Navy Commendation Medal for outstanding service to the Atlantic Fleet Amphibious Force, including special operations off the coasts of Spain and the Dominican Republic, was presented recently to Captain Monroe Kelly, Jr.

Vice Admiral Charles K. Duncan, Commander Amphibious Force, U. S. Atlantic Fleet, presented the citation signed by the Secretary of the Navy to his chief of staff in ceremonies at the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base.

A letter of appreciation from Lieutenant General Alpha L. Bowser, Commanding General of the Fleet Marine Force, Atlantic, also was presented to Captain Kelly for the support, cooperation and assistance given to the Fleet Marine Force.

Captain Kelly earned the Navy Commendation Medal for meritorious service during Operation Steel Pike 1, largest peacetime exercise ever, and during the Dominican crisis.

During Steel Pike, Captain Kelly "personally supervised and directed the efforts of over 55,000 U.S. Navy and Marine Corps personnel, 1,600 Spanish Marines, and 141 ships in the largest and most successful peacetime amphibious operation ever held."

As chief of staff to the naval task force sent to the Dominican Republic soon after a crisis there in April 1965, Captain Kelly played a key role in the emergency.

"He rendered invaluable service through his outstanding professional skill and dynamic leadership in connection with the rapid buildup of sea power, contributing greatly to the successful execution of the naval operations throughout the emergency," the citation read.

Captain Kelly also was cited for his "sound judgment, resourcefulness and untiring devotion to duty in maintaining and improving the high standard of combat readiness achieved by the Atlantic Fleet Amphibious Force."

Lieutenant General Bowser's letter to Captain Kelly praised him for performing "your duties with great insight, understanding and sound application of amphibious warfare doctrine. Your industry, devotion to duty, and professional knowledge were noted and commented on by all who came into contact with you and the Amphibious Force staff."

The Marine general also cited Captain Kelly's "unusually fine grasp of all problems, both Navy and Marine, by the aggressive application of your many skills to our problems. You greatly enhanced the operational capability and combat readiness of Fleet Marine Force, Atlantic. Characteristics of your method of operation was your ability to approach all problems with a positive attitude. This further manifested itself in a willingness to achieve solutions compatible to forces and which led to overall improvement of the amphibious capability of the Atlantic Fleet."

Picking Time Around Corner

VIRGINIA BEACH — As we tread deeper into the summer, harvesting time creeps upon us. We have an abundance of home orchards and gardens in the City from which to reap a harvest. We have the best fruit and vegetables available. It is necessary that fruit or vegetable reach maturity and be ripened before it is picked.

Peaches and apples are two of our fruits that are getting ripe now. "Peaches are a highly perishable fruit, and must be handled carefully and quickly to reach consumers in sound condition," says Eliza L. Easter, horticulturist for the City. "If picked too early, they have a bitter flavor, and those which are bruised spoil waste."

The best time to pick peaches is when color begins to change to yellow (or white for white varieties), and while the peach is still firm.

Pickers should follow a simple, effective system. Begin at one side and circle each tree in the same direction, picking clean as you go every peach at the proper stage of maturity.

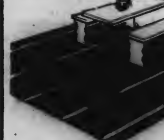

Start picking from the ground. Pull first the highest peaches within easy reach. As branches are relieved of the weight of this fruit, they will lift many low-hanging peaches to where they can be reached without stooping.

Take hold of the peach so the cushion of your fingers, not the lips, touch it. Remove it from the branch by pulling outward and giving the fruit a slight twist. Pickers should not be allowed to lay on the ground or hang on the tree until they decay. "This will bring disease organisms to your orchard, and will cause you much trouble or even fruit loss next year," the horticulturist added.

Remove peaches that do not ripen as it is possible. If this is not done, more with Captain as soon as harvesting has been completed.

Apples do not have to be handled with such care as peaches, Easter said. However, for more attractive fruit, and fruit of higher quality, one should avoid bruising them.

"Boyfriend" Youthful

Wedgewood Dinner Theatre's summer musical "The Boy Friend" has two unobtainable elements, youth and vitality. The youth springs from the twelve Wedgewood apprentices showcased in the production and their vitality sparks through the entire cast.

With energy to spare, choreographer David McClung decided to carry the dancing, not only into the main Charleston, but to spice the twenties spoof with cartwheels, handstands, a specialty "Freddie type" number, and plenty of ankle flings and hooting feet.

In a full chorus number of the "Riviera" Mr. McClung had to create a lively dance as the "latest twenties rage." Keeping a basic Charleston beat, spins, kicks, and extra two steps were added to brighten the stage and give the French Riviera, where the action of the play takes place, a new voice.

Act III's Carnival Ball finds entertainment within entertainment, as the Patagon Cafe presents Pepe and Lolita, Dan Michael and Joyce Brown as specialty dancers. Miss Brown, in black stockings, two inch heels, and cutaway red skirt, begins the number by retrieving a vase rose bud while balanced on a cafe table in a back-bent position. Bathed in red light, carefully supervised by designer Stephen Osbrach, Lolita tangles, circles the floor on her stomach, allows Pepe, in the merciless French manner, to toss her onto his shoulder, forcing her to alight again to the floor as audience and cast watch in hypnotic states. Although Miss Brown has only one number, preparation for the specialty has required the entire rehearsal period, for her own safety and the audience's delight.

To keep variety in the dance numbers, Charleston down beats are separated by quieter numbers. VI Calvin as Madame Dubonnet, and J. C. Calhoun as Percival Brown, share a spoofed dramatic twenties waltz, complete with back to back turns, flowing spins, and concluding with Percival balancing, Madame Dubonnet in a lunge toward the floor.

"The Boy Friend" runs Tuesday through Saturday, until August 20th, to be followed by George Axelrod's comedy, "The Seven Year Itch." Dinner is at 7:00 P.M. and performance at 8:30.

NFL Season On WTAR-TV

NORFOLK—A total of 141 National NFL Football Games will be telecast, many in color, on WTAR-TV during the 1966-67 season.

Channel 3 will present live coverage of 36 NFL games, plus a football oriented Saturday afternoon schedule. Following "NFL Football Highlights" (1:30-2:00 p.m.) six half-hour NFL games will be aired 2:00-3:00 p.m. For each of the half-hour NFL games, time-consuming footage has been eliminated to leave only the action.

Before each live scheduled Sunday game, a half-hour of action featuring one of the teams to play in the NFL game at hand will be telecast.

Extra Performance

WILLIAMSBURG—Wedgewood Dinner Theatre will add an extra performance of Sandy Wilson's musical comedy spoof, "The Boy Friend," on Monday, August 15th.

Wedgewood box office manager Leroy McFarland reports that there is a heavy demand for tickets and if the Friday last the added performance will accommodate patrons who otherwise would not be able to obtain seating.

"The Boy Friend" will not be extended and will end its four week run on Saturday, August 20th. Limited tickets are available for regular playing nights Tuesday through Saturday of each week.

A Review

"Sunday In New York"

Sunday in New York, A Comedy by Norman Krasna, starring Anne Fulcher, Timothy L. Jones, Jr., with Matthew Chait, Vincent Bryant, Terri Reed, and Bill Casper. Directed by H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr. Lighting by Roy Ivy. Costumes by Terri Reed, set designed by Timothy L. Jones and constructed by George Herbert. Produced by special arrangement with Samuel French, Inc.

The food isn't the only delicious concoction being currently served at the Cavalier Dinner Playhouse. Norman Krasna's "Sunday In New York" is the other. The plot which concerns itself with a 22 year old Albany, New York girl's visit to her airline pilot brother's New York City apartment is hardly new. What is both new and amusing, are her attempts to seduce or be seduced, one is never quite sure which, a young man she accidentally meets on a 5th avenue bus.

Anne Fulcher in the role of Eileen Taylor, the eager young 22 year old girl yearning to partake of forbidden fruit but not quite sure how to proceed, is excellent. Her voice carries well, and her physical attributes are there for the beholding. She also possesses a provocative innocence which is ideal for her role. Her performance in Act II is superior to that of Act I, but this is due in a large measure to greater audience report. The only other criticism I can make is in costuming. I do not feel that "pettipants" are compatible with "cocktail dress" especially when there are many other scenes when "pettipants" might have been more appropriate. In light of her fine portrayal of a somewhat disillusioned young lady, this is, to be sure, very little to criticize.

Tim Jones, whose performance as the "temporary music critic on the Philadelphia Inquirer" and the "almost" lover who is picked up on the 5th Avenue bus again demonstrates that his acting ability is nearly flawless. His reactions, facial expressions and general performance are outstanding. Once again Tim has proven that he can play nearly any role, but he has convinced me that comedy is his forte.

During the early portions of Act I the characters appeared to step upon each others lines. This had a tendency to suppress some very funny lines that appear in the early part of the show, and is appeared to confuse both actors and audience. Fortunately, this situation remedied itself and the pacing, acting, and audience reactions were vastly improved.

Matthew Chait, appearing as Adam Taylor, Eileen's airline pilot brother does a fine job. As the play is supposed to be taking place in New York and Matthew is from New York, his accent is most believable. One local critic stated that all Mr. Chait had to do was stand around and register various facial expressions. This is unfair to both Matthew as well as the role. The role is much more demanding and while I've seen him in no other productions, I'm certain that Matthew Chait has a definite future in the theatre.

Vincent Bryant, as Russell Wilson, the playboy object of Eileen's early marital intentions, comes over very well. His reactions to Eileen's revelation that the man she was seen with in the apartment when they were both clad only in robes was not the brother with whom she shared the apartment is very well done, and his exit scene is one of the highlights of the show both in acting and in directing. Mr. Bryant's accent, however, leaves something to be desired. It's obvious that he is not from any portion of New York.

Terri Lee Reed and Bill Casper a multitude of parts and each of them defy criticism. Whether as simply a man or a woman, usherette, customer, bus passenger, or waitress and waiter—oriental or common garden variety, these two add a touch to the play which it could not do without. Terri will be around for additional theatrical chores, and I hope that when Bill finishes his military obligation he will again return to the theatre.

One of the brightest stars of the show must go nameless. This is the sectional sofa which remains on stage during the entire play and becomes everything from a 5th Avenue bus to a $14,000 car. The clever use of the sofa as well as the use of other bits of the set causes the play to sparkle even more brightly.

"Sunday In New York" is directed by H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr., a masterful director who knows what he wants and settles for nothing less. I'm certain that various performers' reactions are those that were demanded by the director and are not reactions preferred by the actors themselves, but he knows the theatre and seeks perfection.

The play, which should amuse all and offend no one is most deserving of attention by Virginia Beach residents. This reviewer would be hard pressed to find a more pleasant way to spend an evening. Of course there were a few "technical" problems, and even "opening night" jitters which professionals are not supposed to admit to, but by the time this review appears "Sunday In New York" will be a smooth running, very professional production most worthy of your patronage.—WJD

"Sunday" Is Lots of Fun

NORFOLK—The current production of Cavalier Dinner Playhouse, "Sunday In New York", opened recently, to unanimous critical acclaim. The hilarious comedy is presented nightly except Monday through the first week in September. The story surrounds a fast moving farcical situation, all the action of which takes place in a few short hours in New York City.

The play is directed by H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr., marking his return to the Tidewater theatrical scene after a nine-year absence. Mr. Lowenthal, Managing Editor of the Virginia Beach Star, has had considerable experience in theatre in Norfolk, Virginia Beach and Richmond. While director of dramatics at Princess Anne High School from 1955 to 1957, he directed the second annual Princess Anne Ruritan Minstrel, and played in the Virginia Beach Little Theatre Production, See My Lawyer. Lowenthal, who also has been an investigator for Army Intelligence, a disc jockey and a radio-television newsman, has a college degree in dramatic art and speech, and still calls the theatre his "first love."

"It is more of a hobby today than it has ever been," he said. "I don't have the time to give to the theatre that I used to have, and I enjoy newspaper work too much anyway."

Hobby or not, in Sunday in New York, he has directed a smooth, creative production, which he says has been "a lot of fun." "I wish I could take credit for all of it, but I can't," he added. "Cavalier Dinner Playhouse has a fine resident company, and I'm also on excellent local talent. They deserve the credit."

Timothy Jones, producer-director of the theatre, "It's the lead role in the play. It's leading lady is Anne Fulcher. Others in the cast are Matthew Chait, Terri Reed, Vincent Bryant and Bill Casper. Conventions may be made by calling the playhouse at 855-8233.

Thumm Named Night Mgr.

NORFOLK — Harold Thumm, WTAR-TV Videotape Engineer and a 16-year veteran TV engineer, has been named Night Operations Manager, according to an announcement made this week by Harold Sindinger, Vice-President and Assistant General Manager.

A graduate of Maury High School, Thumm attended the Technical Division of the College of William and Mary, Norfolk. He will assume his new responsibilities effective August 15, filling a position vacated by Joe Perkins when he was recently promoted to Program Director.

Psychos Tonite At Dome

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Psychos, returning to Tidewater from engagements at the Nags Head Casino in North Carolina, will appear at the Virginia Beach Civic Center Dome Thursday night, August 11, for a WNOR Beach Ball.

The long-haired rock 'n' roll quartet is originally from Norfolk but has spent most of the summer touring Virginia and North Carolina in a series of concerts and dances.

Thursday's performance will be the group's second at the Dome.

Earlier this year they appeared in concert with the Animals from England during that group's show here.

In addition to popular rock 'n' roll tunes, the Psychos perform a number of original numbers written by lead guitarist Terry Bacon and rhythm guitarist Bill Green. These include "Stop the World," "Don't Leave Me Now" and "Blue River No. 3."

Other members of the Psychos are Al Matthews, bass guitarist, and Clarke Thrasher, drummer. Thursday's dance will be from 9 to 12 p.m.

Golden Agers Plan Tour

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Golden Age Clubs of Virginia Beach are planning a Norfolk Tour on Saturday, August 27, from 9:00 a.m. until 2:00 p.m.

The tour includes a trip to the Meyers House, the Thoroughgood's House, McArthur's Memorial, St. Paul's Church, the Norfolk Arts Museum and the Gardens by the Sea.

Starting points are Seaboard Elementary School, First Baptist Church, Lynnhaven, and The Morning Star Baptist Church. The cost of the tour is $3.25.

Those interested in taking this tour with the Golden Agers may do so by calling H. C. Benjamin, Adult Supervisor of Union Kempsville School, at 497-6222 or 499-0631.

Full-Time Day Vocational Training At Old Dominion

NORFOLK—The vocational section in the Community College Division of Old Dominion College will expand its full-time vocational program, effective September, 1966. In addition to Automotive Mechanics, three additional courses will be added: ENVIRONMENTAL CONTROL (Heating, Air Conditioning and Refrigeration), POWER MECHANICS (Mechanical Equipment, Machinery, Internal Combustion and Diesel) and RADIO AND TELEVISION.

The vocational section is an outgrowth of the vocational training programs first begun in 1939 under the auspices of the Virginia State Department of Education. It offers a varied program of trade preparatory and trade extension courses on the post high school level.

Full-time day vocational or trade preparatory programs include courses in mathematics, science and communication skills. A full-time vocational student will attend classes for 25 clock hours per week each semester. Full-time day vocational classes will meet from 1-4 p.m. daily.

The part-time evening vocational offerings are largely trade extension programs. The courses are designed to help those people who are already employed gain further knowledge and keep abreast of new theories and developments in their fields of employment. Part-time evening classes usually meet for two evenings per week, 7-10 p.m.

All course offerings by the Vocational Section are on the semester system and do not carry college credit. Students satisfactorily completing the program will receive state-approved diplomas or certificates. Classes will be held in the Technical Institute Building, 1067 West 47 Street. Applications for the Vocational Section will be accepted through Wednesday, August 31.

Sales Tax Questions And Answers

In order that the citizens of Virginia Beach may be better informed concerning the provisions of the Virginia Retail Sales and Use Tax Act which became effective September 1, 1965, the Virginia Beach Sun will publish these questions and answers as compiled by the Virginia Retail Merchants Association. The Board of Questions was approved by the Virginia Department of Taxation. The last seven were answered by counsel for the VRMA, on which the Dept. of Taxation expressed no opinion. The 69 questions and answers will be published in three consecutive issues.

(First in a series of three articles)

1. Q. What is the rate of the sales tax?
A. In localities which have adopted a local sales tax, the rate is 3%, or 3 cents on each $1 of purchases. In a locality which has not adopted a local sales tax, the rate is 2%, or 2 cents on each $1 of purchases.

2. Q. Are there any maximum limits to the sales tax?

A. No. Under any of the city sales tax ordinances now in existence, there is no arbitrary maximum amount of sales tax applicable to one transaction. Thus, the purchaser of a $100,000 coin television set will pay $15 in tax under the combined State and local sales tax.

3. Q. When does the sales tax become effective?
A. September 1, 1965.

4. Q. Suppose I order a dress in August, but it is not delivered until September. Is the sales tax imposed?

A. Yes. The sales tax is imposed on all sales completed after August 31, 1965. If the dress had been fully paid for in August, but not received until September, the tax would be due when delivery is made by the store in September.

5. Q. Suppose I purchase a bicycle on a lay-away plan, making my first payment in June 1965 but not receiving delivery of the bicycle until December, 1965. Is tax subject to the sales tax?

A. Yes. The sale is completed by delivery after September 1,

6. Q. Suppose I purchased a refrigerator on a conditional sales contract in July 1965, and received delivery at that time, but my final payment will not be made until June 1967. Is this sale subject to the sales tax?

A. No. Possession of the refrigerator was obtained before September 1, 1965, and legal title was retained only as security for the purchase price. In this case, the sale was completed in July 1965 when delivery was made.

7. Q. Suppose I live in a county that imposes no local sales tax. If I buy a dress in Richmond and have it delivered to my home in the county, do I have to pay the Richmond local sales tax?

A. Yes. Local sales taxes are imposed at the place of business where the purchase was made without regard to the county or city of delivery or actual use.

8. Q. If I were a resident of Richmond and I purchased a dress in a county or city which did not have a local sales tax, would I have any obligation to pay any local sales tax to Richmond?

A. No. Only the county or city in which the place of business is located is entitled to the local sales tax. No local use taxes are permitted.

9. Q. What is the difference between a sales tax and a use tax?

A. The use tax differs from the sales tax only in the method of collection; otherwise, these taxes are identical. The sales tax is imposed on all retail sales made in Virginia, whereas the use tax is imposed on retail sales that have been made in other states when the property purchased is brought within and used or consumed in Virginia. Under the use tax, therefore, the same tax is imposed on a shirt purchased outside Virginia as would have been imposed if the shirt had been purchased from a store within Virginia.

10. Q. Suppose I buy a suit from a store in New York and am charged the New York sales tax. When I bring the suit into Virginia, will I also have to pay the Virginia use tax?

A. No. The payment of the New York sales tax will be credited against any liability for the Virginia use tax. Assuming the sales ticket from the New York store shows that the New York sales tax was paid, no Virginia tax would be owed on that transaction.

11. Q. Suppose the suit I bought from the store in New York was exempt from the New York sales tax. Would I then owe the Virginia use tax?

A. Yes; but a number of stores outside Virginia are expected to register to collect the Virginia use tax. If the suit is bought from such a store, a notation on the sales ticket of the store's Virginia use tax registration number will be made. The Virginia use tax may then be collected by the store and you have no further obligation with respect to this tax. If the store has not registered to collect the Virginia use tax, or if it does not note its Virginia use tax registration number on the sales ticket, you should not pay the store the amount of the Virginia use tax but should report this purchase at the end of the month upon forms which may be obtained from the Department of Taxation, Sales and Use Tax Division, P. O. Box

6-1, Richmond, Va. 23261.

12. Q. Suppose a relative living in North Carolina sends me a Christmas present which he purchased in North Carolina. Is any Virginia use tax due?

A. No. As between your relative (the donor) and you, no sales tax is due, but the donor will have to pay the sales tax on his purchase.

13. Q. Suppose a new resident moves to Virginia from Delaware (a state which imposes no sales tax). Is he required to pay tax on all his furniture, silverware, rugs, and so forth?

A. No. The law provides a specific exemption for the household goods and personal effects of persons newly establishing a residence in Virginia.

14. Q. Is the sale of my home subject to the sales tax?

A. No. Sales of real estate are not subject to the sales tax.

15. Q. Is the rent of my apartment subject to the sales tax?

A. No. Only transient accommodations such as hotel and motel rooms rented for less than 90 days are subject to the sales tax.

16. Q. Are sales of life insurance, or stocks and bonds subject to the sales tax?

A. No. The sales tax does not apply to the sale of items of intangible personal property.

17. Q. What about doctors' bills? Are they subject to the sales tax?

A. No. Fees for professional services are not subject to the sales tax.

18. Q. What about a television repairman? Are his services taxable?

A. His services as such, if separately charged as labor, will not be subject to the sales tax. Where the labor charge is separately stated, only that portion of the television repairman's bill which represents the price of parts sold or consumed in repair work will be subject to the sales tax.

19. Q. What about diaper service? Is it subject to the sales tax?

A. Yes. Rental charges for furnishing linen service are subject to the sales tax.

20. Q. What about automobiles? Are they subject to the sales tax?

A. Automobiles are subject to a special 4% sales tax which is imposed at the time the certificate of title is obtained. Local taxes and use tax return requirements do not apply to this tax. The tax is collectible by the Division of Motor Vehicles.

Job Corps Gets Kaye

you this opportunity to develop your talents and train them. But only you can open that little door in your mind that will make you work hard.

"Just being a Job Corps graduate is not enough. You must still prove yourself to your employer as being prompt, ready to take responsibility, give your best effort. And what you prove will help other Job Corps girls who come after you. We want people to think (when you come home from Job Corps with your certificate of accomplishment.) 'This girl is outstanding.'"

KAYE EASOM

VIRGINIA BEACH — One person who is not disconcerted by the airline strike is Miss Kaye Easom, Women's Job Corps applicant, who was installed in a ceremony at Galilee Episcopal Church, Aug. 5. Mrs. Douglas Hubbard, director of the Virginia Beach sub-center for WICS, which recruits and screens girls for Women's Job Corps, asked Mrs. Wm. Easom, Jr., if her daughter would like to fly to her assigned camp at University of Northern Michigan, Marquette, Mich.

Mrs. Easom smiled and shook her head. "Kaye has never flown. I think she'd rather ride the bus."

The installation preceded a meeting of the executive committee of the Virginia Beach Council of United Church Women. Mrs. John Crawford, council president and one of the first to work with the WICS program at Virginia Beach, introduced the Reverend Edmund Berkeley. He spoke briefly on community relationships and their significance to the church and society. J. B. Withers, Jr., administered the Job Corps oath and notarized it.

Present from Norfolk was Mrs. R. William Schwab, director of WICS for the metropolitan area. She announced that Virginia has recently been awarded achievement insignia for being the state with the largest number of girls in Women's Job Corps Camps. She also stated that a young Vista worker in Tidewater North Carolina will assist the program in the Outer Banks and that plans are developing for recruiting and screening of Job Corps girls living on Eastern Shore.

Addressing Kaye Easom, Mrs. Schwab said, "Now it's your turn, Kaye. Others have worked to give

C&P Names Skinner To New Post

B. Franklin Skinner has been named general commercial manager for the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Virginia. He is a native of Covington, Virginia, and was graduated from the University of Richmond in 1932. He came with the C & P immediately following graduation as a staff assistant in the commercial department.

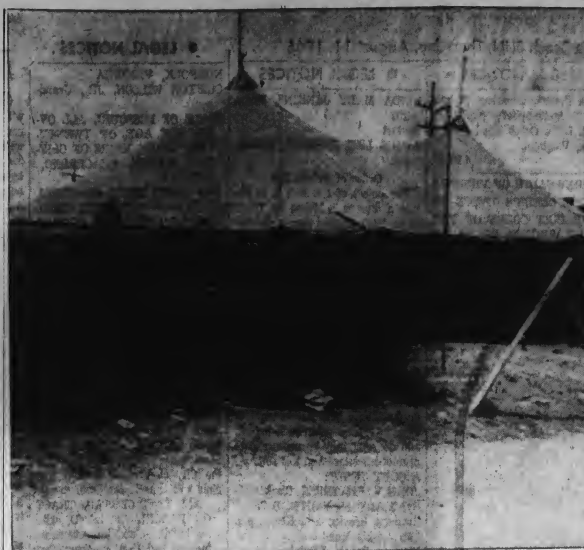

Skinner has held various positions in the company including those of commercial manager in both Richmond and Roanoke, district sales manager, general marketing supervisor for the four C & P companies with headquarters in Washington and division traffic manager for the Roanoke, Lynchburg and Richmond districts.

In this new position Skinner will be responsible for the state-wide operations of the commercial department of the C & P.

While at the University of Richmond he was a member of the Nat'l. Honorary Leadership Fraternity Omicron Delta Kappa, Phi Delta Epsilon National Honorary Journalism Fraternity and Sigma Phi Epsilon social fraternity.

He has held directorships in the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Richmond, the Junior Achievement of Roanoke Valley, the Roanoke Red Cross Chapter, Roanoke Rotary Club and the United Givers Fund of Roanoke Valley.

Skinner succeeds Robert R. Horner, Jr., who was recently named general financial administrator in the treasury department of AT & T in New York.

VA-35 Gets New Boss

OCEANA — Commander Donald S. Ross, the commanding officer of Oceana-based Attack Squadron 35 (VA-35) was relieved of command of the squadron by Cmdr. Arthur Barie in ceremonies held at Oceana Naval Air Station on July 29.

The ceremony was attended by all squadron personnel, many military and civilian friends of the commanders, Rear Adm. Francis E. Nussle, the Commander Fleet Air Norfolk, and Capt. D. C. Ramsey, II, commanding officer of Oceana Naval Air Station.

Beginning with a personnel inspection by both commanders, the ceremony was accompanied by the School of Music Band, which played tunes such as "Hey, look me over," and other appropriate inspection songs.

In his farewell speech, Cdr. Ross called on all military men to stand united in the American mission in South Vietnam today.

"It is necessary that the military family remain undivided and undaunted in its determination to win its fight," he said. "Those who are included in demonstrations, protests and complaints seldom have the interest of their own national heart," Ross said. "Usually they're interested in feeding their own self interests."

In his remarks to the crowd Adm. Nussle pointed out that VA-35 was the third oldest squadron in the United States Navy.

Summer Sands New Play

VIRGINIA BEACH — As their third endeavor for this summer, Summer Sands Tent Playhouse at 19th and Artie, across from the Dome at Virginia Beach, will present "Never Too Late" by Sumner Arthur Long, produced by special arrangement with Samuel French, Inc.

This hilarious comedy depicting a matured family's reaction to their middle aged mother's announcement of a coming blessed event, is being presented at the theatre in the round from August 10th to the 14th.

Under the able direction of Mrs. Alice DuBois, it will feature Ed Blonts, Jane Fleming, Allan Quatermain, Alice DuBois, Gordon Creecy, Lynne Good and Mike Mahring.

In the local theater, Ed Blonts played with the Breezy Point Players in "Take Her, She's Mine". He also appeared in "You Can't Take It With You" and "Oh Men, Oh Women", and directed the "Seven Year Itch" in Washington, D.C. with the Andrews Players.

Included in Jane Fleming's credits are appearances in "Minnie", "Farewell, Farewell, Eugene", and "Silent Night, Holy Night". Although he appeared for two years as Tom Lee in "Tea and Sympathy", Allan Quatermain still has to his credit lead parts in "Golden Hind", Players Production of "Virginia Woolf" and on the West Coast appeared in "Milk and Honey", "Boyfriend" and "Little Mary Sunshine."

After studying under Walter Kerr and Father Hartke at the Catholic University in Washington, D.C., Alice DuBois went on to tour the South Pacific in "Doughgirls" and to appear in "Over Twenty-One", produced by the Red Cross through Special Services under the direction of Maurice Evans and George Schaeffer. Locally, she has appeared in "Harvey", "You Can't Take It With You", "Happy Birthday", "Romanoff & Juliet" and "The Sound of Music".

Although this is his first Virginia Beach appearance, Gordon Creecy formerly appeared in "Glass Menagerie", "Romanoff & Juliet", "Picnic", "Heaven Can Wait", "As You Like It" and "Guys and Dolls".

This will be Lynne Good's second appearance for the tent this summer, having just finished two successful performances for their Round Review. She not only student directed "The Red Mill", but CHESAPEAKE — Ralph L. Frost of Virginia Beach was elected to the local Southern States Board of Directors at the annual membership meeting held in Indian River Junior High School on August 4, 1966. Over 240 stockholder-members, and their families attended the session.

W. W. Oliver, V. of Virginia Beach was named President of the Board of Directors.

Elected to the local Southern States Farm Home Advisory Committee were: Mrs. R. L. Frost of Virginia Beach. Mrs. Frost was chosen as chairman of the Farm Home Advisory Committee while Mrs. Penzleton of Chesapeake was named secretary.

W. W. Oliver, V. of Virginia Beach was chosen as a delegate to represent the local membership at the Southern States Cooperative's 43rd Annual Stockholders Meeting in Richmond, Virginia on November 10 and 11.

There was the showing of a color movie entitled "The Road to The Camerons" at the meeting which told the story of American agriculture's efficiency and how farmer cooperatives have helped make these possible.

Another feature was a special Board Member Recognition ceremony honoring current members.

L. Belmont Williams, Secretary and Executive Vice-President of Southern States Chesapeake Coop. gave the report on local operations and services.

Greetings from the City of Chesapeake were given by Mayor G. A. Treakle.

DFC's Presented At Oceana

OCEANA — Four pilots serving with Oceana-based Attack Squadron 85 (VA-85) were presented with Distinguished Flying Crosses for their successful bombing raid against the Uong Bi Power Plant near Haphong, North Vietnam on April 18, 1966, in ceremonies held at Oceana Naval Air Station Friday.

Presented by Rear Adm. Francis E. Nussle, the Commander Fleet Air Norfolk, the medals were received by Cmdr. R. J. Hays, the squadron commanding officer; Lt. J. T. Bean, Lt. Cmdr. W. P. Yarbrough, and Lt. E. M. Roemish.

In his presentation of the medals, Adm. Nussle noted that VA-85 was the only squadron able to make the strike against the power plant because of the bad weather brought in by the Southeast Asian monsoons. He attributed the capability to the squadron's aircraft, the A-4 Intruder, which employs a computerized navigational system and advanced radar.

The strike, accomplished by VA-85 when the weather had fought American air action almost to a standstill, received national acclaim because of its daring accuracy. As a result of the mission, both Hanoi and Haphong were without lights until the wreckage could be cleared away and much of the equipment replaced.

Lt. W. R. Westerman was also presented a Distinguished Flying Cross at the ceremony for his successful strike against a coastal infiltration effort by the Viet Cong. Flying his A-4 aircraft, he bombed the craft, included in the action and was injured when his plane was shot down by shore-based artillery. For the injury, Westerman was also presented the Purple Heart in the ceremony.

Five of VA-85's enlisted men also received awards in the ceremony as Adm. Nussle handed out Secretary of the Navy Commendation for Achievement Ribbons. Receiving the awards, which are given for performance of work far above the Navy's expectations were Senior Chief Aviation Metal-smith Floyd F. Maupin, Chief Aviation Ordnanceman John J. Costigan, Chief Aviation Fire Control Technician Charles W. Mills, Chief Metalmith Richard W. Pyle, and Aviation Ordnanceman First Class Otis E. Bennett.

Other Awards given out by Adm. Nussle were four letters of commendation from the commanding officer of the USS Kitty Hawk, 11 of the letters from the Commander of Attack Carrier Air Wing 11, and 30 letters from the commanding officer of VA-85.

New Hand On Rankin Helm

LITTLE CREEK—Captain Lester B. Lampman relieved Captain Thomas C. Hurst III as commanding officer of the attack cargo ship USS Rankin (AKA-108) Monday.

The ceremonies took place on board the ship at pier 2 at the Norfolk Naval Station at 10 a.m.

Captain Lampman reports to the Rankin from the staff of the Chief of Military Operations, Joint Task Force Eight.

Captain Hurst, 46, a native of Norfolk, was promoted to the office of the Director, U. S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency in Washington, D. C.

Captain Hurst is presently living in Chesapeake Colony with his wife and their two children.

Evening College Early Registration

NORFOLK — Dr. Stanley R. Pliska, dean of the Old Dominion College Division of Continuing Education, announces that early registration for the fall semester for evening college courses will continue through Wednesday, August 31. Both returning and new students may register in the Office of Continuing Education, Main Administration Building, from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

Dr. Pliska, who is also dean of the summer session, announces that 3100 students were enrolled this summer, an increase of 300 over the summer session, 1965. Students enrolled included 2,894 civilians and 216 military.

Airman Apprentice Michael L. Walker, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mack L. Walker of 300 Overholt Drive, has completed the Aviation Mechanical Fundamentals School at the Naval Air Technical Training Center in Memphis, Tenn.

IN CHANCERY NO. 10194
JUNE LUCILLE LAVE, Complainant, vs.
DALTON RUSSELL LAVE, Defendant.

Order of Publication
The object of the above styled cause is for the complainant to obtain a divorce a vinculo matrimonii from the defendant herein pursuant to Section 20-91 (9), of the 1960 Code of Virginia, as amended, the parties hereto having lived separate and apart without cohabitation and without interruption since the 22nd day of April, 1964.

And it appearing by affidavit duly filed according to law that Dalton Russell Lave is not a resident of the State of Virginia, that his last known address was the Chesapeake City Jail, and that his whereabouts since his release therefrom are not known to the complainant herein; and that due diligence has been used by or on behalf of the complainant herein to ascertain his present address without effect; it is therefore:

ADJUDGED, ORDERED and DECREED that the defendant, Dalton Russell Lave, do appear within ten (10) days after due publication of this Order and do what is necessary to protect his interest herein; it is further:

ADJUDGED, ORDERED and DECREED that the Order be published once a week for four (4) successive weeks in the Virginia Beach Sun, a newspaper published in the City of Virginia Beach, Virginia.

CONTROVERSY EXPLAINED — PUBLIC HEARING MON.

Money Key To Land Area For New State Park In Va. Beach

335—MONEY KEY TO LAND
VIRGINIA BEACH—At the last regular meeting of the Virginia Beach City Council, approval of a new State Park on Virginia's Outer Banks just south of the present Wildlife Refuge was delayed. The delay came at the request of City Treasurer V. A. Etheridge.

Etheridge owns property in the general area of the proposed park. He said, at that time, he objected to the approval of a resolution, during the State Park without hearing from other landowners.

Council delayed any action until its next meeting, August 22, at which time a public hearing will be held. The resolution was introduced in Council by L. Stanley Hodges, a member of the Commission on Conservation and Economic Development of the Commonwealth of Virginia.

Because of obvious misunderstandings, a minor controversy began, and continued until Hodges released a statement clarifying the matter, along with Dr. T. Roy Jarrett, of Va. Beach, member of the Virginia Outdoor Recreation Commission.

In his statement, it was brought out that two public hearings had already been held on the matter by separate groups, and that no opposition had been noted at either one.

The approved 20-year Master Plan for recreation originally sought a city park of 1,350 acres south of the Wildlife Refuge. Then after the General Assembly appropriated money for the acquisition of new park areas, it was recently suggested by the Virginia Outdoor Recreation Commission that all of the Outer Banks south of the refuge be used as a State park.

Commission Chairman Fitzgerald Bennis, a State Senator from Richmond, said, "It is a very exciting project when you realize the pitiful amount of land available to the public on the Atlantic Coast."

In Virginia Beach, much of the Atlantic coastline is taken up by military installations. Fort Story, Camp Peledon and Dum Neck cover a large area, and the Wildlife Refuge covers another large area. Most of the rest of Virginia Beach's coast line is taken up by motels, hotels and private residences. There is little land available to the general public, except at the recently purchased tract at Sandbridge.

The future of any State park in the proposed area now seems to hinge on money. Only a certain amount of money has been allocated. It is now a question of how much land can be bought with that much money, as evidenced by Hodges' statement, which read:

"In view of the apparent misunderstanding on the part of many citizens of the area about the proposed purchase of property along the Atlantic Ocean for a state park, we feel that we should issue the following statement:

The Department of Conservation Division of Parks and Recreation Commission have selected

NET SURPLUS FOR YEAR $754,949.96

Va. Beach Financial Report For 1965-66 Released To Public

VIRGINIA BEACH—The annual financial report of the City of Virginia Beach for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1966, was presented Tuesday to City Manager W. Russell Hatchett by Giles G. Dodd, Director of Finance. Hatchett made the report public Tuesday afternoon, saying that the statement is an interim report until the actual audit can be completed, probably sometime in September.

The general fund surplus at the end of the fiscal year was $2,096,866.01 or about $243 thousand less than a year ago. In the letter of transmittal with the report, Dodd said, "At the time the 1965-66 budget was prepared, we estimated that it would be necessary to use $1,004,767 of the General Fund surplus to balance the budget. As it is, the city used only $342,764.01 of the surplus for this purpose."

Both Hatchett and Dodd pointed out that expenditures were nearly a half million dollars less than budget estimates, and that the School Operating Fund increased during the year bringing about additional reserves above estimates.

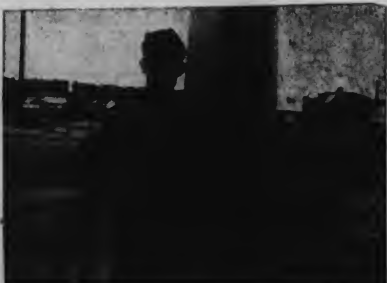

The two factors together, said Dodd, resulted in a net increase in surplus of $754,949.96.

In the current budget, it is already anticipated that the City will use much of the surplus. While both Dodd and Hatchett expressed pleasure with the surplus, they cautiously added much more of the surplus may have to be spent between now and next July 1.

Some of the reasons listed by Hatchett that could cause additional general fund expenditures include the change to decals from license tags, the heavy reliance on revenues from State and City

Rains Helped

PRINCESS ANNE — Recent rains, from 9 to 12 inches since July 30, have helped the farmer. According to Dick Cockrell, agricultural agent, crops could not have existed much longer had the drought not been broken.

CPC Okays Recreation

VIRGINIA BEACH—The twenty-year Master Plan for Recreation has undergone a few changes at the hands of the City Planning Commission, after recommendations of the City Recreation Commission which conducted exhaustive public hearings on the plan.

The master plan, as approved in executive session of the Planning Commission, now conforms to the Recreation Commission's suggestions.

The changes included providing parking, drinking water and sewage and refuse disposal for public parks. The recreation body had also recommended the stocking of streams and lakes for public fishing.

Other than these minor changes, the Recreation Commission recommended elimination of the 10-year plan. Those permits which drew severe criticism from citizens. That included deletion of the extended boardwalk to 64th Street, a shore park on the bank of Lake Smith and a similar one at Lake Joyce, camp sites on Davis Island, a park on Old Donation Road and a trail system in Thoroughgood.

Several of the parks recommended in the plan are already under construction, but many will have to wait until a priority system is worked out and all cost estimates can be obtained.

The ambitious plan, generally hailed as excellent, now must be passed by City Council. There is little doubt, however, of its passage. Then as Federal, State and local money becomes available, the plan can be used as a guideline for providing a vast recreation system of recreational facilities for Virginia Beach by 1985.

School Board Meeting Accomplishes Much

By Douglas Barnes
PRINCESS ANNE—At its August meeting, with a full attendance of school board members present, Supr. Frank Cox announced that the population explosion in the Plaza area has been solved by necessarily shifting the 6th and 7th grades of the Plaza Elementary School to other schools. "This Plaza area has, over the past 5 years added almost 4,000 school children to its population, but by the beginning of the 1967-68 school year, another school will be completed in the Princess Anne Plaza area," stated Mr. Cox.

MEMBERSHIP SECRET, ONLY OFFICERS NAMED

New Political Group Formed At Va. Beach

VIRGINIA BEACH—There is reported to be a new political group in Virginia Beach composed of business and professional men; however, only the officers of the new group have been named publicly. The rest of the membership is being kept a closely guarded secret, and there are strong indications that those names will not be divulged.

The new group is known as "Good Government Association". Its stated purpose, according to its president Rhoe Adams, of Emerald Ford, Inc., once defeated City Council candidate, is "good government at all political levels."

Other officers of the group are vice-president, B. R. Middleton, secretary of an electrical contracting firm; secretary-treasurer F. Reid Ervin, president of a mechanical contracting firm and a recently defeated City Council primary candidate from Lynnhaven Borough. Directors include J. Frank Malbon, president of a fuel oil company, brother of deceased Princess Anne County Sheriff Roger Malbon and brother-in-law of City Treasurer V. A. (Jack) Etheridge, and Dan Arris, an insurance company owner and connected in another business venture with Etheridge.

The formal statement issued after the organizational meeting at which about thirty persons allegedly attended stated that the group means to form "watchdog" study groups. Adams said this material on "how the interests of the citizens could best be served" would then possibly be turned over to City Council for consideration. He did not indicate any areas in which the study groups would be set up.

Adams also said the primary objective of the group at the present time is the election of State Senator William B. Spong, Jr. to the United States Senate in November, and that there are no local or state issues under consideration now.

Adams said, "I will be glad to work with (Democratic National Committeeman) Sidney Kellam one hundred percent for the election of Spong."

Kellam has already noted his intention to support both Democratic nominees, Spong and Byrd in the November election. Adams did not mention any support of the other Democratic nominee, Harry F. Byrd, Jr., chosen along with Spong in the July Primary.

When he was questioned concerning the activities of GGA after the November election, Adams said he could not say. Adams also stated that he was not authorized to release the names of the membership, and said there is a dis-

DRIVER APPREHENDED BY NEIGHBOR

Boy 9, Killed By Hit And Run Driver — Man Critically Hurt

ARLINGTON—A 9-year-old boy was killed and a 41-year-old neighbor was critically injured early Sunday morning on Arlington Boulevard in Arlington Village by a hit-and-run driver.

A former Norfolk policeman witnessed the accident, gave chase and apprehended the driver and held him forcibly until Virginia Beach Police arrived.

Police charged Billy Brad Pleasant, 36, with manslaughter, reckless driving, driving without a license and hit-and-run.

Within only four minutes, members of Davis Corner Rescue Squad arrived on the scene but were unable to revive the boy. A neighbor had already begun mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

According to Police, the car swerved back onto three lawns while traveling north, struck the two, then swerved back into the street and continued. The car crossed property of 638, 640, and 644 Arlington.

The dead boy, Jimmy Shoemaker, and his 11-year-old brother were standing on the lawn talking with Albin Mecalns, who had been cutting his lawn. The force of impact knocked Shoemaker about 100 feet over a hedge and into another yard. He was pronounced dead on arrival at De Paul hospital. His brother escaped injury.

Mecalns was thrown about 40 feet into the center of his yard, his lawnmower completely smashed. He was reported in critical condition at Portsmouth Naval Hospital suffering from internal injuries, a broken back, compound fracture of both legs and a broken right arm. The accident happened about 8:45 A.M.

Arthur Linwood Diggs, Jr. who was riding next door heard the crash and witnessed the car swerve back onto the street. He gave chase, cut the car off and grabbed the driver who once got away only to be restrained by Diggs until Police arrived on the scene.

Pleasant told police he was a maintenance man with a firm in Failing Creek, Virginia, and was visiting Virginia Beach. Police Officer Wm. Taylor said Pleasant made a statement for police. He was then held in City Jail.

In another hit and run accident a newspaper carrier boy was struck and killed in Arlington Village last winter in the pre-dawn hours, as he was preparing to make his rounds. Concentrated investigation since that time has failed to turn up many clues, and the driver of the car remains a mystery. The 14-year-old Paramore boy was found by a passing motorist a few minutes after that accident.

ECSC 3rd YEAR

Virginia Beach Surfing Carnival Here August 27-28

Grant Parrish.

One of the major reasons why Brown expects more people this year is because five top surfers in all divisions and five from a Long Island competition will go to California for a World Championship meet. The five top surfers will be picked by the judges, who are all outstanding West coast surfers.

Another reason why Brown expects larger crowds this year is the increased advance publicity. He said the event has been covered in all East Coast surfing magazines and a representative from each will be here. In addition, he said, "Most of the West coast magazines have east coast representatives, who will be here, covering for their magazines."

According to Brown, roughly 25 to 30 thousand people watched the event at the south end of the beach last year. He said, "There was quite a turnover of people during the two 13-hour days of competition, but there were never less than about six thousand people."

Hair lengths continue to be short for fall, although exact lengths are dependent upon individual needs. In general, hair at the nape is shortest for a soft and cuddly fit. Around the face, too, the hair is adaptably short. About two-thirds of the head is covered with blended lengths of short hair, always retaining a short, short look in the back at the nape area.

Wesleyan Faculty Named

VIRGINIA BEACH—Nine full-time teaching faculty appointments have been announced at Virginia Wesleyan College by President Lambuth M. Clarke.

The nine will teach in the first year liberal arts program to be offered by the college this year.

Teaching faculty appointments are Dr. Joseph L. Stevens, professor of history and government; Robert E. Tucker, instructor in the department of social sciences; Mrs. Carol Wilson Barker, instructor in Romance Languages; C. Fred Brewer, assistant professor of biology; Mrs. Beverly Carole Stenestreet, instructor in chemistry; Douglas E. McIntyre, instructor in mathematics; Harold F. Crist, instructor in mathematics; Joseph H. Harkey, professor of English; and Mrs. Ruth B. Sherman, instructor in English.

Dr. Stevens holds his J.D. degree in law and political science from the University of Vienna. He has done additional graduate work at Duke and George Washington Universities and has taught at George Washington University and Middlebury College (Vermont).

Tucker is a retired colonel in the U. S. Army. He received his undergraduate degree at the U. S. Military Academy and his M. A. degree from the University of Kentucky. He has taught at the University of Kentucky.

Mrs. Barker received her undergraduate degree from Wesleyan College (Massachusetts) and has done additional graduate work at Colgate University.

Brewer holds an A. B. degree from Maryville College (Tennessee) and an M. S. degree from the University of Tennessee. He has done additional graduate work at Indiana University and the University of North Carolina.

Brewer has taught at Montreat College (N. C.) and at Christopher Newport College in Newport News.

Mrs. Stenestreet received her undergraduate degree from Catawba College (N. C.) and her M. S. degree in chemistry from the University of Tennessee. She has had teaching experience in two of these institutions.

McIntyre, a retired commander in the U. S. Navy, holds an undergraduate degree from the U. S. Naval Academy and has an M. A. degree from Duke University. He has taught at the Naval Academy, Duke University and Mount Olive Junior College (N. C.).

Crist is a graduate of the U. S. Naval Academy and has a Master's degree from Duke University. A retired Navy captain, he has taught at the Naval Academy, Duke University and Longwood College.

Professor Harkey received his B. A. degree from the University of South Carolina and his M. A. degree from the University of Tennessee in English. He is working on his Ph. D. degree at Tennessee this summer. Harkey served as Dean of Men at Frederick College for two years and has had teaching experience at the University of Tennessee, North Georgia College and Adirondack Community College (N. Y.).

Mrs. Sherman received her A. B. and M. A. degrees from the University of Rhode Island and has done additional graduate work at George Washington University. She has taught at the University of Rhode Island.

All appointments are effective September 1. President Clarke indicates that college officials hope to complete all faculty and staff appointments by August 20.

Virginia Wesleyan will open for its first freshman class in September. A new $1.5 million academic village will be ready for occupancy early in September. College officials expect a first-year enrollment of about 75 freshmen. Clarke, vice-president at Randolph-Macon College in Ashland for eight years, assumed the presidency of Virginia Wesleyan on August 1.

Hamilton Clan

Reunion

THALIA—Mrs. M. D. Benda and daughter, Alison, are attending a family reunion of 27 persons of the Hamilton clan who are assembling at the home of Mrs. G. A. Hamilton at Wrightsville Beach, Wilmington, North Carolina.

Mr. Hamilton, whose wish this was, passed away before the reunion materialized.

Mrs. Benda is the wife of Lt. Col. (USMC-Ret.) M. D. Benda who is taking over the management of the Mayflower Coffee Shop on September 1.

City Gets Land

On Rudee Inlet

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Rudee Inlet Authority has voted to transfer all property it has acquired to the City of Virginia Beach. At its Tuesday meeting, the members of the Authority took steps aimed at turning over the property on the south end of Virginia Beach Borough.

Officials of the group stated, however, that the transfer does not halt the demise of the Authority. The only reason that the transfer became necessary was because the Authority no longer has any legal power to condemn or buy lands. The City of Virginia Beach does have this power, and is expected to continue the work of the Rudee Inlet Authority.

Frank W. Kellam, Sr., head of the Authority said, "I have every confidence that the plans for the development of Rudee Inlet will be carried out."

The Authority, created in 1960 by the Virginia General Assembly, originally planned to acquire property on the Inlet to build facilities for a marina. At that time, the City loaned the Authority $60,000. Some thirty tracts of land were bought.

Then, however, property owners challenged the power of the Authority. A court case followed and last spring the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals upheld a lower court ruling striking down the power of the Authority to condemn property.

The development of Rudee Inlet is considered to be of prime importance to the future growth of the south end of Virginia Beach Borough.

TV Facts Sought

Some families in Virginia Beach and throughout Tidewater are to be included in a special survey on household ownership of television sets to be conducted as a supplement to the August Current Population Survey of the Bureau of the Census, according to Director Joseph R. Norwood of the Census Regional Office in Charlotte.

Questions in the supplementary survey, supported by the Advertising Research Foundation, will be asked of only a part of all families questioned in the regular monthly survey aimed at obtaining employment figures for the Bureau of Labor Statistics, U. S. Department of Labor. The information is taken from selected households in 357 sample areas of the nation.

Census interviewers who will collect information in this area include: Mrs. Carolyn B. Hefflin, 2815 N. Kings Road, Virginia Beach, Va. 23462; Mrs. Helen K. Elasingham, 1205 N. Fairwater

GARRIOTT-BAMFORTH

VIRGINIA BEACH—Miss Grace Marie Bamforth became the bride of Richard Ellis Garrriott on Saturday in a candlelight ceremony held in Kempsville Baptist Church at 4 p.m. The Rev. Charles Jones and the Rev. Arnold Blount performed the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Allan Bamforth Sr. of 5172 Overland Road. The bridegroom's parents are Commander (USN ret.) and Mrs. Richard H. Garrriott of 261 Amberly Road.

Chester Allan Bamforth Sr. gave his daughter in marriage. Maid of honor was Miss Patricia A. Johnson of Churchland, and matron of honor was Mrs. Chester Allan Bamforth Jr.

Bridesmaids were Miss Patricia A. Russell of Churchland.

Miss Peggy Knight of Chesapeake, and Mrs. Richard W. Dean of Virginia Beach. Junior bridesmaid was Miss Nancy Deaton of Savannah, Georgia, cousin of the bride.

The bridegroom's father, Cdr. Richard Ralph Garrriott, served as best man. Ushers were Michael H. Garrriott, brother of the bridegroom; Chester A. Bamforth Jr. and Ralph R. Bamforth, both brothers of the bride; K. George Menk of Staunton, and Herbert Culpepper of Virginia Beach.

The reception was held in the Commissioned Officers' Club at Oceana Naval Air Station.

McCloud Is Club Speaker

VIRGINIA BEACH—Va. Beach Detective Douglas McCloud was the guest speaker Tuesday night at the regular meeting of the Virginia Beach Civitan Club. The meeting was held at the White Heron Motel, and McCloud was introduced by the new Civitan president, Mayhew Sawyer.

McCloud asked his audience to think back to their childhoods. To parental discipline and parental control. He then maintained that times have changed considerably.

He blamed parents for much crime by juveniles. He said they give too much money to their young children, and give them too many opportunities to be "on the loose" much too late at night.

New Chief Of Staff

LITTLE CREEK, VA.—Captain Victor Delano relieved Captain Monroe Kelly as chief of staff to Vice Admiral Charles K. Duncan, Commander Amphibious Force, U. S. Atlantic Fleet.

The turn over took place in the Amphibious Force headquarters at the Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base.

Captain Kelly will serve on the staff of the Fifth Naval District command until his retirement in December, 1966. Captain Kelly, a native of Norfolk, plans to retire in Virginia Beach.

Capt. Delano commanded Norfolk-based Amphibious Squadron EIGHT before his present assignment. Captain Delano has served on two Norfolk homeported ships: as commanding officer of the amphibious command ship USS Ticonderoga (AGC-17), and as executive officer of the Atlantic Fleet flag ship, the heavy cruiser USS Newport News (CA-148).

Captain Delano is married to the former Miss Jacqueline Stinson of Santa Fe, N. M. He is a native of Washington, D. C. and the son of the late Captain and Mrs. Harvey Delano. The Delanos and their children, Katherine and Harvey II, live at 1113 Lee Road, Virginia Beach.

In addition McCloud told of two shootings in Virginia Beach in two days involving juveniles. He also told of a sex pervert arrested recently preying on young children who should have been at home in the first place.

Not only should children be trained to watch out for this type of person, he said, but it is up to the parent to keep a closer watch on the youngster. McCloud added that not all juvenile delinquents come from broken homes. He said many come from good homes, but the parents just do not seem to care or they are not home either.

McCloud said that Va. Beach sends a large number of juveniles to a detention home in Great Bridge each month while they are awaiting trial. He suggested more parental control and more defensive action by Virginia Beach citizens.

On Sunday afternoon in the Old Dominion College library, an informational Panhellenic Tea was held honoring area high school graduates and their mothers. This is an annual affair given by Norfolk Panhellenic, and invitations had been sent to all girls planning to attend colleges having sororities which are members of the National Panhellenic Conference.

More than 200 attended, and Virginia Beach was well represented. Entering the doors early, we found Lucy Ann Quintance (Chi Omega) preparing to give out name tags and booklets to the long line of awed and interested girls with their well-dressed mothers. They were preparing to "run the gauntlet" of the first steps of "making" a sorority when they enter the college of their choice in September.

Mrs. T. Cornell Berry (Kappa Kappa Gamma) from Virginia Beach and a past president, wore a navy georgette and azure flowered hat, and she welcomed us as she rushed around helping with the tea preparations upstairs. As the long line moved, we talked with Mrs. May Melzer and her daughter Andrea, and Mrs. S. Saunders with Ellen, her daughter. Mrs. Melzer said that she had attended Old Dominion when it was a part of William and Mary and when there were no sororities on campus. Andrea looked forward to her freshman year under different circumstances.

In the long hallway on the second floor, a receiving line composed of Mrs. J. Reginald Scott, president of the local chapter; Mrs. M. F. McAfee, first vice president from the Beach; Mrs. Sidney Askew Jr. of Virginia Beach, second vice president; and Mrs. John Inman, secretary-treasurer, welcomed the guests. After enjoying the refreshments served from a beautifully appointed table, decorated with Fall flowers and laden with sweets, the guests inspected the display tables.

There the symbols, pins, booklets, colors, pennants, trophies and philanthropic work done by these national sororities represented in the Norfolk City Panhellenic Association were on display.

Two Va. Beach Teams Enter

RICHMOND—A 24-team schedule will be drafted by the Amateur Softball Association for the 10th Annual Mixed Tournament.

This event, in which each team is required to field five women and five men, is scheduled on four diamonds at Byrd Park here Saturday, starting at 10 a.m.

To date, 15 teams have entered. They are:

Recreation Department and McDaniels Kelly Electric Co., both of Lynchburg; Deep Creek Pharmacy of Chesapeake; Merr's Steak House of Portsmouth; Adams of Newport News; Walker Realty and Overton's, both of Virginia Beach; Blue Jays, Echo's Inn, Reynolds Metals Printing, Jimmy's Colonial Inn, Scotties, Powhatan, Polvanos No. 1 and No. 2, all of Richmond.

The winner does not advance to competition at a higher level for the simple reason that this is the only tournament of its type in the Amateur Softball Association of America.

Players who have competed in unsanctioned tournaments or former pro athletes who have not been reinstated for amateur ball are not eligible.

Other softballers interested should call State Softball Commissioner Hank Wolfe in Richmond (AT 2-5060) after 4:30 P.M.

Mrs. Donald H. Rhodes and

Mrs. Warren Oliver, social chairman, were serving with their usual contagious smiles. Mrs. Jack Meredith with her daughter Jane, were from the Beach and dressed in a periwinkle blue linen suit and snarling matching hat. Barbara Gosman, president of the W & M Alumnae chapters of Pi Beta Phi, looked lovely in white eyelid Empire dress. Barbara is moving to the Beach.

After much chit-chat and admiration for the displays, everyone gathered in the auditorium where Mrs. Scott greeted the mothers and daughters. Mrs. McAfee spoke briefly on the aims and purposes of the National Panhellenic Conference sororities, the difference between high school and college sororities, and their importance to college and alumnae.

Highlighting this meeting was the announcement by Mrs. McAfee that Virginia Norman was the recipient of a $460 scholarship, the money for this annual award being raised each year through a spring card party.

Old Dominion students, Jean Jennings, Marie Armstrong, Lynne Baldwin, Barbara Barnett, Dianne Bowles and Peggy Marable, along with Nancy Holland and Beverly McAfee from Cox, Juane Melcher from Granby, and Rhonda Stodert from Princess Anne High were the models for a college fashion show presented by Rose Hall.

Chi Omega, Alpha Sigma Tau, Tri Delta, Kappa Kappa Gamma, Alpha Delta Pi, Delta Zeta, Kappa Delta, Phi Mu, and our own Pi Beta Phi were all there bringing back fond memories.

Drivers Exam

NORFOLK—Postmaster, Aubrey G. Graham, has announced today a Civil Service Examination for the position of Motor Vehicle Operator at U. S. Post Office, Norfolk, Virginia.

Federal careers offer high job security, excellent chances for advancement, regular salary increases, and other benefits which include low cost insurance and a liberal retirement plan.

The Norfolk Office is now in a position to offer appointments to those who qualify sufficiently high through early applications.

These positions will be filled first by applicants who are bona fide residents of Norfolk, Portsmouth and Virginia Beach, Virginia.

Other non-local eligibles will be considered only in the absence of Norfolk, Portsmouth and Virginia Beach, Virginia eligibles. Before being appointed, applicants must possess a valid Virginia state driver's license, be at least 18 years old and United States citizens.

The Postmaster urges those who are interested in the Motor Vehicle Operator Examination to obtain information and application forms by contacting Board of U. S. Civil Service Examiners, U. S. Post Office, Norfolk, Virginia.

Bike Owners Beware

VIRGINIA BEACH—Riding a bicycle is fun, but riding an unlicensed bicycle could bring trouble. Juvenile Detective Michael Zello, who was assigned to the bike theft detail earlier this month, warns owners that bicycles are being checked for registration.

Fines for having an unregistered bike range from $1 to $10 and parents and their children will have to appear in Juvenile Court.

Thefts of bicycles comprised 10 per cent of the larcenies reported in the city last year, Zello said. Registration of bicycles by owners is basically for their own protection.

In the past three months police have accumulated more than 100 bikes that were abandoned after being stolen, but they have no registration. "Some of them are brand new, but we have no way of determining who owns them if they aren't registered," Zello commented.

Those who have had a bicycle stolen may meet Zello at Princess Anne Courthouse before noon each Saturday to go to Cresskill Airfield to check through recovered bikes. To register a bicycle costs only $1. It can be mailed to police headquarters, 2nd Precinct in the resort area, or visit either place in person.

EDITORIALLY SPEAKING

The Teaching Situation

More than two thousand additional pupils will be in Virginia Beach schools this year. There will be more than thirty new teaching and administrative positions added. And there will be two new schools, one a fully-equipped high school.

It has been a most frustrating prob-

A Stinging Problem

In recent years authorities agree that the stinging nettle problem along most of the waterways of the East coast has been getting worse. No one is exactly certain just why there are so many more of the menaces to bathers and water skiers, but they do know they do not like them.

It has become a universal problem in Chesapeake Bay. In some parts of the upper bay the nettles have been seen as early as April. Although they do not appear in Virginia Beach waterways quite that early, they seem to come earlier every year.

Not being a terribly proficient water skier, we quit the sport because we just couldn't get used to falling off in a mess of the slimy stingers in the Narrows.

Now there is talk of a ten million dollar appropriation for Maryland and Virginia to study the nettle problem in the hope that something can be done about the horrible things. All the facts are not in on the proposed legislation that would start the wheels of this study in motion, but on the surface we endorse and support the measure for the good of Virginia Beach.

Anything that can be done to reduce the number of nettles in our waters will certainly be an improvement. Unless there is something in the proposed legislation that we cannot see now, we urge Virginia Beach citizens to let it be known to our elected and appointed officials how you feel about this matter. They will in turn pass it on to the proper State and Federal authorities.

Perhaps nothing can be done to amount to anything, but we feel it is certainly worth a try to clear our waters of the nettles. Perhaps we should start a real campaign against the nettle. For a name... How about "Needle the Nettle?"

The Forthcoming Competition

Within the next few days, an influx of people will be coming to Virginia Beach for one particular event. They are surfers from all over the East Coast and from other places too, who will be here for the Virginia Beach Surfing Carnival next weekend, which will host the East Coast Surfing Championships.

Most of the participants and the spectators who will be coming will be young, but they will fill our hotels and motels and spend their money here. They are tourists, and we welcome them.

Surfing, not only in Virginia Beach, has not always had a particularly good name. Too often the sport has attracted an element that even the serious surfers abhor. This has not helped the sport. But one picture on the cover of Sports Illustrated showing surfers in Virginia Beach has raised the dignity of the sport almost to the heights the really dedicated surfers would like to see.

We are all for competition in any sport and look forward with great anticipation to the surfing championship competition here next weekend. And we fully support Virginia Beach Surfing Carnival as sponsored by the Virginia Beach Jaycees.

lem in the past ten years trying to keep the supply of schools, teachers, books and supplies up with the demand caused by the mushrooming growth of our city. But all of this has been done, and it will continue to be done. The rapid growth is not over by any means. In fact, there is some doubt that it is even leveling off.

Still, with all the problems, the School Board has managed to give the teachers a raise every year. This year is no exception. The starting salary for beginning teachers is the same as Norfolk, but unfortunately a little below that of Portsmouth and Chesapeake. But the school budgets of these cities have not grown by the leaps and bounds that has been the mark of progress for Virginia Beach.

The budget for Virginia Beach is fantastically large and will get larger as more and more teachers are hired, and as more and more of the experienced teachers progress toward the maximum salary rate.

We are still not convinced that teachers make enough money in this world of today, but it is a consolation at all, the starting salary now only lacks a little of being double what it was when we started teaching at Princess Anne High School in 1955.

We are proud of the rapid progress of our school system, especially in the face of all the problems that have had to be faced and must still be faced.

As we prepare for another school year, we once again take this opportunity to commend the fine work of all the school workers from Mr. Cox on down.

A Tragedy And A Hero

Last Sunday a major tragedy occurred in Aragona Village for the second time in a year. The only difference this time is that the driver of the hit-and-run car was apprehended. In the other case the driver remains at large to wrestle with his conscience.

In the recent incident, a nine-year old boy was struck down and killed while he stood on a neighbor's lawn talking to the man. It should not have happened, but it did. The driver has been charged with several violations. We do not pass judgment, but we hope the course of true justice is served.

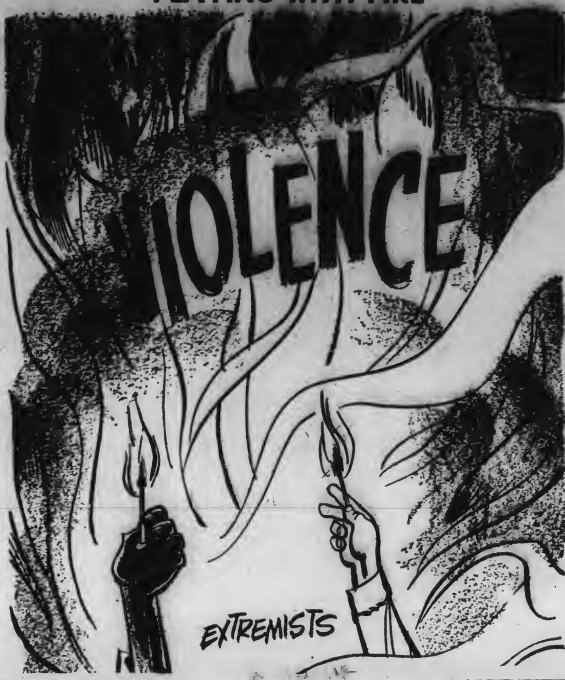

The City of Virginia Beach has just another traffic statistic to record, but the child's family must live with the black day's events for the rest of their lives.

Except for the quick thinking of a neighbor, his courage and his willingness to get involved, the driver may have escaped apprehension. But this man, a former Norfolk policeman, risked life and limb chasing the driver in his own car, stopping him and holding him until Police could arrive. Of course he did not have to do it, but the important thing is that he did it; and to him, his friends and neighbors are eternally grateful, as are we.

He showed what a true public-spirited man he is, and we suggest that he be given some sort of special award or medal for his heroic deed, which he does not consider heroic.

The pitiful part of it all is that, according to several sources, the man called out for others to help him. They did not. They did not want to get involved, so it seems. Obviously we do not know what we would do in a case of this type, but we hope we would be willing to help. And we hope that all citizens of this city take a long look at this man and try to live up to his standards.

PLAYING WITH FIRE

Help The Planning Commission

The City Planning Commission has taken on what could be a vast project, especially if all residents of Virginia Beach help out. The Commission seeks to identify and record all pertinent facts about all houses built before 1860 and still standing in Virginia Beach.

Deep in what was old Princess Anne County many have already been identified, but it is believed there must be many more, and the CPC wants to know all about them.

We consider this a fine project and hope that the Commission will follow through in several ways. We believe history is quite important, although it can sometimes impede progress. But in this area of the nation, developed so soon after the first settlers arrived, his-

Time For A Crackdown

There has been a law on the books of Virginia Beach that states all bicycles must be registered with the Police. There has never been a crackdown on offenders, but now that crackdown has been promised. Registration of bicycles does not cost anything and it is a means of protection for the bike owner.

What has been happening lately is that a number of bicycles in a given neighborhood have been disappearing in a relatively short span of time. Police feel that a person or persons are making a business of stealing bikes, altering them and selling them elsewhere. And it is entirely possible for many reasons.

First of all, too many children and their parents are far too careless with the bikes. They leave them unattended for long periods of time, even overnight. They do not lock them to anything, which would at least deter a bike snatcher. And then they wonder why they disappear.

Secondly, only a handful of bike owners record the serial number on the frame or handlebars or even the make. In the event the bike is stolen, there is a possibility it could be recovered if the owner knew the serial number. Now if the bike happens to turn up at the Police Station at City Hall, as so many do, it is difficult even for the owner to identify the bike.

Of course, some owners report the loss, but never go to the Police Station to recover a bike. Others do not even report the loss. Those bikes are sold at auction. At the present time the Police have a large number of unclaimed bikes on hand that must belong to someone.

Registration therefore, must not be looked upon as a chore. It should be an obligation to the owner and a means of protecting him from thieves and other devious persons. We hope all parents and bike owners will co-operate with the Police in this registration matter, and will not have to be apprehended without a mandatory license. And we hope that potential thieves take note of this and leave the bikes alone.

tory is steeped all around us and must not be ignored or forgotten.

It is unfortunate that so many historic landmarks have been destroyed and leveled in the name of progress, but that is done. We hope now that the CPC will not only record these old homes, but will point the correct organizations in the right directions toward making historic centers out of some of them.

With this in mind we urge all residents of Virginia Beach who have any knowledge of any of the old homes the City Planning Commission seeks to know about, to make the information known. It could lead to a whole new aspect of Virginia Beach, the city of progress. We could also revel in our heritage and show it off proudly to the rest of the world along with our progress.

The Newest Library

THE NEWEST LIBRARY.....

In the second section of this edition of the Virginia Beach Sun there is a story about the new Windsor Woods Library which is well worth reading. The newest library in the city opened in May and has been a hub of activity ever since. Residents of that highly populated area of Lynnhaven Borough have taken to the library with gusto. That is fine. That is what it is there for.

The building was built for the present and for the future, and has allowed for expansion. As the result of this, the shelves may seem to be a bit bare. In fact, they may seem very bare. But the librarians are not perturbed at all, as we were when first we saw nothing on so many shelves, including the ones in the reference room.

The library relies on appropriations from the City for operation maintenance and for new purchases. A fair amount is appropriated to this library. In addition, the Windsor Woods Library has received monetary gifts from civic groups and from individuals, for which the librarians are grateful. But still the shelves look so bare. It is a slow and painful process building a good library, and the Windsor Woods Branch is doing a fine job.

Another reason that the shelves look so bare is that so many of the books have been checked out. Only a small amount of the inventory remains on the shelves at any given time. The only answer is more books.

The librarians let it be known they are content with the City's stocking and handling of the new branch, but they also let it be known they are not adverse to a little financial help from groups or just private citizens.

Books provide a wonderful world for young and old alike. Think about that the next time you see all those empty shelves. You just might be prompted to help out in some small way. One never knows.

THE BEACH THIS WEEK

George Michele Luke, who escaped from Municipal Court at Princess Anne last week remains at large, but his wife is being held in jail under $1,000 bond charged with aiding his escape. Luke was arrested on a tip to police, and the court hearing was to determine if he could be extradited to Georgia, reportedly to face three counts of burglary. Luke escaped in the court hall at a water fountain when his wife pushed him out of the way. Luke ran into woods and could not be located.

Federal construction in Virginia Beach through July 1 was up considerably over a year ago. The figure of $4,739,032 in 1966 is more than double the figure of $1,770,384 in 1965.

The Builders and Contractors Exchange, Inc. of Norfolk will hold its annual golf outing at Bow Creek Golf and Country Club on Sept. 22. George Wadsworth, Jr., executive director of the exchange, said tickets would be mailed out about Sept. 1.

The sea water pump, which pumps millions of gallons of salt water daily into Back Bay from the Atlantic Ocean is back in operation after a breakdown on June 24. A larger number of fish were noted in the Bay after the pump began again, but ducks are still shunning the area because of so little plant life to feed on. An estimate of damage from the two-month breakdown is impossible, according to officials.

Construction has started on a third, agreeable agency on Virginia Beach Boulevard near Princess Anne Plaza. The new Coates Motor Co. location lies just to the west of Princess Anne Plaza Shopping Center. Coates sells Dodges and Chryslers. Construction is also underway on the new Embarce Ford and RK Chevrolet buildings between Princess Anne Plaza and Lynnhaven Road.

Bids opened today for construction of three sewage pumping stations in the Birdneck sanitary system. The new system will serve areas along Birdneck Road between Virginia Beach Boulevard and Laskin Road.

Two Virginia Beach officers and one Virginia Beach enlisted man have been decorated for meritorious service in Viet Nam in ceremonies at the Naval Amphibious School at Little Creek. Lt. Franklin F. Howe, Jr., USNR, Capt. Martin W. Smithson, U.S. Marine Corps, and James W. England, Navy engineer first class were the recipients of the medals.

THE VIRGINIA BEACH OPEN FORUM

Dear Mr. Lowenthal:

The cast of the recent VIRGINIA'S SING OUT SOUTH show has asked me to thank the City of Virginia Beach for the marvelous reception given them at the Alan B. Shepard Civic Center and during their stay in our City. Most particularly they expressed gratitude to you and all the newspapers, television and radio stations for the advance publicity, for the volunteer aid given by organizations and individuals, by Kellam and Eaton, Galilee Episcopal Church where they met, Norfolk Academy who supplied a bus for transportation, and by representatives of our City: the Chamber of Commerce, the Department of Parks and Recreation, and the Civic Center, also the Y Teens.

The food committee had donations from all denominations. Iteated by Mr. and Mrs. James Cook, Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Walker and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Hubbard, this group did a fabulous job. A vote of real thanks also goes to all those who opened their homes for the cast to spend the night.

As middle man I would like to turn like to thank both the cast from Richmond and Williamsburg for their tireless effort to prepare together for this show, and for their generosity in coming without any plan for recompense.

People have asked me about Moral Re-Armament which started the first SING OUT in 1963. The idea behind SING OUTS is not a religion, nor is it a substitute for religion. It is a way of life in which everyone can take part, and the casts of SING OUT are determined to produce a new, hard-working, tough breed of American with a love of God and country in his heart. They want to express a concept of life for our nation in which all 200,000,000 of their fellow countrymen can take part, and which the whole world would follow.

It is interesting that Mrs. Robert Hornsby, who heads the Williamsburg group is a Second Reader in the Christian Science Church, Mrs. Thurston of the Richmond group is a Baptist, while Mr. Bob Piper, Musical Director, is an Episcopalian. The cast is made up of Presbyterians, Lutherans, Catholics, plus those who do not hold a faith. People of all races, creeds and countries can come together from all over the world, as in the case of SING OUT, and find understanding and trust; this is what it takes to make peace in the world. If one thinks the principles behind MRA are good and decides to live by them then they in effect have become a member of MRA. It is as simple as that, for there are no members, who dues or lists of members.

Both by request of the audience and written request of area youth I am planning to form a VIRGINIA BEACH SING OUT group. I will organize and call the first rehearsal the last week in August. We need singers, instrumentalists and help in staging the show.

Sincerely,
Ricky Hanger

NO NAGS THESE

Dear Sir:

Quite some time ago, in your good paper the picture of a colt in a very unusual pose was published, the photographer dubbed her a nag which she resented very much.

Knowing her very well from the day of her birth which was one year and six months ago, I can assure you she is from aristocracy of the horse world and valued at $2,000.00, but not for sale at any price.

So in order to correct any wrong impressions the public may have about her, she and her mother conspired to pose for the picture I am sending you, and to tell you she was just dog hungry for some of the green grass on the other side of the fence, now I ask you are we not all.

Sincerely,
Raymond C. Purvis
(O. K. I. Don't Nag!—Ed.)

Dear Sir:

Much has been said and written recently about the "almighty 33" that has formed an organization with the stated purpose of informing and instructing the people of Virginia Beach how to vote and how their city should or should not be run.

It is my opinion that Rhoe Adams, chosen president of the group, and his five faithful followers have insulted the intelligence of the people of this great city, in implying that he and his disciples should or could lead any, one to vote their way.

It is also my opinion that Mr. Adams is a radical and could do his very few followers better service from the sidelines than from the center of the arena.

We have enjoyed in Virginia Beach prosperity very much above average, even for this country, the most prosperous in the world. Without good government for many years this would not have been possible. It is also known by me that Mr. Adams and the other 32 members of "Good Government Association" have been highly successful and prosperous in reaping the fruits of Virginia Beach.

Please don't tell me that our good local and state government did not contribute in some small way.

Neps Season Opens Thurs.

DAM NECK—It was back to the drawing boards and the training fields for the Neptunes Sunday at Dam Neck. The Neptunes suffered a hard-fought 4-7 defeat to the Orlando Panthers over the weekend. It was their second exhibition defeat against no wins in pre-season play. The Orlando game was the final exhibition game before the Neptunes open the regular season.

The regular season opens Thursday in Toronto, leaving the team only four days of additional training and regrouping after the Saturday night loss.

Coach Gary Glick made no all-bis for his second-year team, but said that the injury list was "as long as your arm." Several of the injured, including Joe Hightower, will miss the Toronto game. Coach Glick summed up the Orlando game quickly. He said "Orlando was very good. We were very bad." Glick rates the Toronto Rifles as one of the teams in the Continental League to beat this year, and in a class with Orlando.

The roster for the Neptunes is far from set, though the team is now down to the regulation 35 strength on the active list. Following the Orlando game, Glick was forced to do much reshuffling for the Toronto game and put the team through its paces diligently for the game.

Funny Fuelers At Dragway

CREEDS—August 27 is the date set for the tournament of "funny fuelers" (fuel-injected engines) at Virginia Beach Dragway. Additional hot cars have been added to the field.

The latest entrant is Tom Strum of Costa Mesa, California, billed as the fastest Chevrolet fuel-injected engine driver on the West Coast. Strum drives a lightweight Chevrolet Malibu, named Just 4 Chevy Lovers. The car has been turning the quarter-mile distance in nine seconds at speeds of 160 MPH and better.

Other well-known entrants in the "funny fuelers" tournament include Billy West of Arlington, driving a Dodge owned by Kenny Warren and named the Virginia Twister.

Virginia Beach Dragway promoter Jack DeLong is arranging to have two more top-rated fuel injectors in the field for the special match.

A spokesman for the dragway said that additional space for spectators has been provided to handle the anticipated large crowds for the tournament. The bleachers will now seat about 2,300 persons.

In addition to the hot car tournament, a full program of stocker, gassters, motorcycles, powder puffers and "purely strictly stockers" will be held on the same evening.

Exit Seahawk Club After Buying New FCHS Uniforms

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Seahawk Club is defunct. There is simply no need for the future existence of the adult booster club created three years ago to aid the Seahawks of Virginia Beach High School. It is also defunct, but many of its teachers, administrators and students will emerge as the Patriots of First Colonial High School.

One of the last acts of the old Seahawk Club was to purchase brand new colorful football uniforms for the Patriots and turn them over to Coach Lew Breedlove. The purchase was made with funds collected by the club.

In its short existence, the Seahawk Club sponsored an annual football banquet that rivaled none. Last year, Baltimore Colts star John Unitas, was the guest speaker. The club also sent the football teams of the past to see two professional games and one college game.

The club raised money by operating the concession stand at football games and by selling football programs.

Had the money for the uniforms not been donated by the Seahawk Club, the school would have been forced to go into debt for them, said Al Craft, club president. But the club came through, purchasing 70 uniforms, 35 for the road, and 35 for home games, in blue and gold.

The team will be playing at Princess Anne High Stadium, since it has no stadium of its own and will play in Group I immediately, and should draw large crowds. That stadium will seat more than three times the old Virginia Beach High stadium. Oddly enough, the Patriots open their initial season on September 17 against the Princess Anne Cavaliers.

There is a possibility that a Patriot counterpart to the Seahawk Club may be formed, but at the moment, the old club is out of business, and it went out of business in style... for the Patriots, that is.

League Champions

VA. BEACH—In play sponsored by the Virginia Beach Department of Parks and Recreation, the John B. Dey Merchants defeated the Greenwich Mets 9-7 to take the Intermediate League Tournament championship. The Merchants won their last 7 games to gain a berth in the tournament, then swept the opposition aside to take the honors.

In the Duffer League tournament, the Reds, who finished 4th in regular season play, defeated league champion, White Telephone, Answering Service, 9-8, on the strength of Joe Brannan's timely 3 run homer in the top of the 7th inning. In the second game of the evening, the championship contest, the Reds downed the Benchwarmers 7-1. Charlie Fry had a homer and 3 RBIs; Pete Long a triple; Jack Etheridge 2 doubles and Charlie Turner, a stand out defense, had 3 for 4 to pace the winners. Curtis Brily was the winning pitcher of both contests.

In Unlimited League play, Smith & Keene bombed FIT 25-13. Bill Harrell was 4 for 4 and Homer Brooks went 4 for 5. Cliff Louder 5 for 5 to lead the winners. In a second contest to decide who would gain a tournament berth, Smith & Keene defeated Pungo Texaco 28-16. John Thompson was 6 for 7 with 1 homer and 3 RBIs; Bobby Wright was 6 for 6 with 1 homer and 6 RBIs; Bill Harrell was 6 for 6 and Pete Atherton went 5 for 6 for the victors.

Church League play saw Scott Foundry blanking First United 14-0. George Schimmell pitched a 3 hitter, had 4 for 6 at the plate and put 4 RBIs across the plate. The Bobcats swamped Bayside Baptist 19-2. Tommy Johnson was 4 for 5; Ronnie Jones 3 for 4; Gary Guerin 2 for 3 to lead the winners. Ed Turner was the winning pitcher. Plaza Baptist nipped the Crusaders 12-11 in a 10 inning contest which saw Bob Spencer bring across the final run on a single.

Golf Tourney At Oceana

OCEANA — Andy Mosley, from NANTUCKET, Oceana, overcame a seven stroke deficit and shot a par 71 to win the South Atlantic Regional Golf Tournament at Oceana on Thursday.

Mosley's total of 294 was good enough for a one stroke victory over Jim Deemer who shot 295. Deemer held the third round lead but faded in the final day with a 79. George Ceech finished third at 298 while Dave Follman, defending all-Navy champ, came home fourth at 299.

These four players will now go to the all-Navy tourney being held at Patuxent River, Md. August 18-19.

Fishing Up At Va. Beach

VIRGINIA BEACH — Although many fishermen, including a number of Virginia Beach residents, have been migrating to Oregon Inlet, North Carolina, for white marlin fishing, it is beginning to look like they could stay at home and ply the waters of the Atlantic off Virginia Beach.

The white marlin, an elusive fish at best, is waiting about 40 miles off Cape Henry, Blifish, weighing up to 70 pounds, are reported in that area. Sea bass at the reef have been available in good numbers and dolphin have been plentiful for this time of year.

On the Virginia Beach piers, spot have been running in large numbers, mostly in the early morning and late at night. The Lynnhaven pier has been boasting good quantities of spot, some good sized, and a few croakers.

The fishing pier at the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel has reported the flounder finally coming in. Several Virginia Beach main- as reported some citation sized flounder last weekend, and the prospects remain good this weekend.

Generally speaking off shore fishing for blifish has not hit its peak so far, and the prospects remain good. In the bay and on the pier, the prospects for more spot, on the larger side, look good also. It has only been in the past few days that the spot and croakers have been of measurable size.

Football Meeting

VIRGINIA BEACH—All Recreation Area Chairmen are urged to attend the football organizational meeting for the 1966 season on Tuesday, August 16th at 7:30 p.m. The meeting will be held at the Recreation Department's Activity Center, 4400 Nike Site Road, Va. Beach. The Activities Center is located below Kempsville just off Salem Road.

Softball Leagues

VA. BEACH—In play sponsored by the Virginia Beach Parks & Recreation Department, the Class "A" men's softball league saw Cambric down the Browns twice 9-7 and 9-6.

Leaders for Cambric in both contests were as follows: Ray Davis 2 for 4 including 2 homers, Roy Ammons 4 for 6, Chuck Griffin 2 for 3, Tom Mason 2 for 3, Joe Midgett 2 for 3. Dick Rowe was the winning pitcher in both games.

Walker swamped Rio's 25-10 on the strength of Tom Yancey's 4 for 4, Jack Smith's 4 for 6, Worth Womble's 3 for 5 and 5 RBIs and Denny Collis 3 for 5. Pungo defeated DeHart 11-3.

In the Men's Unlimited Tournament, first round play saw Chesapeake Beach defeating Smith & Keene 7-2 and Thalia Esso downing Kempsville 17-3. The winners advanced to the finals where Chesapeake Beach, the regular season champ, squeaked out a 17-16 victory in an 8 inning contest.

Leaders for Chesapeake Beach were as follows: Bob Huffins 3 for 5 including one home run. Huffins also scored the winning run; Horst Seibert 3 for 5. Emmett Sanford 2 for 4 including one homer, Russell Snyder 3 for 5 and Dan Marshall 3 for 5.

Computer And Crane Not In Va. Beach Yet

VIRGINIA BEACH—The war in Viet Nam is affecting the City of Virginia Beach in more ways than one, or so it would seem. Giles Dodd of the City's Finance Department is still waiting for his computer, and Charles Kiley of the Public Works Department is still waiting for his crane. Both suspect the war in Viet Nam as the culprit.

The computer, which is to be installed in the Finance Department will punch out the operation of the City when installed. The problem is that it has been on order for some months now and shipment has been promised several times, only to be delayed. The City was to have been under the computer's influence by last month, but now it is not known when the machine will be in operation, even when it does get here.

The crane may be closer to operation. City Manager W. Russell Hatchett says a letter was received the early part of the week saying the major part of the large crane should be delivered to the construction site of the City marina at Lynnhaven any day.

LEE CHAMBERS

Lee Chambers Heads Assn.

The Business and Professional Men of London Bridge elected Lee E. Chambers President recently. Elected along with Mr. Chambers was Theodore Beasley, Vice-President and Paul Chrisman as Secretary-Treasurer. Directors elected are Roy DeHart, Ray Sparrow, Joe Murden and Charlie Cashman, Jr.

This business organization is a young, but progressive, one. It's members work together for one common cause, to develop London Bridge and the surrounding area.

A long range planning committee is working on the future progress of the area. Several new businesses have moved into the area and hopes are to interest many more. A beautification committee is working on plans for the area when the bulldozers, pile drivers and dirt hauling equipment has to be moved out in 1967.

When the new expressway is finished, it will add beauty to the area with its green hills and colorful valleys with flowers scattered here and there. The overpass near the stoplight will be a "London Bridge" and will truly be at the crossroads of Virginia Beach.

School Board Meeting

"In 1967, however, the new Plaza Elementary School is to be located on a 15 acre site on South Lynnhaven and Holland Roads", he concluded. Three new schools erected in Kingston and Alantown will be ready and completed for opening on Sept. 6.

Mr. Strickler reported that all of the accommodations except lockers are ready for the opening of the First Colonial High School of Virginia Beach. "Crews are working overtime", he said; "The Airplane strike has deterred the efforts to get our material to us", he said. Later in the meeting Strickler handed the sealed envelope containing the bids for the School Bus Liability and Property Damage Insurance. Since no other firm bid the insurance contract after discussion by James Kitchen and other Board members, was awarded to Grant Land for a sum of approximately $29,000. This firm has handled the contract for over 3 years and the successful agent stated that over 50 new buses and 9 vehicles were involved.

J. W. Buffington, Chairman of The School Board, presided at the meeting which was attended by Geo. C. Lyon, vice-chairman, Geo. R. Ferrell outgoing chairman for the past 10 years and now on City Council, Kennel L. Jard, Frank Williams, Spencer L. Lott, Ralph Lee Frost, and at large members: Robert H. De Ford, Jr., James L. Kitchin, Dr. Charles F. Fletcher, and Dr. Roy A. Woods, professor at Virginia State College.

New committees appointed with Buffington ex officio on all were: Buildings and Grounds; Lyon, Williams, Dr. Woods, and Kitchin; Policies; DeFord, Jard and Frost; Budget and Salaries; Fletcher and Lott.

Capital outlay for the year was $79,320.07. It was voted to pay all bills.

Buffington, on behalf of the board, paid tribute to the fine and conscientious work that Ferrell had done over the past 10 years as chairman. Jard also gave tribute. With a delightful sense of humor, Buffington said: "My only criticism of your regime would be that you saddled the new chairman with the name of the new First Colonial High School of Virginia Beach." Everyone laughed.

George Ferrell reported as a delegate to the District Meeting in Roanoke recently, to which he was a delegate, mentioning his wife's loyalty in "traveling with me and helping me through the years". He brought another laugh from all of the members when he stated that "Some schoolboard members (in Fairfax County) make as much as $3000 per year." The Virginia Beach School Board makes appreciably less.

ing quite proud, said he was extremely pleased with the operation of the city.

The City Manager said, "The fiscal policies of the City are sound. They are paying off and keeping us in good shape financially."

When he was asked about needing any additional revenue through new taxes in the near future, Hatcher beamed, and said, "No, I don't think there will be any need for an increase in taxes right away."

In the conclusion of the report, Dodd thanked all city departments for exhibiting a spirit of economy. By rights, when one looks at the surplus and the accomplishments of the City in the past fiscal year, one must agree with Messrs. Hatcher and Dodd.

Historical Homes

VIRGINIA BEACH—Old houses, like old wines and old wives, can be a fascinating subject. The Planning Commission of Virginia Beach wants to find out more about historical homes within our boundaries in an effort to prepare a listing of such homes.

They have requested that residents who know of homes built prior to 1900 to call the office at 426-0111.

The Virginia Beach Sun, with the help of correspondent, Mrs. Douglas Barnes, would also like to assist the Planning Commission in the search.

It is felt older residents who know about certain places that ting quite proud, said he was extremely pleased with the operation of the city.

It has also been learned that a strong membership drive has been gun. It has been reported that the goal is now 300 men, and that each of the original secret thirty who brings in as many as ten paying members will be made a director of the group. Another report says that each member is being asked to pay dues amounting to ten dollars a week for the period of one year. This is considered to be a large sum of money for a group which has no plans beyond the November election.

The secrecy of the organization is pointed out by the membership blanks being given out privately to prospective members, which reads:

"I, _____, agree to pay _____ dollars per month for a period of one year, commencing October 1st, 1966. Each payment is to be made to _____, Trustee.

It is further understood that my name is not to be divulged by _____ Trustee, and _____ Trustee is to turn the funds that I make payable to him, over to Good Government Fund, Inc."

One prominent citizen of Virginia Beach, upon learning of the secrecy, the intensive membership drive and the names of the officers said, "It looks like a revival of the old Roger Malbon group."

Roger Malbon, brother of one of the GGA directors was soundly defeated as a political candidate in 1955 in a hot political fight. He was, at that time, considered to be the head of the "anti" group, opposed to the dominant Democratic Organization.

It is further reported that Etheridge, who managed Spong's campaign in Virginia Beach in the Democratic Primary, has been offered a key position on one of the GGA committees; however Etheridge has declined to say whether he would accept.

When asked whether he would become a member of the association, Etheridge said, "Anyone in the City of Virginia Beach would support those principles," referring to good government. Prominent citizens, long associated with good government in the City of Virginia Beach have not argued with that premise.

The Constitutional officers, including City Treasurer, come up for election next year. There is some speculation that Etheridge will leave the Democratic Organization and run on a ticket fielded by GGA. At the present time, however, GGA is being extremely cautious in any statements, particularly in releasing any information about the group.

our city as one of the areas in which a state park or recreation area may be located. There has been appropriated $1,250,000 for the purchase of property in this area. The information seems to have passed around that this money is for the purpose of buying all of the property on the ocean front from the game preserve south to the North Carolina line; this, of course, is incorrect. On May 4 the Planning Commission of the City of Virginia Beach held a public hearing for the purpose of the City of Virginia Beach acquiring 1,350 acres of land south of the game preserve. Since then, the Parks and Recreation Commission of the City have also held a public hearing on the acquiring of this property. So far as we know, no opposition has developed at either of these public hearings. The City of Virginia Beach has just acquired a piece of property in that area paying over half a million dollars for it. If the Planning Commission and the Parks and Recreation Commission are planning to acquire additional property in this area and the state is willing to appropriate the money for this purpose, we think the City should approve and lend its support to this proposal.

At a meeting of the Conservation Commission held at Claytor Lake July 13 and 14, the Conservation Commission did give consideration to the purchase of acreage in this area and the appropriation of $1,250,000 made available for this purpose. We do not know whether the full 1,350 acres can be purchased for this amount, the reason being that the price has not been established or agreed upon but there is no thought on our part to attempt in any way to acquire all of the property between the game preserve and the North Carolina line. It should be noted that the Conservation Commission proposes to build all the necessary roads to adequately serve this park area."

General reaction to the park plan has been favorable, although there is expected to be some little opposition from certain landowners.

Some citizens would rather see the land remain available for private development, while still others say they recognize the need for recreational facilities being made available to the general public on the ocean front.

At any rate, the entire matter is expected to be given a full airing at Monday's City Council meeting, and it is thought that after all the facts are known and discussed, the controversy can be settled in the best interests of all concerned.

ECSC Here

This year's surfing carnival and championship event will begin at 7 a.m. both days and continue until 7 p.m. both days at 3rd and Atlantic (Near Steel Pier). There is no admission charge and the public is invited to come any time during the two day event, according to Brown.

For male surfers there are five major divisions of competition: Senior Men's—age 30 and over; Men's—18 and over; Jr. Men's—16-18; Boy's—13-15; and Midget—12 and under. There is only one division for women, the Open Girls' Division, for females of all ages. The competition is not broken down for women, because of the scarcity of female competitors.

Trophies and solid mahogany plaques will be awarded to all winners in each division. All first-place winners will also receive silver Reverse bowls. The trophies were all made by the co-chairmen of the event and those helping them.

Brown gave credit to Grant Parish for the colorful modernistic design used on all posters publicizing the event and recognized as the official emblem. Actually the posters are at a premium. Not as many were given out this year as before, since so many of the surfers have noted interest in buying the silk-screened posters, all made by the Surfing Carnival committee.

Brown said ECSC decals and T-shirts are already on sale, and are expected to sell quite well, as in years past.

"I think surfing is definitely still a growing sport," said Brown. "I just don't consider it a fad that will end soon. I'll back that up with the recent picture of surfers at Virginia Beach on the cover of Sports Illustrated magazine."

There are about three to four thousand surfers in Virginia Beach, speculated Brown, "and maybe as many as fifteen to twenty thousand in the entire area." He said he had questioned surfers at random on the beach and found them to be from other Tidewater cities, out-of-state, and even from other countries, as well as from Virginia Beach.

The safety of the Surfing Carnival was stressed by Brown. He said no more than twelve surfers would be in the water at a given time under strict supervision. He added that there will be adequate lifeguards and members of the Virginia Beach Rescue Squad will be standing by in case they are needed.

A freelance writer, a newspaper woman, and a girl in public relations had an informal get-together recently. They hadn't had a chance to visit in months, as is the case with most professional writers. From this meeting the idea for a local professional writers' association was formed—a chance for writers in this area to come together for a sort of informal "bull session" about once a month.

All meetings are planned to be informal "come as you are, when you can", and there will be no dues, no officers, no rules nor regulations (except that amateurs and hopeful writers will have to wait to be invited as guests at some future time after the association gets going).

Meetings will be held in homes of the various writers whenever one feels it is convenient for her to be hostess. Even that will not be an strain on the hostess as the main ingredient for a successful meeting will be the talk among the writers, and perhaps a cup of coffee or a cold drink.

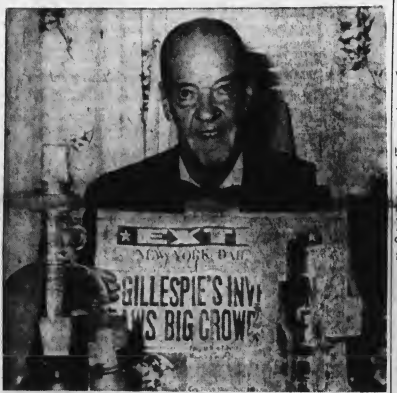

Writers need the association of other writers. Writing has been called a lonely profession, and in many ways it is, for a writer's best friend (or worst enemy) and most constant companion is her typewriter. Only another writer knows the frustrations of correlating facts and creating interesting copy.

As well as the beneficial effect of being able to "let off steam", the meetings may open doors to other facets of writing. Many get in a rut simply because they cannot or do not know about other fields in which talents might be used. First-hand knowledge of new markets and new trends may be discussed, and perhaps a reporter may discover, through association, that she is better suited for writing TV or radio copy, or an advertising copywriter could have a flair for short story writing, or a writer of children's stories may find the field of conference writing more lucrative.

It is not planned to be a workshop type of meeting though if one has a problem, a meeting with other writers could help her in finishing her work. And those who wish to will be encouraged to bring such problems before the group.

The request to find these professional writers has come to the writer of this column — so, if you have appeared in print somewhere and been paid for it, you are invited to send inquiries to the View, Write a letter to "View of Virginia Beach, Virginia Beach Sun, P. O. Box 657, Virginia Beach, Va. 23461", and give your name, address, professional background, and most important of all, your phone number.

As soon as the next meeting is scheduled, you will be notified by phone. And if you can come, your profession and your knowledge and especially YOU will be welcome.

Invention Amazes Everyone

VIRGINIA BEACH—An exhibit at the Seaside Amusement Park recently really amazed everyone. It is billed as the most amazing engineering feat since "Wheeling" West Virginia.

The display was composed of variations of a retired gentleman's "invention."

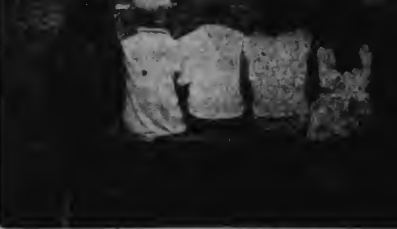

The same display enthralled people equally as well at the New York World's Fair last year. George R. Gillespie, now retired from his Navy Base job, had a booth in the Belgian Village during the entire run of the fair.

Gillespie's main objective in the sale of the "secret" of his invention is to raise money for the Norfolk YMCA. All the proceeds from the invention go to the "Y" for the construction of a workshop where the boys can work building abstract toys and other items.

The best explanation of the invention is "an object consisting of a dumbbell-shaped, whitened piece of wood, one bulbous end inside a bottle, the neck of which is a good two inches smaller in diameter than the wood inside it." The wood is solid. It is not cut, nor is it glued together. How does it do it? That is what Gillespie is selling. You can get the secret by writing to him in care of the Norfolk Central YMCA, 312 W. Bute Street, Norfolk, Virginia, 23510.

Gillespie is also a songwriter and a pacifist. He wrote his first song in 1938, in memory of a World War hero, entitling it "Just an Unknown Soldier." The first printing was more than 10,000 copies.

He wrote a second song, "Dear God Above", for publication following the death of President John F. Kennedy.

WHO SAYS TODAY'S CHILDREN have no imagination nor creativity? No adult supervised this backyard drama. Unaware the so-called summer doldrums, these neighborhood children find something interesting to do all by themselves. All it took was some paper bags, a box of crayons, and some scissors, plus an upturned picnic table and a rapid audience. And the puppet show was on.

SUMMER IS SWINGING to a close, but the kids still ride high.

Children's Week Aug. 21-27

VIRGINIA BEACH — Like a whipped cream topping on a "double dip" summer, this family-favored resort is helping basks of fun on this last week of August for the back-to-schoolers registered in resort accommodations.

The Events Committee of the Chamber of Commerce has designated August 21-27 as "Children's Week" and, to add zest to the youngsters' last fling of summer, is sparking every day with a special treat.

The program gets off on a musical note August 21 with a Children's Concert at the Norwegian Lady oceanfront park 6:00 to 7:00 p.m. A band from the Navy School of Music will provide entertainment and play selections currently popular with young fry and teen-agers. The public is invited.

BBB Is Not Making Survey

"Hello, I'm with the Tidewater Better Business Bureau and we're making a survey. May I ask you a few questions?"

If you are approached with a similar solicitation, use caution when giving the inquirer any information, warns the Tidewater BBB.

"The Tidewater BBB does not make telephone surveys," stated Charles A. Martak, Bureau Manager.

A number of calls have been received by the BBB from persons who have been so contacted, but none of the inquirers could identify the firm using this ploy.

Some of the questions asked by the "survey" are: Do you intend to buy another car? Do you intend to go into business? Do you have a washing machine? Do you intend to have interior painting done?

There are many legitimate survey and research firms, some of whom do use the telephone for their work, but to be sure you are giving this information to the proper party, your best protection is to obtain the name of the firm and individual making the survey, and the telephone number of the caller, asking if you could call her right back. Then, check the number in your telephone directory or check with the BBB before returning her call to be sure the firm she represents is actually a legitimate survey and research firm.

Anyone knowing the identity of the firm using the BBB name in this telephone "survey" is requested to contact the Tidewater BBB, 114 W. York Street, Norfolk, telephone 627-6653.

Naming a king and queen of "The Sand Castle Set" (selected by a roving photographer) will be one of the extra highlights of a week dedicated to the beach's young vacationers.

BA Degree

GAINESVILLE—The University of Florida granted degrees to 1,061 students when the spring trimester of the 1966-67 academic year closed last week. One Virginia Beach resident, Katherine E. Blossom, received a BA degree.

Candidates for degrees included 790 men and 271 women. The Graduate School awarded 450 degrees with 76 of these for doctoral work.

Of the remaining 602 bachelor's degrees in undergraduate divisions, the College of Arts and Sciences led other schools and colleges with 134 candidates for degrees. The College of Engineering was next with 118, followed by the College of Education with 71 students.

WORLD'S FASTEST OPERATIONAL JET FIGHTER

Phantom II Employs Sophisticated Radar Interception System

By Jack Moore

VIRGINIA BEACH—Oceana Naval Air Station is the home base for several squadrons of the most sophisticated fighter aircraft in the world.

The plane referred to is the McDonnell F4B "Phantom II". The Phantom is a two-place, twin-jet, all-weather fighter-interceptor and is used by both the Navy and the Air Force.

The F4 is powered by two General Electric J79 engines, whose combined thrust give it a top speed of more than 1600 miles per hour.

It is the fastest operational jet fighter in the world and employs one of the most powerful airborne radars ever developed. This radar permits target detection and automatic tracking at a greater distance than any previous system. It can track and "lock on" a target under all conditions of weather, day or night.

The aircraft is not only a fighter-interceptor. It can also play the role of a bomber. Even as it carries full attack payloads however, it retains its own protective air-to-air missile armament and intercept capabilities.

The unrefueled range of the F4, operating from a carrier, allows it to carry its multi-ton load of conventional or nuclear ground strike weapons over 90 per cent of the globe in its intercept configurations. Its combat range covers more than 96 per cent of the earth's surface.

Its crew is made up of a pilot and a radar intercept officer who also takes care of navigation and weapons delivery. The men are a team. Without one of them the plane is just a plane, not a high-flying weapons platform.

The Phantom pilot is a highly trained all-weather aviator. In this role he must be able to fly either an intercept or bombing mission, or both, on a combat sortie.

Fresh out of pilot training at Pensacola, Fla. and Meridian, Miss., the new Naval aviator reports to the replacement air group for transition to the F4. After approximately 120 hours of intercept, bombing and low-level training he reports to his assigned squadron for duty. At this point, he is teamed up with the RIO, and the fine "tuning" begins in the making of a combat team.

The Radar Intercept Officer is a non-pilot aviation officer. He is also put through a rigorous training program. After completion of basic Naval Flight Officers' training at Pensacola, at which he studies navigation, flight planning, flight operations, aerodynamics, electronics, communications and computers, he is transferred to the Naval Technical Training Center at Glynco, Ga.

At Glynco the prospective RIO logs between 60 and 75 hours in the T-39D Sabreliner flying actual intercept missions. Through these flights, along with classroom and trainer practice, a firm knowledge of the intercept problem is established. After successful completion of this training, the officer is designated a Naval Flight Officer and receives his 1320 or 1325 designation.

The RIO is then transferred to the replacement air group for transition to the F4 and all its intricate systems. He spends nearly 110 flying hours of intercept, bombing and low level work. After his carrier qualifications, he is transferred to the squadron for duty.

Now the work of the pilot and the RIO as a Phantom team really begins. The greater portion of the operating is devoted to the intercept mission, but additional time is devoted to air-to-ground delivery.

Such an effective team of destruction is Cdr. Jim Clare and Ensign Phil Slaton, who are attached to Fighter Squadron 102. Clare is Executive Officer of the squadron; Slaton is the Public Affairs Officer. These two men have dual roles—nothing uncommon in the Navy—but they are pilot and RIO first.

VF-102 is a member squadron of Carrier Air Wing 6, which operates from the deck of the U.S.S. America (CVA-66) while at sea.

The "Diamondbacks" (their symbol is the Diamondback rattlesnake) were formed July 1, 1955 and their first plane was the F2H-4 Banshee, which incidentally, was also made by McDonnell Aircraft Corporation.

The "Diamondbacks" transitioned to the F4B back in 1951—one of the first squadrons to use the new plane. They operated from the deck of the U.S.S. Enterprise (CVA-65) until 1964. In April 1965, VF-102 transferred to the America. They were the first to operate the F4 from the Enterprise and the first to do so from the America.

Last November, after the America's shakedown cruise and final preparations, VF-102 left with her for the Mediterranean. They returned last month.

On April 10, 1966, while at anchor in Istanbul, Turkey, the executive officer of VF-102, Cdr. Raymond E. Loux, relieved Cdr. Max K. Morris as the "Diamondbacks" commanding officer.

Upon their return to their home base of Oceana, VF-102 was authorized to "stand down" for twenty days. After the 74 month cruise, the rest period was well deserved and gladly taken.

New Marine Firm Opened

NORFOLK—A marine electronics service and parts center has been established by Raytheon Company at 619 Tidewater Drive, Norfolk, Virginia.

The new center will provide qualified, around-the-clock factory service for all Raytheon products from small depth sounders for pleasure boats to radars for ocean-going vessels.

Commercial electronic navigation, communication, and safety aids for commercial vessels will also be offered on lease through the new office. Popular lease items include white line fathometer depth sounders for fish finding, high seas radiotelephones and radars.

James J. Hackathorn has been named to manage the new office. He joined Raytheon in 1958 and served on the technical staff of the quality control manager for the products. He also served in the radar design group and most recently as quality control engineer at Raytheon Marine Products Operation, South San Francisco, California.

Hackathorn attended the Electronics Training College at San Mateo, California and served as an electronics instructor in the U. S. Air Force. He holds an F. C.C. license with a radar endorsement certifying him to tune and adjust radiotelephones and radars.

In addition to providing direct service for ocean and major commercial vessels, the new center will stock principal parts for all Raytheon equipment to expedite servicing by the company's franchised marine dealers in Virginia, Maryland, and the Carolinas.

VIRGINIA BEACH—Representatives of the Virginia Beach and Norfolk Chamber of Commerce are all set for a real workout as the Canadian National Exposition according to Abin Mathies, executive vice-president of The Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce and Curtis Brooks, Director of The Norfolk Chamber's Convention and Tourist Bureau.

The exposition scheduled August 19th thru September 8th is rated by Kipling's July issue of "Changing Times" magazine as first of 25 leading annual exhibitions on The North American Continent. Attendance in 1965 was tabulated at 2,942,000.

The two area Chambers jointly contracted for a booth in the Convention Building and will each have two representatives manning the booth throughout the exposition setting Canadian visitation to Virginia Beach and Norfolk.

The Chesapeake Bay-Bridge Tunnel is awaiting in the cost of the booth.

Representing Virginia Beach will be Abin Mathies, executive vice-president of the Virginia Beach

Chamber of Commerce August 19th through the 27th; Mrs. Wilma Davis, office secretary of the Chamber, August 29th through September 5th and Mrs. S. G. Mitchell, who will stay through the exposition.

Representing Norfolk for the first half of the show will be Mrs. Sherry G. Moore of the Norfolk Chamber's Tourist Bureau and Lee Duncan, Director of Sales for the Golden Triangle. Curtis Brooks, Director of the Norfolk Chamber's Convention and Tourist Bureau and Mrs. Julia Nelms, Director of Sales for the Lake Wright Motor Inn will be on duty the last half of the exposition.

According to William Dekker, chairman of the Virginia Beach Chamber's Travel & Tourism Committee over 100,000 promotional fliers will be used for sales promotion for the resort alone.

The Canadian Exposition is the final show this year in which the Norfolk and Virginia Beach Chambers participate. Earlier travel shows on both agendas were in Cleveland, Cincinnati and New York.

Activity Centers Open In September

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Virginia Beach Recreation Department, Union-Kempsville Division, is making plans for the fall opening of its classes and activities centers, beginning on September 12. Activities will be held at three different locations.

The Union-Kempsville High School Center will offer classes in small electrical appliance repair, sewing, knitting and welding. At Seaboard Elementary School Center, there will be classes in knitting and military. The center at Seaboard Elementary School will offer a course in sewing.

Upon request, and with shown interest, other courses will be added to help meet the leisure-time recreational needs of the community.

The fee for these courses will be $3.00 for ten weeks of instruction. For further information, call H. C. Benjamin, Adult Supervisor, at 627-6882 or 629-5221.

'Sing Out South' Swings For Faith

Hollywood and Broadway had nothing on the production "Sing Out South" as far as a professional, fast-trained, disciplined, and a fast-moving, well-timed, absorbing show went; but here the analogy stops. Presented before a full house at the Civic Center last week, 150 fresh, good-looking, co-operative high school and college students sang their hearts out for a cause far superior to entertaining the audience or to making their show a smash hit for the monetary gain. Their "Sing Out South" are also profit all over the world.

Their cause was one of rejection of the non-conforming, non-patriotic, too casually dressed youth of today, who paint a picture which makes every true American's blood boil. These young people believe that there are many Americans who have a more serious outlook, and that the principles of Love, Honesty, Purity, and Unselfishness will prevail if one will only change and believe.

And they're not just criticizing, they're doing something about it. To the left of the stage, The New Winds, a delightful combo from Richmond, composed of five males (the Armstrong brothers were 3) and a young lady of 12, a spot of sunshine in a bright yellow cotton with the guitar) accompanied by adults in the pit, brought on the singers, who ran onto the stage from the rear of the audience, and sprang as gossamer to their places on the tiered wooden stands.

As a fast paced minstrel group, they took their audience and held it from the modulated blast of "There's No Beat Like a Show Boat, a Go Boat", "Up, Up, People", "Sing It, Sing It", "Run to the Rock", (or the Devil will, etc.), "What Color Is God's Heart?", "There's Hunger in My Heart, Thirst in My Soul", "You Can't Live Crooked, and Think Straight", the famous "I Believe" (introduced by Nancy Atkinson in a clear, sweet soprano). "There Is a Ship", . . . she sails the Sea of Peace and Brotherhood) and the overpowering "Fight for Freedom" sang, performed with clenched fists.

"Exodus" was rendered with classical splendor by pianist Jerry Wim, while "Traveling On", "Dear Willy", and "A New Tomorrow" were stirring hits. This last was given by the Greenwood Singers, four pretty girls in pink suits and pink hair ribbons, a guitar combo, who surely "Spread Happiness." Adult B.B. Piper sang his composition "Don't Be a Foot-ball" to tremendous applause.

These young people, singing groups from Richmond and Williamsburg, are a result of the "Sing Out '66" groups, which came out of the M.R.A. Conference Camp, held each summer at MacKinnon Island, Michigan. The interfaith integrated movement is a past runner of the Oxford Group, founded in Oxford, England in the 20's.

"They believe in optimism, in faith in the future, in the belief that by living a moral life, they can help solve the 'knottiest of life's problems'. They want others to change and to be happy in inner faith.

Proof of their popularity lies in the hospitality extended by the interested citizens and parents, who opened their homes for an overnight visit; the area churches which donated and served their meals; and to others too numerous to mention.

Ricky Hanger, a Norfolk Academy rising senior and a Beach resident, introduced Harold Whitehurst, Director of Parks and Recreation Commission (the Commission donated the attractive musical tickets) at the show's opening. Whitehurst presented Mayor Frank Dusch, who mentioned his own membership in barbershop singing groups, and welcomed the 30-GO. UP-UP Faith-restoring songsters.

The purpose of the concert was to interest young people in forming a group at the Beach.

This cast combined dramatic stage gestures with Beale beat featuring bongo drums, electric guitars, a piano and audience participation rhythm. The drummer was a sensation. All stage eyes gave him tribute, as he rendered a lengthy solo on drums, perspiring professionally, and throwing his sticks into the stage cast as a final climax.

Every actor wants applause. Here were actors. They were a smash hit and their faith for Americanism to represent all that is right and good was evident in every number. This spirit and faith made the extravaganza a singing crusade. —Cassandra.

CLINTON DALTON, star drummer from Richmond, performed a solo at "Sing Out".

THE MORNING AFTER relaxing, and after a change of clothing at Galilee Episcopal church, these members of the Sing Out group get ready for a day of swimming and exploring Virginia Beach. Standing, Gordon Willard, Susan Hamilton, Mrs. James Dillard, and Dev Newton; (kneeling) Barbara Cole and Mary Lou Shelton.

If you're going to be doing farm work in the summer heat, your Heart Association suggests that you take frequent breaks in the shade and drink plenty of cool water.

"Streetcar" At Summer Sands

VIRGINIA BEACH — Deviating from this year's norm of comedies, the Summer Sands Tent Playhouse, across from the Dome at 19th and Arctic at Virginia Beach will present the sensational melodrama, "A Streetcar Named Desire", under the direction of John Chester.

This play runs from August 17 through the 21, and is one of Tennessee Williams' most popular endeavors, depicting the tragic down fall and demoralization of the daughter of a once wealthy southern family, and her adverse influence upon her husband, sister and brother-in-law.

In the leading role of Blanche DuBois is Michaeline Palowski, while her tender hearted sister Stella is portrayed by Becky Jachnich.

John Malloy portrays the vehement brother-in-law, while his friend Mitch is represented by Don Desko.

Others in the cast include Bill Swafford, Jane Craddock, Bill Barnes, Betty Bogle, Jerry Hill and Dave Tiffany.

Although this drama is not recommended for children, those 13 years of age and under, when accompanied by a parent, are admitted free of charge.

Tickets for this theater in the round may be purchased daily until curtain time at 8:30.

"Never Too Late"

"Never Too Late" at the Summer Sands Tent Playhouse, 19th and Arctic ave., is a frothy, witty, hilarious play about a normal American family named Lambert who find themselves anticipating a "blessed event" with varied degrees of emotion.

The youngish middle-aged expectant mother, Edith, played by Jane Fleming (a look-alike for Zsa Zsa Gabor and Debbie Reynolds), and with a husky voice like June Allison) has a 20-year old married daughter Kate, played with convincing reality by Lynne Good, an embarrassed, unbelievably modern.

To her father, Harry Lambert, the undisputed head of the house, who was superb in every line (played by Capt. Ed Blom) USN ret.), Kate screams: "All men are horrid creatures; Father, how could you?" This was only one of the numerous illogically feminine lines with which the play abounds.

Laughter was so prolonged during the entire performance that it was hard to catch all of the repartee.

Kate has to take over the house work, while Charlie, completely subdued by his tyrannical father-in-law with whom they live, begins to come into his own manhood and to take responsibility.

Gordon Creech, in the beginning a shallow character, increases in acting aptitude as the play unfolds. It is he who persuades Major Crane (Allen Genderson, who also plays Dr. James Kimbrough) to reverse his decision of not putting a 4-lane highway through the Lambert property.

The scenes in which he and Ed Blom bring in the large bathtub and toilet bowl from the front yard, into the living room, and later when Charlie lugs it across the street to Mayor Crane's porch, are scenes which are delicately handled and are mirth provoking to the point of guffaws.

The leads, Jane Fleming and Ed Blom, compliment each other. She is her understanding femininity, and Blom in his virile masculinity are excellent whenever on stage.

In one scene when the unwanted (except by Edith) blessed event is being vehemently discussed, Edith begs for quiet and understanding. To Harry, she asked, "Why can't we all just get down and maybe recite some poetry; that's always good for everyone, and I appreciate some peace." To this Harry hesitatingly replies, "All can think of is, 'I shot an arrow into the air.'"

Allan Quatermain plays a dual role well; his make-up as the Mayor is exceptional. Bob Wilson as the Policeman has a minor role and a few lines, but he's handsome, and he's patient and authoritative. He's well cast.

Alice Dubois, as Grace Kimbrough a long-time friend of Edith is an astute female philosopher. Alice is also the director. Kaye Gere does the props, assisted by small admirers. Susan Epstein helps with make-up, John Chester is producer and also helped with the lights.

"Never Too Late" played to audiences that are entirely too small; perhaps there is too much competition in the entertainment field here and in nearby cities. But this play by dedicated Theatricals is a delightful situation which could have happened in any family. All ages would enjoy it.

WTAR Newsman Enters Ministry

NORFOLK — Erol Lotridge, a member of the News staff of WTAR Radio-TV Corporation since April 1964, will leave August 19 to enroll at Union Theological Seminary in Richmond in preparation for the Christian Ministry. Union Seminary is under the Presbyterian Church in the United States.

Lotridge is a member of the Wyckoff Presbyterian Church in Virginia Beach. He has been an ordained ruling elder in the Church for many years and has served actively in supplying pulpits at Union Seminary and Sunday Schools, and has served as deacon. He stated that the move to the Seminary is the realization of a dream of many years.

Before coming to WTAR, Lotridge was Assistant News Director and Director of Public Affairs at KHOU-TV, Houston, Texas, and served for 18 months as News Director at KATL-TV, Shreveport, Louisiana. During the past year he has been assigned to the WTAR Peninsula Bureau covering the Newport News-Hampton-York area for WTAR Radio and Television.

At present, Lotridge resides at Virginia Beach. He will move his family to Richmond in the early Fall.

Dancers Incorporate Talent

By Doris Padrick

Barbara Thuesen is a common denominator—the bridge between the adult dancers who want to dance and the casting directors who need dancers for the musicals and other productions presented throughout the Tidewater area.

Though a talented and experienced professional dancer and choreographer, Mrs. Thuesen had no idea her enthusiasm and dedication to the dance profession would be the spark igniting the fires of desire of other dancers in the area to become a dance company. But, she did, and it has.

The Tidewater Dance Guild, Inc. was formed originally as The Thuesen Dancers after Barbara became acquainted with other adult dancers in various productions staged in the area. She danced with Nancy McClees and Val Luttrell in the Virginia Beach Civic Chorus "Showboat" in the spring of '65, arriving just two weeks prior to rehearsals. She's the wife of a marine.

Roy "Skip" Newton joined the talented trio of young ladies, along with Leni Arrow, Hugh Copeland and Glenn Graham. The original seven are still together making the nucleus of a hardworking group of dancers ready and willing to work in local productions.

The Thuesen Dancers wanted another name. They chose to be called The Tidewater Dance Guild, Inc. To be incorporated you should have a lawyer and a board of directors. So they got both.

Mrs. Barbara Thuesen was named artistic director and Nancy McClees is coordinator. The Board of Directors includes the names of eighteen locally prominent personalities.

TDG uses mainly young adult dancers, from the teens on up. When the script calls for children, there is a ready army of "rats" available to perform. The "rats" are dancers under 12 years of age, who are associated with, but not members of, the Tidewater Dance Guild, Inc.

Members have appeared in the Cavalier production of "Irma La Due", the Virginia Beach Civic Chorus "South Pacific", took part in the Northeast Regional Ballet Festival in Washington, D. C., and performed for the Business and Professional Women of Hadsash. A benefit performance of "Music

BARBARA THUSEN, founder and director of the Tidewater Dance Guild, Inc.

In Motion! "Music in Motion Summer '66" will be presented at the Alan B. Shepherd Civic Center on August 26 at 8:30 p.m. as a benefit for the American Cancer Society.

Plans are already in the making for a full season of activity for the Tidewater Dance Guild following the benefit performance.

On September 6, they will be performing for the Norfolk Hadassah, and on Sept. 7, will take part in the Downtown Merchant Associations' fall fashion show "Fashion With A Flair".

When the Courtyard Theater at Virginia Beach opens the fall season in October, the cast of "Brigadoon" will be liberally sprinkled with TDG members dancing, singing and acting.

Another fall evening of ballet will take place in March '67 at the Center Theater in Norfolk for the Norfolk-South Norfolk Unit of the American Cancer Society.

And keeping on their toes, they will attend the Southeastern Regional Ballet Festival and the National Ballet Company Workshop in Washington, D. C.

No dancer who wants to dance needs to let his or her talent get stale. The Tidewater Dance Guild gives them a chance to keep in shape and on their toes.

Barbara's only complaint is the lack of male dancers. More men are needed to help make TDG a full company ready to tackle any dance number or production that is requested of them.

A REVIEW
"Little Mary Sunshine"

Barksdale Theatre at Strawber, ry Banks, Hampton, Virginia. LITTLE MARY SUNSHINE by Rick Botsyan. Directed by David Kilgore. Musical direction by Douglas Zeno. Choreographed by Frances Wessels. Settings designed by Lyde Longaker. Cast includes Kathy Clark, Sherry Loving Eney, Frances Wessels, James Shipp, Jake Rotman, Glenn Crone, Del Driver, Jeff Slayton and Charles Harrison.

The title song says "You've Got To Hand It To Little Mary Sunshine. . . ." And you've got to hand it to Barksdale Theatre for its current production of the musical. It may not be a finished production in every way, but it is a whole lot of fun, and a mighty enjoyable evening in the theatre.

There is a laugh a minute in the production, well coordinated by David Kilgore. It is obvious Kilgore played it on a thoroughly exaggerated basis, but we can't figure out if some of the characters are too overdone or if the others are just not exaggerated enough. Regardless, the lack of consistency in exaggeration is a small criticism for such a fine production, nicely paced, even if a shade too long.

The play, with its music reminiscent of every opera ever written, is a complete and absolute takeoff on the operas of Friml, Herbert, etc. Because it is a spoof, it is funny, hilariously so.

Little Mary is about to lose her land and lodge because she can't pay the mortgage. Captain Jim and his troop of courageous fore-rangers arrive on the scene. Their corporal has designs on Mary's maid, who has designs on all men. There is a retired opera singer saying at the lodge, who gets a twirl from a retired, but narrowly retiring General. The young ladies of Eastchester Finishing School, on the whole a daring lot, pair off with the eager fore-rangers, tired of marching. The villain in the piece is an Indian, Yellow Feather, who has sworn to save his "way" with Little Mary. And there are a couple of obnoxious Indians thrown in for good measure. One is the Chief of the almost extinct Kadota tribe. The other is Fleetfoot, a far from fleetfooted guide.

Put this plot together with some of the most delightful and catchy musical comedy music ever written, and you have Barksdale's production—one that pulls off a fine performance.

Kathy Clark, as Little Mary is perhaps a shade too sweet, even for this show and has some difficulty making eye contact with others onstage, but she looks nice and has a pleasing small voice. James Shipp as Capt. Jim cavorts through the action well and never loses his consistent "stuffed shirt" characterization, even after being accepted in a proposal. We are still not certain if his role was too exaggerated.

Sherry Loving Eney as the "naughty and teasing" Nancy, practically walks away with the show, as does her partner in most scenes, the not too bright, Corporal Jester, played ably by Jake Rotman. Rotman handles the role extremely well and deserves real accolades for this one.

Frances Wessels, who was also choreographer, plays the retired opera singer. Her voice is somewhat weak, but the dancing she designed for the production is outstanding, especially in the major production numbers. Glenn Crone, as the lecherous pincher, General Fairfax presents a fine broad characterization well done.

Del Driver plays the Indian Chief to perfection. He gets a laugh on nearly every line with his underplay, sense of timing and finesse. Fleetfoot, portrayed by Charles Harrison, was done well, we suppose, if that's what the director wanted, but his character seemed out of keeping even with this show. Jeff Slayton, as the villain Indian, dances beautifully and his facial expressions add a great deal to the production.

The young ladies all do a nice job, although there is only one good voice among them. The fore-rangers have the same problem with only one good voice. And it would have been nice if Barksdale could have found more Forest Rangers old enough to stave.

The musical accompaniment was excellent, as was the technical part of the production. One scene, however, an interpretive dance by the Corporal, Nancy, the maid, and Yellow Feather, could have been performed to better advantage in safer and dimmer light.

But it is a good production, full of laughs and fun, and should prove to be a real audience-getter for Barksdale.

Windsor Woods Library

Text and Photos by Doris Padrick

Windsor Woods Public Library opened its doors on May 16th of this year. More than 1,000 "card carrying" patrons make use of its facilities with a circulation of about 6,000 noted each month. Yet, its shelves appear empty.

But the enthusiastic group of assistant librarians serving there are proud, not discouraged. "We are only beginning," remarked Mrs. E. E. Cox, "and we are growing fast." It is estimated that approximately 2,000 books have been added to the shelves since its opening just three months ago.

Books are purchased out of the library's operating budget which is set annually by City Council. Mrs. Odia Martin said that the budget for the Virginia Beach library was very small in the beginning, less than 10 years ago, but now with new branches, those already established and those still in the drawing board or in the dream stage, the City allocates more each year.

"Our growth is in keeping with all the other growing facilities and our young city is working hard to maintain a planned expansion for all city needs."

Though the shelves at Windsor Woods branch may appear rather empty, it is pointed out that a great many books are in circulation. The branch was planned and built on. And, even more importantly, with an eye to the future population and community growth, "If we built a library to take care of just today's needs, we would soon be faced with adding on rooms and expanding as time went on. We had to plan ahead."

The new brick building, architecturally designed in colonial style, is often mistaken for a church instead of the library branch that it is. Those in the immediate neighborhood have found it to be a most welcome and needed addition to their culture and education. Anyone not familiar with its location will find it at 2612 S. Plaza Trail, off Rosemont Road.

A large well-lighted area is the main room of the library and there will be found the books for all ages—a children's section, adult section, adult fiction, reference books, non-fiction—and all are new with the very latest information. A smaller glassed in and sound-proofed reference room is right off the librarians check out counter. In here are encyclopedias and other reference material to help those who must study.

The Windsor Woods branch is open to all who have Virginia Beach library cards. The one card is honored at all branches as well as the main library on 22nd Street in Virginia Beach, and for the Bookmobile.

Mrs. Evelyn Evans heads the assistant librarians at Windsor Woods who are Mrs. E. E. Cox, Mrs. R. O. Davis, Mrs. Kenneth Dussault, and Mrs. Irvin Sparrow. Mrs. Margaret Capps is the City Librarian.

Each month a display commemorating a city, state or national event, is set up by the creative librarians who enjoy their work and the patrons, especially the children.

Red Cross At Meeting

RICHMOND—Exhibit plans and reports on other activities for the 1966 Virginia Red Cross Chapter Conference were given by representatives of eight Virginia localities, in addition to the host Richmond, Henrico and Chesterfield County Chapters, at the final session of the conference planning committee, Wednesday.

Among those attending the 12:15 luncheon at the Henrico Red Cross building were members from Roanoke, Norfolk, Virginia Beach, Charlottesville, Alexandria, Arlington, Newport News and Portsmouth. The 25-member committee, headed by Thomas P. Bryan, Jr., of Richmond, reviewed final arrangements for the biennial conference to be held at Richmond's John Marshall Hotel, September 29 through October 1.

In advance of Wednesday's meeting, Edwin P. Brooks, Jr., chairman of arrangements, today announced a special plan of reduced rates for early registration. Beginning today, this advance registration period will continue through September 19.

"With more than 400 adult and youth delegates expected to attend, this plan will help assure the success of the state-wide conference; so we are strongly urging representatives of all 102 Red Cross Chapters throughout Virginia to take advantage of it," Brooks emphasized.

Alumni Give More

VIRGINIA BEACH—Louis Mirman of 38 Lynn Shores Dr., was Norfolk regional chairman of the University of Pennsylvania's 1966 Alumni Annual Giving campaign, which received a record total before concluding recently.

Mr. Mirman is a 1942 graduate of the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce. He was one of 200 committee chairmen and 3,000 volunteers who participated in the campaign, which received a total of $1,752,810 from 27,671 alumni and friends of the University. Goal of the campaign was $1,750,000.

School Supply Sale

PRINCESS ANNE—Books, physical education equipment and supplies will be sold in Kellam High School cafeteria on August 23, 24, and 25 from 9 to 11:45 a.m. No student schedules will be given out at that time.

Received Certificate

LYNCHBURG—Francis W. Ingling, 1523 Custom St., has received a certificate representing six credit hours of course work done at the Summer Institute for High School Teachers of Science and Mathematics held at Randolph-Macon Woman's College from June 23 to Aug. 10.

Objectives were to strengthen the subject-matter competence, to broaden scientific outlook, and thus to increase the classroom effectiveness of high school teachers.

Dr. Helen L. Whidden, Institute director and chemistry professor at Randolph-Macon, awarded the certificate which had been signed by the president of the college, Dr. William F. Quillian, Jr. The Institute was made possible by a grant of $85,720 from the National Science Foundation.

Colonial Dividend

NEW YORK—Directors of Colonial Stores Incorporated, 425-store southeastern and midwestern supermarket chain, today declared a quarterly dividend of 35 cents a share on common stock—the same as last quarter.

The regular quarterly cash dividend of 50 cents per share was declared on outstanding 4 percent preferred stock.

Both dividends are payable September 1, 1966 to stockholders of record on August 29, 1966.

Colonial Stores, with headquarters in Atlanta has operations in the following states: Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Maryland, North Carolina, Ohio, South Carolina, Tennessee and Virginia.

SS Office To Stay Open

The Norfolk Social Security District Office which serves Virginia Beach will continue to remain open on Saturdays for the convenience of the public, J. A. Morrison, District Manager said today. Morrison stated that the Saturday hours of the District Office will continue to be from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

The Social Security District Office has remained open to the public for the past several months and Morrison stated that the extra hours of service had been well received by the public and that a large number of people had taken advantage of them.

He urged that those who are age 65 and still working and have not filed an application do so promptly. Although no monthly benefits may be payable, it is necessary that an application be filed before the end of the third month after the month of a person's 65th birthday, in order for that person to be eligible for Medicare. "All persons," Morrison stated, "are urged to get in touch with the Norfolk District Office whenever they have a question about Social Security or the new provision of Medicare and to take advantage of the extended office hours on Saturday."

Beach Salesman Attends Meeting

ATLANTA—Northeast and Southeast regional sales personnel and client company executives of Wilson Harrell and Company, Inc. of Westport, Connecticut, worldwide marketing agency, convened in Atlanta, Georgia, on Monday, for the final in a series of three nationwide regional sales meetings. Richard Matthews of Virginia Beach, District Salesman for Norfolk and Richmond areas, attended.

The five-day sessions were held at the Air Host Inn at the Atlanta airport.

The purpose of the meetings is to bring together East Coast Harrell Company sales personnel with client company executives in their areas; to cover the worldwide sales situation account by account; to introduce new products; to discuss overall sales and promotion approaches both in the military and civilian markets; and to go into new account objectives.

Sales Tax Questions And Answers

In order that the citizens of Virginia Beach may be better informed concerning the provisions of the Virginia Retail Sales and Use Tax Act which goes into effect September 1, 1966, The Virginia Beach Sun will publish three sample questions and answers as compiled by the Virginia Retail Merchants Association. The first 62 questions were answered by the Virginia Department of Taxation. The last seven were answered by counsel for the VREMA, on which the Dept. of Taxation expressed no opinion. The 69 questions and answers will be published in three consecutive issues.

(Second in a series of three articles)

21. Q. What about the rental of automobiles? Is this subject to the sales tax?

A. No. The rental of automobiles is excluded from the sales tax.

22. Q. What about automobile parts? Are these subject to the sales tax?

A. Yes. The sale of automobile parts, tires, batteries, etc., is subject to the State and local sales tax. Labor charges separately stated on the repair bill, however, are not subject to the sales tax.

23. Q. Are haircuts subject to the sales tax?

A. No. This service is not subject to the sales tax.

24. Q. Are laundry or dry cleaning charges subject to the sales tax?

A. No. These services are not subject to the sales tax.

25. Q. Are parking lot charges subject to the sales tax?

A. No. Suppose I want to build an addition to my home. Is this subject to the sales tax?

A. Only the cost of the building materials will be subject to the sales tax. If you contract with a contractor to build the addition, the contractor will be required to pay the sales tax to his suppliers when he purchases the materials to be used. As a practical matter, this additional cost to the contractor will be taken into consideration by the contractor in arriving at his bid price.

27. Q. Suppose I buy my next door neighbor's boat. Is this subject to the sales tax?

A. No. This is a sale by a person not engaged in the business of selling boats and is not subject to the sales tax on the ground that it is an occasional sale.

28. Q. Is any sales tax payable on the purchase of gasoline and oil? How about a car wash?

A. Gasoline subject to the 7-cent State tax is not subject to the sales tax. Purchases of oil will in all cases be subject to the sales tax. Car washes are services not subject to tax.

29. Q. Suppose I trade my stove in on a new model. Is the trade-in value of my old stove subject to the sales tax?

A. No. The sales tax will apply to the difference between the cost of the new stove and the trade-in allowance on the old stove.

30. Q. Are gardening tools, grass seed and the like subject to the sales tax?

A. Yes. However, certain items of tangible personal property sold to and purchased by farmers for use in agricultural production for market are exempt from the tax.

31. Q. Is the purchase of meat, vegetables, and other grocery items by me as a consumer subject to the sales tax?

A. Yes.

32. Q. Are luncheon and restaurant meals subject to the sales tax?

A. Yes. The total charge for such meals is subject to the tax.

33. Q. Are ordinary tips a part of the cost of a meal for sales tax purposes?

A. No. A tip given by you to a waitress is not a part of the cost of the meal for sales tax purposes.

34. Q. Is the purchase of toothpaste, cosmetics, shaving, toilet, and the like subject to the sales tax?

A. Yes.

35. Q. Are prescription drugs subject to the sales tax?

A. No, provided they are bought on a prescription of a licensed physician or dentist.

36. Q. Are eyeglasses subject to the sales tax?

A. Yes, except when sold on prescription of a licensed physician, optometrist, or ophthalmologist.

37. Q. Are hearing aids subject to the sales tax?

A. Yes, except when sold on prescription of a licensed physician.

38. Q. Are newspapers and magazines subject to the sales tax?

A. Subscriptions to newspapers and magazines are not subject to the sales tax, but newsstand sales thereof are taxable.

39. Q. Is the purchase of pets subject to the sales tax?

A. Yes.

40. Q. Are medicines prescribed by a licensed veterinarian for my dog, cat, or riding horse subject to the sales tax?

A. Yes.

41. Q. Is the purchase of an item through the use of trading stamps subject to the sales tax?

A. The sales tax applies to the value of tangible personal property for which the stamps are redeemed and this value is the same as the value assigned to the book or books of stamps.

42. Q. Is the charge made for developing photographic films and furnishing prints therefrom subject to the sales tax?

A. Yes, the tax applies to the total charge.

43. Q. Are sales by charities subject to the sales tax?

A. Yes. All sales of tangible personal property at retail are normally subject to the sales tax without regard to the non-profit nature of the seller.

44. Q. Do advertised prices, and prices marked on the goods themselves, include the sales tax?

A. No. The law requires that the sales tax be separately stated and added to the sales price at the time of sale.

45. Q. Is a seller entitled to charge more in sales taxes than the amount listed on the authorized tax table? For example, if my lunch costs $1.15, and the tax is an additional 4 cents, can the luncheon operator charge me $1.20 for my lunch?

A. No. A seller is not authorized to charge any more in sales taxes than is permitted under the published bracket rates.

46. Q. Is the general sales tax deductible by an individual for Federal and State income tax purposes?

A. Yes, if he itemizes non-business deductions.

47. Q. How can I determine the amount of sales taxes deductible for income tax purposes?

A. Guidelines will be published prior to the time for filing your income tax returns. The guidelines will indicate the amount of sales tax deductions normally acceptable for families of various sizes and in various income ranges. Such guidelines, however, are not expected to cover any extraordinary purchases during the year, and sales tickets for such purchases should be retained in support of any additional deduction.

48. Q. Is any sales tax imposed upon finance charges, carrying charges, or delivery charges separately stated on the bill?

A. No.

49. Q. Are funeral expenses subject to the sales tax?

A. Services rendered by undertakers and funeral directors are not subject to the sales tax but sales of tangible personal property by them are not exempt.

50. Q. Are sales of portraits by an artist or photographer taxable?

A. Yes.

JAMES SHANNON, High Dive Act: Free Act Attraction at Seaside Amusement Park, Virginia Beach, at Outdoor Stage at 2:30 & 10 P.M. Week of Aug. 15-21.

High Diver At Seaside

VA. BEACH—Jimmy Shannon, the Canadian high diver, will be the featured circus act all this week at Seaside Amusement Park, Virginia Beach.

Shannon, one of the few remaining members of his perilous profession, is actually in his second week at Tidewater beach resorts. Last week he appeared at Ocean View Amusement Park.

His act consists of a 75-foot plunge from the top of a ladder into a small tank, the surface of which is covered with blazing kerosene. He performs this feat twice a day, at 2:30 and 10 p.m. through Sunday.

For those who would rather participate than watch, the Seaside Park Frolics should provide satisfaction, with the opportunity to perform the watusi, the frog and the rest of the modern acrobatics dances all evening long—and all day Saturday and Sunday—to the music of popular local bands. And in addition there are the Hula-Babo Go-Go Girls who do some fancy gyrating themselves on spot-lighted platforms flanking the bandstand.

Seaside Amusement Park also offers a variety of thrill rides for the traditional park patrons, and its modern bathhouse provides accommodations for thousands of sunbathing enthusiasts every day. Admission to Seaside Amusement Park is free.

Of special interest to the dance set, The Ambassadors, from Fort Lauderdale, Florida, a five-man combo, will make a special appearance at Seaside Park Frolics for two sessions—Saturday night, August 20th, from 8:00 to 12:00 p.m., and Sunday afternoon's Jam Session from 4:00 p.m. to 7:00 p.m.

This appearance of The Ambassadors will be their first and only one at Virginia Beach.

The Ambassadors have played many outstanding night clubs, discotheques, as well as schools throughout the state of Florida. Their recommendations are quite high as a first-rate swing group.

Conservation Essay Topic

"Why Conservation of Wildlife and other Natural Resources is of Personal Concern to Me" will serve as an inspiration for some 18,000 Virginia school children expected to submit essays on this theme for judging in the 20th Annual Wildlife Essay Contest. The statewide competition for $3,000 in prizes is sponsored jointly by the Virginia Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries and the Virginia Division of the Izaak Walton League of America.

The contest will officially open September 12, 1966, and the deadline for entries will be January 13, 1967.

Students from all Virginia schools, grades 4-12, are eligible. Students must submit their completed essays through their school which, in turn, must submit an official entry card to become eligible. Judging is on the basis of originality, effort, grammar, expression and grasp of the subject.

The top award, an $800 scholarship, will go to the high school senior submitting the best essay.

Lesser prizes of $5-$50 will go to the top essays in each of the 8 eligible grades. A panel of judges from the Virginia Game Commission, the Virginia Division of the Izaak Walton League, and the State Department of Education will make the final selections.

Background materials are furnished to participating schools for use by students preparing essays. Schools in which 100 percent of the eligible student submit essays are recognized with special awards. There were 40 such schools recognized in last year's award ceremonies at the State Capitol.

Brotherhood At Good Shepherd

VIRGINIA BEACH—Formation of a Lutheran Brotherhood local branch at Good Shepherd Lutheran church, has been announced by Carl F. Gramrud, chairman of the board of directors and chief executive of Lutheran Brotherhood, fraternal insurance society.

Officers are Rev. Dickson W. Taylor, pastor of the church, president; Mrs. Edward Hoffmeister, vice-president; Mrs. David Price, secretary; and Mrs. James Wisniewski, treasurer.

Lutheran Brotherhood has more than 3,200 local branches from coast to coast which conduct fraternal activities on the local level.

Lutheran Brotherhood, from its home offices in Minneapolis, has contributed $728,100 to its branches during the past five years for such activities, including more than $172,000 in 1965.

Sneak Preview For Beach Auto Dealers

VIRGINIA BEACH—A private showing for Chrysler-Plymouth dealers and salesmen of Virginia Beach, during mid-August will give them their first look at the new 1967 Plymouths, Chryslers and Imperials.

Meetings in the eastern area were scheduled for Boston on August 15, New York on August 18, and Baltimore on August 22. They are among the 14 cities in which previews are scheduled.

Robert Anderson, general manager of the Chrysler-Plymouth Division, estimated that 25,000 dealers and salesmen will attend the previews, which will feature a live musical show especially produced for the meetings.

Invited to the preview are the sales and management personnel from Coates Motor Co., Inc. and Everett Jordan Motor Co., of Virginia Beach, Va.

Plan Homecoming

TALLAHASSEE—Carol Pate of Virginia Beach is one of 18 student chairmen of committees which will plan Homecoming at Florida State University the week end of Nov. 18-19.

The theme for Homecoming will be "1966-A Champion Year for FSU." A week end packed with festivities honoring returning graduates will be planned by the committees during the fall.

All committees will work under the general direction of Dr. Steve Edwards of the Physics Department, faculty Homecoming chairman, and Sally Seiler of West Palm Beach, the student chairman.

Miss Pate, whose home is 1104 E. Bayshore Dr., Virginia Beach, will serve as student chairman of the Banquet Committee.

Emergency Police Radio Set For Tidewater Depts.

Tidewater police will have an emergency radio communication system for the area.

Special committees of the Tidewater Crime Clinic have been studying, exploring all the avenues of rapid communications that are being utilized in other areas. Meetings have been held during the past 18 months to determine a system that would cover all the Tidewater Police Agencies, simultaneously in the event that a given police agency needed help from the other neighboring cities in making an apprehension of a fleeing criminal or criminals.

Chief Reeves E. Johnson, President of the Virginia State Crime Clinic, as well as the Chairman of the Tidewater Crime Clinic Area Emergency Communication Committee, reported that the cities of Hampton, Newport News, Norfolk and Virginia Beach and the 5th Division of the Department of State Police have agreed to establish such a system. The Elizabeth River Tunnel Commission has indicated their desire of being a part of the system on an area wide basis.

At a meeting Monday afternoon, between representatives of the above agencies, Johnson informed those attending that the T.C.C. Emergency Communication Committee felt it had developed the agreements of the cities to participate and the types of communication to best do the job, to the point that he was ready to ask the police representatives of the agreed areas to consider taking over and informing an association with a chairman to head it. Also, that they consider some of or all of the Crime Clinic Committee's proposed rules and regulations under which the system will operate; pointing out that the committee felt it had accomplished its mission with the majority of the police agencies of the area in agreement. The sooner the installations and operation could start the better. Captain O. L. Murden, Communication Officer of the Norfolk Police Division, was elected as chairman to head the proposed area system.

Present Good Gov't Good For Adams

VIRGINIA BEACH—The president of the new political group allegedly formed of about thirty businessmen from Virginia Beach, has apparently been successful as a businessman in the City as a direct result of economic stability, growth and good government.

Investigation of records at City Hall show that: Rhoe Adams, owner of Emrhaf Ford and president of the new group reportedly known as Good Government Association, has received contracts for cars and trucks from the City amounting to nearly one-half million dollars since the merger of the old city and Princess Anne County.

Since July 1, 1965, alone the contracts have amounted to nearly one-half of that figure, or about $225,000. The number of vehicles owned and operated by the City of Virginia Beach increased noticeably recently as the expansion of the city government followed the growth of the city.

The reported principles of the new group center around "good government at all levels," and this is supposed to be the aim of the secret membership of the association. At least since 1963, the figures show that the group's president has reaped a half-million dollar harvest from the smooth operation of the present good government of the city.

Permanent Center Wanted At VB

VIRGINIA BEACH—The success of the servicemen's Hospitality House located in the basement of the former hospital at 29th Street and Arctic Ave. has shown the need of a year-round USO-type community center, and a recent luncheon meeting was held to explore possible avenues to that end.

LANDOWNERS HEARD AT PUBLIC HEARING

City Council Passes Resolution Recommending New State Park

VIRGINIA BEACH—City Council held an hour-long public hearing which contained some angry words on the part of City Treasurer V. A. Etheridge Monday, then voted 9 to 2 to recommend that the State of Virginia buy as much of the 2,000 acre Barbour Hills Farm as possible with the $1.25 million set aside to buy land for a State Park in that area.

The land in question lies to the south of the Federal Wildlife Preserve below the city owned property at Little Island.

When the matter was opened for discussion, Councilman L. Stanley Hodges, who had presented a resolution concerning a State Park at the previous Council meeting had a statement.

He explained that the State of Virginia had $1.25 million to spend on a State Park in the area as recommended by the Department of Conservation and Development. He said he did not know how much land the money would buy. Using the Little Island property as a barometer, he said it certainly could not purchase the area from the Wildlife Preserve southward to the North Carolina line.

He added that a 1,350 acre park in that area had received no opposition in the City Planning Commission public hearing on May 4. The Virginia Outdoor Recreation Commission once recommended taking the entire area for a park, but not enough money was appropriated for the entire 4,800 acres by the State.

Hodges said: "I don't know a thing about land values down there, but from what I've seen, that million and a quarter won't go very far."

The problem arose at the last Council meeting when Hodges introduced a resolution, he said was prepared without his knowledge. The resolution read:

"Whereas the Department of Conservation and Economic Development of the Commonwealth has approved the purchase of property extending from the Wild Life Reservation to the North Carolina line for use as a park and camping area, and whereas the development of this area in the manner so contemplated in the best interest of the City of Virginia Beach..."

The confusion arose because the resolution did not say how much property southward toward the North Carolina line was being considered, and Etheridge said a public hearing should be called on the matter giving the property owners in that area a chance to be heard. The public hearing was called, resulting in Monday's crowded Council chamber.

After Hodges had clarified the matter, and amended his resolution to be specific, Etheridge presented his case as a landowner of two tracts anyway, even though his property would not be affected. Only the Barbour Hill property is affected in the resolution.

Etheridge began, "Gentlemen, I don't know how much land is involved, but I came here to speak on the entire area." And he did.

He said he thought the entire 4,800 acres would be worth about $5 million, and pointed out that the area had brought in about $2.5 million in revenue to the City in the past year.

At the conclusion of his address mostly about the lack of economic value of a park, Etheridge proposed opposition to development of the 4,800 acres as a park, adoption of an ordinance fixing a setback line not less than 400 feet for all future buildings between the Refuge and the North Carolina line, and to adopt a resolution requesting the State to build a highway to the North Carolina line.

Several property owners or their representatives spoke, but most agreed to the singular tract of land being used for the park.

Louis James of Fairfax County objected on the grounds that he had had to learn about the matter in the newspapers. He said "Council should have enough respect for the property owner to... send us information on the plans."

McLain Reynolds, of Richmond, who also owns property at first objected, but when he found that the State would then build a road through the Federal territory to the park, he spoke again, saying he approved of the Park on the Barbour property only.

Several others objected, they said, "on principle." Duck Braithwaite said that "if one grain of sand in that property is taken it is too much."

Wilson Chaplain said, "All it seems like is it helps surfers and campers, and they don't spend anything."

Wayne Lustig, speaking for Gordon Campbell, favored the Barbour property as a park, but leaving the rest for economic development.

Dr. Ira Hancock, who said he had many patients in the remote areas, favored the Park because a road would be built.

Finally the resolution was brought to a vote by Hodges and it passed nine to two. Whitehurst and Tebbutt voting against.

Except for the misunderstanding about the amount of property to be used, there seemed to be little controversy. The dissenters who spoke and who filled Council chambers to overflowing but did not speak appeared satisfied at life outcome, when only the one tract of land was in question.

Only two persons appeared upset. One was a spokesman for the Barbour Hills farm, who said that Mr. Barbour was not interested in selling, and that the property had been in the family for about 75 years. The other was Etheridge, who told a dissenter after the meeting, he hated to see them take any of it.

Otherwise, the City of Virginia Beach could be well on its way to getting another State Park within its borders to the satisfaction of nearly everyone.

In other action, City Council: Accepted a contract for a water engineering firm from New York, Malcolm Pirnie, to make a $300,000 survey. The survey would be made of proposals to join the City Hall area and Sandbridge area to present water lines. The Pirnie work would also include a fee of 5 per cent of the total cost of the contract if and when it is awarded.

Set October 24 for a public hearing on the Master Plan for recreation as amended by the City Planning Commission and passed by that body.

Accepted the low bid of $68,518 by Hunt Contracting Corp. of Norfolk for the building of a new Department of Public Utilities pumping station for the Birdneck area. The money is to come from bond funds.

Approved a permit to move a house from Foundry Lane and Virginia Beach Boulevard where the new RK Chevrolet building is being constructed.

Bikes Being Licensed

VIRGINIA BEACH—With a police crackdown of unlicensed bicycles, parents have purchased nearly 1,500 bicycle licenses during the past week.

According to Juvenile Detective Michael Zello who is in charge of the bicycle detail, police in the last and 2nd Precincts have been kept busy issuing licenses which cost only $1 to register.

Fines for having an unregistered bike may cost as much as $10. Registration may be made by mail or by personal appearance at police headquarters at Princess Anne Courthouse or in Virginia Beach Courthouse.

Mrs. Kelberg Named To Va. Beach School Board

VIRGINIA BEACH—Mrs. Lee Kelberg has been appointed to the Virginia Beach School Board, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation Monday of George R. Ferrell. Ferrell had to resign to become a member of the City Council effective September 1.

Mrs. Kelberg, 31, was nominated by Albert Bonney, and her appointment was unanimous.

The 1957 graduate of the University of Pennsylvania said she did not know anything about the possible appointment until Saturday, and that the action came as a complete surprise.

The newest school board member also attended the Norfolk Division of WJLam and Mary before going to the University of Pennsylvania. More recently she has taken education courses at Old Dominion College, qualifying here to become a teacher.

Beach Borough UCF Drive Going Well

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Virginia Beach Borough United Communities Fund campaign has passed the one-third mark of its goal, according to Robert Gay, co-chairman of the Fund campaign.

Gay said that it had been reported to him and to Earl Slatum, the other co-chairman, that $2,108 had been turned in through Tuesday.

The hotel and motel division has collected $1,035, or one-third of its goal. The restaurant division has collected $900, and the small business division has collected $500.

The goal, $6,000, is slightly more than last year, when the goal was not reached. The Beach Borough campaign is run separately from the rest of the City 14 cause of the resort nature of much of the business. After Labor Day, many of the businesses virtually close up for the winter.

Gay said, "It looks good now. It's running ahead of last year this time." He said he expected the goal to be reached.

He added that a concentrated effort by all workers is being undertaken this week in the hope of winding up the fund campaign by the end of the week.

Rescue Unit Attends Sick Fish Here

KING'S GRANT—Rescue squads are called on to do many things, but sending an ambulance to treat sick fish may be the strangest call of all.

Monday the London Bridge Rescue Squad was called to a lake in the King's Grant area because some fish appeared to be ailing.

The squadmen were up to the situation however. In fact, it turned out this was not their first sick call. They responded immediately and sprayed something in the water. Amusement accomplished, but there is no conventional report on the fish.

Conference To Hear Stevens

VIRGINIA BEACH—Alden Stevens, of Bloomfield, New Jersey, field director of Mobil Travel Guide, will address the Virginia Travel Council at its annual Autumn Conference in The Cavalier Hotel, September 15. Virginia Beach has ninety members of the Council who are expected to attend.

Mr. Stevens also has written more than 100 magazine articles, many television shows for both NBC and CBS and a number of short movies.

"There is no question in my mind that Virginia is right up there among the most fascinating states in the Union. The nation was born at Jamestown and there hasn't been a dull moment in Virginia since," he wrote the Council.

any particular objectives as a School Board member, she said. "I want the children of Virginia Beach to receive a well-rounded education so that those who want to go to college can do well on their college boards, in order to be able to go to the college of their choice." She added that she intends to study the opportunities Virginia Beach offers retarded children.

Woman Reports Attack Near London Bridge

VIRGINIA BEACH—Virginia Beach Police were searching for a 25-year old man accused of rape and assaulting a Virginia Beach woman early Monday near London Bridge. The victim is a 35-year old married woman, according to police report.

Detective Charles Harris, who is investigating the case, said the woman told police the man was at a restaurant in the London Bridge area when she entered about midnight. She said the man asked her to take him home. They got into her car and told her to drive to the end of Oceana Ave. and then about 150 feet onto a dirt road into the woods.

She said she attempted to run, but the man chased her, tore off her clothes and raped her. She fled according to the report, but the man found her and kicked her in the face, then begging her not to tell police. Police say the woman later returned to the car, found some clothes and went for help. She was taken to Virginia Beach General Hospital.

Police say the woman said she had seen the man before but had not been out with him. An investigation was continuing.

Creeds' Women City Champs

The Creeds' women's softball team established themselves as undisputed champions of the women's softball league by defeating Great Neck in a close contest, 7 to 6 on Tuesday night, August 16, at Union Kempsville's athletic field. Creeds had earlier won the National Division Championship by having the best win-loss record. Other teams in the National Division were Stalack, Blackwater, and Lynnhaven. The American Division teams were Great Neck, Newlight, C & K, and Bayside with Great Neck having the best win-loss record.

The first game of the series was won by Creeds 6 to 4 with Great Neck taking the second by a score of 11 to 3. Both teams were well coached as evidenced by the display of skills by members of both teams. Mrs. Bettie (Max) Owens, the manager of Creeds, had three very efficient and highly qualified male coaches. Herbert Harris managed Great Neck, the city champions of the 1966 season. The championship series brought the two teams together for the first time during the 1966 season.

The league was sponsored by the Union Kempsville division of the Department of Parks and Recreation, City of Virginia Beach.

Registration At Elem. Schools

VIRGINIA BEACH—Students who will be new to Virginia Beach School System will be registered next week at all 30 elementary schools.

Bruce McGuire, director of elementary administration, said the new students may register from 9 a.m. to noon, Monday through Friday.

First graders must be accompanied by a parent and be at least 6 years old on or before Oct. 1, and are required to have smallpox vaccination records.

Youngsters entering grades 2 through 7 should bring a transfer slip or their last report card from their previous school system.

Riganto To Host Banquet

VIRGINIA BEACH—Gus Riganto, owner of Freddy's Restaurant at Princess Anne Plaza, will host his annual banquet Monday, July 29, at Princess Anne High School. He will entertain the Virginia Beach All-Stars, made up of the winners in the Little League, Colt League and Pony League.

Trophies will be presented to the outstanding Little League player and to the outstanding Pony League player. About 150 persons are expected to attend the annual Dad and Lad banquet.

The principal speaker of the evening will be William P. Kellam, State Senator from Virginia Beach. Judge Philip Russo of Virginia Beach Municipal Court will also speak on juvenile delinquency and Gene Dalquist, Neptune's quarterback, will also speak to the group.

Mrs. Lee Honored

VIRGINIA BEACH—Mrs. Louise Lee, a 4-H club leader for 25 yrs., was the surprised honoree at a banquet held Tuesday evening at the Pine Tree Inn by the Agriculture Committee of the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce.

Dick Cockrell, agricultural agent, presented Mrs. Lee with a Green Emerald Certificate and a 25 year pin. The City 4-H clubs further honored her with the awarding of a silver bowl for her quarter of century of service to the youth of the community.

Good Will Ambassador

VIRGINIA BEACH—A large supply of picture postcards depicting the Norwegian Lady are finding their way to Norway these days, through the efforts of a good will ambassador, self-appointed.

The situation came to light recently when Roy L. DeHart, of Virginia Beach, was in Montreal, Canada, visiting his niece and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Weems. DeHart said Weems had a large supply of the postcards of the Virginia Beach landmark.

Weems, an officer of the Division of Foreign Quarantine of the United States formerly lived in Virginia Beach, but is now stationed in Montreal. He gives the postcards to the captains and mates of all Norwegian ships coming into the Great Lakes area through the St. Lawrence River.

DeHart's niece, Mrs. Mildred Weems was formerly associated with the Virginia Division of Motor Vehicles in the Virginia Beach office.

The statue of the Norwegian Lady was presented to the City of Virginia Beach by the government of Norway. The City erected the statue at 25th and the Boardwalk to commemorate the tragic shipwreck of a Norwegian ship. The original Norwegian Lady was part of that ship. The picture postcard of the present statue is said to be a favorite with tourists.

Wrong Recreation

VA. BEACH—On evidence supplied by the Chesapeake & Patomac Telephone Co., the first major obscene-call offender has been apprehended since the company installed new equipment to track down telephone abuses.

Carol Edward Pelkey of Chesapeake was arrested by Detective Warren L. Grant and admitted in Municipal Court to Judge George Vakos that he made thousands of such calls and that he considered them a form of recreation and that he intended no harm.

Judge Vakos delayed sentencing Pelkey and ordered a psychiatric examination for the man.

Asst. Commonwealth's Atty. Joe Canada said the mental examination will take about 60 days.

KELLAM - TIGNOR

VIRGINIA BEACH—Miss Beth Merriam Tignor and Harold Blanton Kellam Jr. were married Saturday afternoon at 4 p.m. with a double ring ceremony performed by Dr. John E. Johnson in Bayside Presbyterian church. Assisting minister was Dr. Charles Otis Kidd of Reville Methodist Church in Richmond.

Mrs. John C. Mendels, cousin of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Elizabeth Hardy Kellam, sister of the bridegroom; Mrs. Carl Franklin Cannon Jr. of Smithfield, Miss Marcia Lee Siegfried of Virginia Beach, and Miss Elizabeth Thomasson of Lynchburg. Junior bridesmaids were Miss Rebecca Ann Tignor and Miss Melissa Lynn Tignor, sisters of the bride.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jackson Lee Tignor of Baylake Pines. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Harold Blanton Kellam of Virginia Beach.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length gown of Irish linen with a scoop neckline, elbow length sleeves, a fitted bodice, and a softly pleated skirt. The bodice and skirt were appliqued with Fontainebleau galleon lace. The cathedral train with its large center pleat followed gently from the waist. Her finger, tip veil featured a crown of pearls and sequins, and she wore her mother's wedding pearls as her accessories.

Harold B. Kellam served as his son's best man. Ushers were Ragan Bradshaw Walker of Virginia Beach, William A. Bert Crosby of Virginia Beach, Matthew Morgan Tignor, brother of the bride; and Edwin Clay Kellam of Norfolk, cousin of the bridegroom.

The reception was held in the Tidewater Ballroom at the Lake Wright Motor Lodge.

Destination of wedding trip was Mountain Lake in the Virginia mountains. After September 9, their residence will be on the Hampden-Sydney campus, Hampden-Sydney, Virginia.

Council Honors Retiring Members

VIRGINIA BEACH—City Council unanimously passed a resolution Monday commending its retiring members who were serving at their last meeting before leaving office. The new Virginia Beach City Council takes office September 1.

John McCombs, of Virginia Beach Borough, introduced the resolution thanking the four present members of Council who were not candidates for re-election in June for the fine work they had done as public servants.

The four who are retiring are James Darden of Lynnhaven Borough, and C. B. Owens, W. Hugh Kitchin and L. Stanley Hodges of Virginia Beach Borough.

Under the new apportionment system, each Borough has one representative and there are four at-large representatives. Seven of the present councilmen will continue to serve on the new council, it is now constituted. They will be joined by four newcomers—G. Dewey Simmons, Jr., of Lynnhaven Borough and George Ferrell, Murray Mabson and Robert Cromwell, at-large.

SAM MEREDITH DANCES with his lovely daughter, Mrs. Tom Ellington, who with her family is visiting her parents on Pinewood Road.

Operation Kool-Aid

The Tidewater Area Council, a branch of the National Navy Wives Clubs of America, Inc., composed of eight of the local clubs with a combined membership of approximately 150 members, is sponsoring a drive to collect pre-sweetened Kool-Aid for the service men in Viet Nam.

The water the men must drink is unfit for human consumption and must be boiled before using. Even this does not eliminate the bad odor or vile taste of the water. The men have asked for the pre-sweetened Kool-Aid.

Under the direction of Mrs. Augusta Beard and Mrs. Pat Counts, a drive beginning August 15 known as "Operation Kool-Aid", a project planned to reach every corner of Tidewater Virginia.

Posters are above the collection barrels or boxes, in which to deposit donations of pre-sweetened Kool-Aid or any other brand of pre-sweetened drink. These will be located at all 7-11 Stores, all Value Fair Stores, some Colonial Stores, and some B-L Stores.

It is hoped to collect enough for at least one day's supply for each man in Viet Nam, or approximately 250,000 packages. This needs the help of every parent and child in the area.

If other groups such as schools, Scout Troops, etc. wish to participate in this worthwhile endeavor, contact Mrs. Augusta Beard, 429-1098 or Mrs. Pat Counts, 429-0702.

Aragona Man Is Honored
VIRGINIA BEACH—City Council acted favorably on a resolution Monday honoring an Aragona man for apprehending a hit-and-run driver, who had struck and killed a 9-year old boy earlier this month.

Bayside Councilman Lawrence Mr. Hill read a letter he said was from an interested citizen. The letter praised the heroic deed performed by Arthur Linwood Diggs, Jr. Marshall then introduced a resolution prepared by the City Attorney, which was passed unanimously.

Mayor Frank Dusch then added his remarks to the record, saying that more people should be like Diggs and not mind getting involved.

Diggs, a neighbor to the boy who was killed, chased the driver in his own car, forced the hit-and-run car to the curb chased, apprehended and held the driver until police arrived.

Party Line . . . By OLGA EDWARDS

Text and photos by Douglas Barnes, guest writer
Saturday night we were asked to come to the Princess Anne Country Club to cover the Dinner-Dance. We heard the laughter of many revelers and loud music as we climbed the steps to that lovely historic playground for its men.

To our surprise two combos were playing in the same ballroom where the guests had finished their dinner, and that's what made the music loud and the dancing continuous.

More than 150 participants listened and danced to the music of "The Magnificents", and the smooth satin voice of chanteuse Ann Rayburn. Her excellent drum rendition played while singing and standing brought judicious Hugh Meredith to his feet to dance with Mrs. Meredith.

The two combos played alternately, reminding us of the W & L dances when a band played at each end of the huge gymnasium and a gal got breathless from trying to keep up . . .

Sam Meredith was dancing with his daughter, the striking blonde, Mrs. Tom Ellington from New York City, who with Mr. Ellington and children are visiting her parents. Mrs. Sam Meredith, smiling and always fun to attend, attended Lynchburg High School in 1919, when as Cabell tells her unbelieving friends, "we both weighed under 100!" . . .

At a table, being very sedate, sat four attractive people who seemed content to absorb the music and enjoy each other's company. They were Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Gottwald and Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Gottwald Jr. of Richmond. They were interesting conversationalists, and we would have liked to talk politics, but dared not broach the subject at such a fun party.

Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Lott seated with Mr. and Mrs. R. Lee Bonney and Dr. and Mrs. L. C. Henry made another delightful group. Mrs. Lott wore a pale yellow linen with crystal beaded boatneck collar, while Mrs. Bonney's Nero red crepe was lovely. Mr. Lott Others noted enjoying themselves were Mr. and Mrs. Scott Sterling Jr. Mrs. Sterling's attractive dress was styled with a white accented pleated skirt, the middie blouse was a geranium red bolero, flecked with gold, and with a sailor collar. Also Mr. and Mrs. John Dempster of Richmond, Mr. and Mrs. James Halstead, Mr. and Mrs. P. A. (Ham) Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Haywood Cockrell, and James Tyler.

Hospital Corpsman 1/c Thomas S. Hill, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd W. Hill of 425 Duplin street, is serving aboard the auxiliary ocean tug, USS Tillamook, and recently participated in a five-day search and rescue mission in Sagami-Wan, a bay about forty miles south of Tokyo, Japan.

EDITORIALLY SPEAKING

Vandalism In The Neighborhoods

Virginia Beach Police and other juvenile authorities are becoming increasingly alarmed at the amount of vandalism going on in the highly populated areas of Virginia Beach. Not only do parts from automobiles disappear mysteriously, but also bushes and flowers are trampled, construction sites are left in shambles, houses and automobiles are defaced and construction material disappears.

Obviously juveniles are not responsible for all of the above stated instances of lawbreaking, but in most cases, it is juveniles who are responsible. What distresses us the most is that the instances occur between midnight and 3 A.M. more often than not. Then when a juvenile (s) are found responsible, we have only to wonder just what type of parents they must have that would allow them to be out roaming the streets at those hours in the first place. That question also puzzles the police. Unfortunately, however, they can only deal with the offense and the offender after the crime is committed.

Much of the fault with juvenile offenders then lies with the parent who allows the youngster too much freedom or perhaps no restrictions whatsoever.

In addition to the vandalism in which a number of teenagers have been apprehended lately in densely populated sections, police believe some teenagers are stealing auto parts and other materials just to give away to their friends, and possibly to make them "a big man". Others, it is feared have been selling the items elsewhere at a profit.

Virginia Beach police officers cannot be every place at once, and we feel they do an excellent job of protecting our citizens. This vandalism and thievery by juveniles must stop. It is up to everyone to help bring both to an end. Please report any suspicious sounds or actions. Perhaps the offenders can be caught in the act. But more than that we ask the co-operation of parents who must care what becomes of their loved ones.

The Retiring Members Of City Council

Four members of the present City Council chose not to run for re-election after long and meritorious service to the City of Virginia Beach. They could have been re-elected. Of that we are certain, but for their own reasons, they chose to end their careers of municipal service.

All four men have served well, and their sure guidance will be missed. And we are grateful to them for giving of their time and effort in the past in the best interests of our city. They have all four served at a crucial time. They have been Council members through the "growing pain" years after merger of Princess Anne County and the old City of Virginia Beach.

Since that merger the new City of Virginia Beach has continued its mushroom growth toward becoming a major force not only in Virginia but also on the entire East Coast. They have witnessed and have been a part of that growth. They have aided Virginia Beach in its image of "The World's Largest Resort City" and have helped build a mature city, adult in every way. Through their leadership and the leadership of their fellow lawmakers, Virginia Beach has prospered.

The retiring members of Council are Hugh Kitchen, C. B. Owens, L. Stanley Hodges and James Darden, all highly respected citizens of our city, and gentlemen dedicated to Virginia Beach.

The people of Virginia Beach have chosen well in electing new City Council members, and we feel sure that our city will continue its prosperous growth through the guidance of our new representatives. Seven of the new eleven members are incumbents. They have been rightfully re-elected.

On September 1, the old Council is dissolved and the new one takes office. We praise the old and look forward to the new.

An Untimely Death

We too offer our sympathy to the people of New York City on the untimely passing of the Herald Tribune. When one of the giants of the industry dies, it is sad indeed, although the demise of many newspapers across the country goes unnoticed. Truly it is an alarming situation when newspapers are becoming so scarce.

In most metropolitan areas today there is usually only one daily paper. In some of the larger areas there may be an afternoon paper and a morning paper, mostly owned by the same company, as in Norfolk.

The days when newspapers and newspapermen belonged to a world apart, fighting crime, exposing corruption and presenting unbiased news is gone.

It is also very difficult for two papers, both owned by the same corporation, to take sides against each other and present both sides of a coin. Many papers in this category try this scheme and fail miserably.

The death of the Tribune was caused. Just what caused it is open only to speculation. Many people have many different reasons. Demands by unions, strikes, rising costs of operation, cost of materials, radio, TV, and a host of other things are all noted as reasons. Perhaps none are true. Perhaps all are true in some way. But whatever the reason or reasons, a great loss has come to New York City and the entire country. New York City is now left with only one morning newspaper. The spirit of competition somehow seems lacking in a city of eight million people.

The passing of that spirit of competition has made it easy for monopolistic newspapers to operate nationwide. They no longer need to serve the needs of the public. All they need to do is put out a newspaper at all.

Fortunately there are still a number of suburban and small papers still operating to help fill the void. The passing of the Tribune makes it more important for weekly newspapers everywhere to be successful and to continue keeping the public informed, as well as entertained. Perhaps that can serve as its epitaph.

LIKE FRANKENSTEIN -- ALL BODY, NO HEART

UCF In Virginia Beach Borough

Last year the relatively modest goal of the United Communities Fund in Virginia Beach Borough was not reached. This was indeed a real shame, particularly in view of the reasons behind the Fund.

The United Communities Fund grew out of old Community Chest programs as more and more charities began seeking to raise funds. Finally the charities banded together under a common heading, all with common goals. The Fund has been highly successful in many ways. It has kept the expenses of all the charities down and has made it easier for the lesser known charities to gather funds. Now, thanks to UCF, one contribution goes toward the relief of those not so fortunate as we, who must depend on charity. The money is distributed to the participating agencies on a percentage basis, and is thus used to best advantage.

We are pleased to report that the separate UCF Fund for Virginia Beach

Borough is proceeding nicely this year. The merchants and businessmen of the Borough have opened their hearts as well as their pocketbooks, and although the campaign is not over, it looks like the goal can be reached this year.

Obviously this makes us proud of the people of Virginia Beach Borough but more than that, it shows that they appreciate the services being provided in Virginia Beach through UCF distribution of funds.

We urge all merchants and businessmen of Virginia Beach Borough who have not availed themselves of the opportunity to contribute to this entirely worthy cause to do so immediately. Not only will it help others but it is also responsible for that hard to explain "warm feeling" inside the contributor that means complacency. Please help put the Beach Borough UCF campaign over the top this year.

Stop! Pay Toll

It has come to our attention recently that Virginia Beach Police and other police agencies for that matter cannot cross the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel or the Hampton Roads Bridge-Tunnel without paying tolls. The two tunnels to Portsmouth are free to police agencies upon signing a receipt.

Somehow or other we get the picture of a police car in hot pursuit of a criminal. The criminal runs the toll barrier in his car, but the police officer must stop and pay the toll. Granted this is an exaggerated picture, but it does point out what we consider an real injustice.

When the four men accused of bank robbery in Virginia Beach were picked up on Hampton, Virginia Beach police — on official business — had to go to Hampton to pick up the prisoners. They had to pay the toll both ways. It would seem that the State or any Authority controlling such a facility could make some sort of arrangement for police officers crossing the facilities on official business. State Police cars can pass through the Hampton Roads Tunnel without pay. Why not local police agencies that must use it in the course of carrying out their missions.

Police Departments operate on a very tight budget, for the most part. The officers are generally underpaid. The departments are generally understaffed. Money for police operations is hard to come by. Yet when the simple matter of allowing a police officer to pass free through a toll gate while on police business seems to be too much to ask. Although the instances of this may not be many, it has happened and it will happen again. Perhaps the time has come to do something about it. The price tag is not the important thing in this matter. It is the principle of the thing.

THE BEACH THIS WEEK

Electrical service in Virginia Beach west of Thalia was interrupted Saturday for about an hour when lightning struck a main power supply line. Power was off from about 4 p.m. to 5:15 p.m. No major problems arose, according to authorities. Power was also off in all of Norfolk and Portsmouth and parts of Chesapeake.

Virginia Beach Commonwealth's Attorney Robert L. Simpson has dismissed a complaint about Democratic Primary campaigning for Senator A. Willis Robertson. Simpson called the complaint made by City Treasurer V. A. Eberbridge unjustified and said that no prosecution was justified.

The Quasimodo, a rock and roll night club in Virginia Beach, was closed, and one of its co-owners was arrested on a charge of operating a dance hall without a license. Robert Dean had applied for a dance hall permit, but it was denied.

The chairman of the Va. Beach Democratic Committee, John F. Trice, says he will call a meeting of the committee soon to plan campaigning for the Democratic nominees in the November general election. Trice said he will urge strong local backing for the senatorial candidates, Harry F. Byrd, Jr. and William B. Spong.

as well as Rep. Thomas N. Downing, who is unopposed.

The Navy has a three-week course in progress at the Atlantic Amphibious Training Command at Little Creek, designed to give sailors assigned to shore duties instruction in how to survive in the jungles of Viet Nam, among other skills. Instruction is being given in insurgency and counterinsurgency.

A small seaplane made an emergency landing on Lynnhaven Bay inside Lesner Bridge over the weekend. The plane, which was running low in fuel, was gassed up at a nearby marina, and it once again headed south to Florida.

Two Navy Shore Patrolmen were slightly injured at 18th and Arctic Avenue when a car collided with their patrol wagon Friday. The two were treated at the NAS Oceana dispensary.

A soldier found Saturday, fully clothed, but in exhausted, incoherent, and in shock, emerging from the ocean, was on a four day pass from his Special Forces Training Group at Fort Bragg, N. C., according to an Army spokesman. He was admitted to Portsmouth Naval Hospital in satisfactory condition. An investigation has begun by the Army, and no details have been released.

THE VIRGINIA BEACH OPEN FORUM

There was a multitude of human fears. Some tremble in a thunder storm. Some panic at the smell of smoke. Some shudder at the thought of the high seas. Some faint at the sight of blood. Still others fear the true facts, about an ugly enemy of our beloved land.

There are those too, who have too short a vision, of what an ugly national enemy can do by way of the modern old-war practices. We know something about the clever brainwashing techniques; but not nearly enough.

During the past two decades or more, we have heard our national enemies and their sympathizers, yell, "Rabble Rousers". This is the frightened cry of an enemy, "about to be put in the squeeze"; by serious minded, thinking Americans, who love freedom.

Any time we Americans have a chance to hear the true facts, about an ugly national enemy, we had better avail ourselves of the opportunity. Read article on page 119, of August issue 1966, and be convinced.

If we keep our heads buried in the sand, our enemy may do, as was promised, bury us with our own shovel in our own dirt.

A REVIEW

'Seven Year Itch'

The Seven Year Itch by George Axelrod. Wedgewood Dinner Theatre, Toano, Virginia. Directed by Frank Staroba. Settings by Betty Oliver. Lighting and Sound by Stephen O'Brach. Cast includes Paul Iddings, Roby Brown, Mary Anne Moorman, Arden Staroba, Sandra McClung, Ellen Sanderson, Kyle Idding, Fran Derks and Paul Christensen.

The Seven Year Itch is now considered an old-time when comedies are considered, but it is a tried and true piece, which still continues to reap a large harvest of laughs. The Wedgewood production is by far the best production of the old comedy we have ever seen, even if it is a bit too long.

The story line is a simple one. Richard is left at home alone after his wife and little son go away for the summer. He is to join them on weekends. But there are complications for the happily married man, who has lived in wedded "bliss" for seven years. He is on the wagon. He is not smoking. He is keeping very busy with his work. All of this changes very quickly, however, when a tomato plant in a large iron pot falls from the balcony above and nearly chokes him. Incidentally the apartment above has been sublet by a most attractive and friendly young lady.

It does not take a great deal of imagination to figure out the rest of the plot, but it does take a great deal of imagination to view the non-realistic parts of the play. Richard daydreams and reminisces, and his imagination, a rather vivid one at that, is often revealed to the audience.

Paul Iddings, as Richard Sherman, plays the summertime bachelor to perfection. The audience can see in him all the fears and hopes of a "little affair". The role is so written as to keep the actor busy at times, particularly in the long, involved monologues. All of these Iddings handles nicely, never giving the audience time to catch its breath.

Fran Derks, as The Girl, (He never learns her name and neither do we) is most enjoyable. Her characterization of a rather uninhibited small-town girl in the big city is a delight. Miss Derks is lovely to look at in the first place, and her warm portrayal of the girl every guy would secretly like to know, made the evening doubly enjoyable.

Richard's wife, played by Arden Staroba, appears far too little in the play, but each time she is on stage, as a figure of her husband's imagination, she takes the scene as her own. Miss Staroba continues to add to her already glowing list of credits. Her scene as the imagined victim of an unfaithful husband is one of the highlights of the play.

Paul Christensen, a newcomer, who plays Tom Mackenzie, an old friend of the family and in Richard's imagination a somewhat off-wire-stealer, is a welcome addition to Wedgewood. His sense of timing and comedy underplay were a nice added attraction.

Laurels of the evening, though, must go to Roby Brown, as the mixed-up psychiatrist who has written a book. He receives applause after each of his short scenes, and the applause is well-deserved. His accent, his lip, his facial expressions and his characterization are fully worth the price of admission.

Figments of Richard's imagination. Sandra and Mary Anne Moorman each turn in a nice performance and add spice to the show. Also, Paul Iddings' son, Kyle, playing his son, had a nice bit at the beginning of the show.

The sure hand of director Frank Staroba can be seen throughout. And much of the credit for a successful performance must go to the sound and lights men. The many light changes and the many, many sound cues contribute greatly to the overall production.

Actually, had some of the monologues been cut somewhat or perhaps had the pace been picked up a bit in the first act, about ten minutes could be cut off the running time. That would make it just perfect.

CAPES SWIM TEAM WON 28 first place awards in August 15 meet against Princess Anne Country Club Swim Team and finished with an overall total of 208 to Princess Anne's 119. Two outstanding performances were given—Margaret Kilmer of the Capes, diving; and Anne Patterson of Princess Anne, individual medley. Nelson Workman is the swim coach at the Capes; Cedric Johnson of Princess Anne. Each meet consists of 44 individual events for various age groups. (Bolce Photo)

Unique Cars At Dragway

CREEDS — On Saturday night, August 27th, 1966 Virginia Beach Dragway will present four of the world's fastest and most unique cars in drag racing.

First is a 1966 MUSTANG known as the Georgia Shaker driven by Hubert Platt who hails from Atlanta, Georgia. This fastback Mustang is known as a "funny car"; fuel injected 427 cubic inch, single overhead cam motor. He is turning speeds of 180 M.P.H. in the 8 second bracket in 1/25 m.e. Hubert is known to be the finest showman and runner in the United States.

Second there is a 1966 Chevelle Chevrolet driven by Tom Sturm better known as "Just 4 Chevy Lovers". Tom hails from Gardena, California. He is one of the top 3 Chevrolets presently in drag racing. His car will be sporting a 427 cubic inch fuel injected Chevy motor. Tom is known for his fast starting ability. He promises to beat anyone off the line 2 car lengths with speeds of approximately 155 M.P.H.

Third is a 1968 MUSTANG "She Devil" driven by Bill McDuell. This car won the NASCAR Nationals at Daytona Beach this year and was also runner up for the Super Stock Magazine Race at York, Penn. and the Canadian Super Stock Nationals plus many more titles. Billy's home is in Newark, Delaware. He tells me he should have named his car "Chevy and Dodge Eaters". The power plant in this car is 427 cubic inch rise wedge.

And finally there is a 1966 Dodge known as the "Virginia Twister" driven by Billy West. This car is fuel injected and also known as a "funny car". Billy is known for his tremendous wheel stands. This

Class 'A' League Scores

In Class "A" League play sponsored by the Virginia Beach Department of Parks and Recreation, Walker Realty continued their winning ways by downing Rio's 8-4. Danny Collier, Worth Womble, Tom Yancey and Darryl Murry were the leaders at the plate for Walker. DeHart took a double header from Seaboard 19-4 and 10-4. Leaders for DeHart in the wins were Buddy Smith, 4/5; Phil Williams, 4/5; Bob Johnson, 5/5; Chuck Snyder and Bill Lyons with homers; Lyons with the pitching honors. Cambric edged Pungo 8-7 when Larry Brim connected for a hit to bring the winning run across the plate. Firestone split a double header with Pungo, winning the first contest 6-5; dropping the second 8-5.

Church League Play saw Plaza Baptist take a double header from First United, 10-4 and 7-4 putting them in a tie for first place in the league with Thalia Crusaders. The Thalia Lynn Bobcats took a game from the Prince of Peace by the score of 14-9. Ed Turner was the winning pitcher and was 2/2 at the plate. Tommy Johnson was 4/4 at the plate including a 3 run homer. Robert Pittman, Boyce Vann, Frank Hightower were 2/3 at the plate. Scott Foundry took two games to put them in a tie for fourth place in the league with Prince of Peace. The first contest saw Scott Foundry take Easyville Baptist by score of 12-7. Glenn Gurganus was the winning pitcher in this contest.

Two Awards

VIRGINIA BEACH — Bethel 42, Kempville, of the International Order of Job's Daughters, won first place in a drill competition at Janaf Shopping Center sponsored by the Tail Cedars of Lebanon last week.

The group later took a third place in the exhibition class in a drill competition held in Philadelphia where the group was competing with drill squads from all over the world at the Supreme Session of the International Order.

Walker Wins In Class 'A'

In Play sponsored by the Virginia Beach Department of Parks & Recreation, Walker Realty swept aside the opposition to take the championship of the Class "A" League Tournament. Walker's first win of the tournament was over DeHart, 11-4, in a game which saw Roger Wilson, Linwood Strickland, John Daniel's, Worth Womble, Tom Yancey and Al Bonney Cambric, a hard fighting team all emerge as hitting and scoring aces. Bonney connected for two homers and had 4 RBI's in the contest.

Cambric won the right to meet Walker in the finals by virtue of their 6-3 win over Pungo.

The finals, pitted Walker, the regular season champ, against

Boy Drowns In Lake Joyce

VIRGINIA BEACH — A 15-year-old Norfolk boy drowned Monday afternoon in Lake Joyce while swimming, apparently with neighborhood children. He was identified by police as Robert Matthews, of St. Pauls Boulevard.
Matthews and two other boys had been job hunting in the area, according to Police Lt. J. J. Waerfield, when they were invited to go for a swim, but only Matthews accepted.
The boy's body was recovered after about ten minutes by Joseph Gilliland, 22, who tried without success to revive the boy. Members of Chesapeake Beach and Ocean Park Volunteer Fire and Rescue squads also attempted unsuccessfully to revive the boy.

The Wishart House Visited

By Douglas Barnes

An unusual book, published in 1930 by Wallace Nutting and titled "Virginia Beautiful", is illustrated by the author with 330 pictures of landscaped dwellings. Nutting says in his preface: "Virginia is so rich in beauty that not even many hundreds of illustrations, compactly arranged, can more than cursorily touch the attractive regions of the state."

"Especially in the matter of old houses, Virginia, could supply volumes, so that our aim in this book is to exhibit as wide a variety of scenes, distributed between landscape, mountain, blossom, and dwelling."

"In all books on Virginia that the author has seen, the text concerning old houses is largely taken up with stories of people who live in them, with slight reference to dates, merits of architecture, or materials used."

"Mount Vernon and Arlington, shrines of unnumbered pilgrims, the matchless Shenandoah, the great army and navy posts, the teeming commerce of Richmond and Norfolk, these have appeals, till one may say that Virginia sits securely by her mountains and her seas capturing the admiration of all generations."

There is no more interesting nor sturdy a subject than old homes in Princess Anne County. As A. A. Milne proves in "Where the Blue Begins" and Peanuts in his classic philosophy, happiness and jewels of thought and research lie in our own back yard; old homes here at the Beach and in the county are jewels, and they lie "in our own back yard."

Lynnhaven Colony or Princess Anne County is rich in the history of old houses. Substantially built, they represent the pioneer qualities of their many owners, and at least 40 or 50, built before 1800, are still standing in their original or restored structure.

Even the most modest were built on high ground, sloping in all directions toward a branch or a stream, a brook, or a river. Early houses were known as "dwelling places", and they were homes, not houses. Built of oak, pine and walnut, they were always landscaped with trees planted along with the necessary crops. Poplar, cedar, tulip, myosotis and locust abounded, and the early settlers built the first houses—log cabins—soon followed by frame.

In Tidewater, there were few stones, but forests of gum, oak, pine and cedar were free for all while oyster shells were free for the mortar in the brick constructions. It is interesting to note that Virginia's early history indicates that bricks were made here and exported to Bermuda.

One of the oldest homes in Princess Anne, not as well known as the Adam Thoroughgood or Keeling homes, but built in some structural qualities as they are, is Wishart House, unoccupied at present, and owned by W. W. Oliver. The Historical Society would like to preserve it in restoration.

With an outside chimney at each end of the house, its gabled ends contain two weathered setoffs in each, made of bricks of English bond throughout. In its bricklaying, the roof until very recently, was a high, sharp line, with a chimney in each gable. A small front porch, supported by slight pillars, looks onto two 4-paned windows. Weatherbeaten, the home was probably painted a slate blue, a popular color for the homes of the early settlers. Large oak, locust and walnut trees guard the "dwelling place", while boxwood and orange blossom and lilac and wisteria bushes are unattended memorials of a by gone day.

Entering the front door, one sees the main room, from which a blind stairway goes to the two rooms above under the roof. There is one other room, and that is to the left, downstairs. On the outside, the house measures 32' 6" by 21' 2"; the height to the eaves is 10' 5".

"At the back is a door reached by several steps, opening into the other downstairs room. Nearby is a door, and by stooping slightly, one enters a cellar. It is about the height of a tall man. The foundation brickwork is easily studied, and the sills, most of them original, are in clear sight. They are hewn from oak, and the joists, supporting the roof and upper floor, project beyond the outside walls, and are secured by wooden pegs. The interior measurements of the downstairs rooms very nearly coincide with those of the Thoroughgood House." (The above quotes are from Kellam's "Old Houses of Princess Anne County.")

On the outside, again, we note old graves, and tombs rapidly decaying. William and Mary Boush and Wm. F. Boush, who died in 1816 at the age of 25, lie buried here. His tombstone of marble, bears an illegible inscription. Also are the tombs of Eliza J. S. Walke, daughter of David Walke, and daughter of William and Mary Boush. She was 82, when she died in 1884.

This Wishart House is usually spoken of as the Boush Place, although it did not come into the Boush family, when William, son of Frederick, purchased the land from Portia and Thomas Wishart in 1795. Located in Little Creek, it had an acreage of 300.

WISHART HOUSE (rear view) is perhaps one of the oldest homes in the area of Princess Anne county. It was constructed along the same lines as was the Webbs, Keeling and Thoroughgood homes. It is currently owned by W. W. Oliver, and reported to be one of the homes in Virginia Beach that the Princess Anne Co. Historical Society would like to purchase. (Planning Commission Photo by Jan O. Dool)

REMEMBER WHEN PRESERVES WERE DIFFICULT TO BUY?

You do, if you remember the 1920's.

In those days preserves were a seasonal item. Not enough berries were grown because producers didn't know how to keep them.

So, we sent an expert to the Northwest- (that's great berry country!), who assisted the growers in developing a method of freezing the berries as soon as they were harvested.

We experimented for a year.

The results were great.

Now, at last, we could buy enough quality berries to make Ann Page Preserves available to everyone—all the time.

Today, we buy berries by the train-load.

We have to. Our Ann Page Preserves are that popular.

As a matter of fact, if you took a year's production of Ann Page Preserves, Jams, and Jellies, they would cover a piece of toast ten square miles in size.

Two Day Surfing Carnival Ready For ECSC Contests

VA. BEACH—Entries from most of the more important surfers on the east coast have been received for the Virginia Beach Surfing Carnival's East Coast Surfing Championship this weekend, according to the Virginia Beach Jaycees. There should be about 400 entries by the time the jangling begins on Saturday, according to Webb Brown, Jr., one of the co-chairmen of the event.

Brown said entries had been received from every state on the eastern seaboard and several from the Gulf States as far away as Texas. In addition, there are several entries from California and Hawaii, although they must compete in separate events.

As an added incentive this year, at least five of the Virginia Beach winners will compete in the World competition in California in October.

Also a large number of trophies will be given to winners, and a perpetual trophy will be begun for the event. A new event, which promises to be a lot of fun is scheduled, according to Brown. It is being called a "watermelon run".

The major competition this year as in the past is expected to be between Virginia Beach surfers and the Florida surfers. P.T. Smith, a prominent surfer himself, will again announce the Third Annual East Coast Surfing Championship.

Extra added attractions are expected to include a demonstration of form and ability by Davey Abern, a surfboard manufacturer and eighth ranking surfer in the world and by Jyette Lagariera, fifth best in women's competition. Large crowds are expected to jam the surfing area at the foot of Steel Pier on Atlantic Avenue for the two-day event which will begin at 7 a.m. Saturday and last until 7 p.m. Saturday, then begin again Sunday morning at 7 a.m. and continue until trophy presentations.

The trophies were made by the Jaycees this year and feature the official insignia screened on a mottled plaque. The all-events champion will receive a special trophy donated by GEX-Virginia Corporation of Virginia Beach.

A special perpetual trophy is being given by Greg McMilligan of Florida, which makes surfing films. It is a radwood surfboard, believed to be similar to the earliest known boards. Beginning this year the name of the all-events winner will be inscribed on it and the trophy will remain in Virginia Beach. Each surf shop will have it on display for a period during the year.

The "watermelon run" which developed because the Jaycees were trying to come up with something "new and funny", according to Brown, should prove to be hilarious. Brown says now no one is willing to take credit for the idea.

Four watermelons will be dropped off the end of the fishing pier. All entrants will paddle out on surfboards and the surfer who retrieves one of the melons and gets it to the beach first wins. "There will be an important prize", said Brown, with a sly grin.

With as many as four hundred entrants on surfboards trying to retrieve four bobbing watermelons in the Atlantic Ocean, the "watermelon run" should prove quite interesting.

There are five major men's divisions and an open women's division in the competition both in surfing and in paddling. The paddling contests consist of paddle races to the end of the pier and back to the beach.

There is a $4 entry fee for each surfer which includes a fee for a souvenir T-shirt. Besides the other trophies, a lucky ticket holder. Judging will be by west coast surfers, and all national surfing magazines are expected to be represented.

Several well-known surfing teams from Florida are entered in the competition. One of the entrants from Daytona Beach is Bill "Flea" Shaw, 18, considered to be probably the best surfer on the east coast. He was a winner at Virginia Beach three years ago.

From the Surf Board's Hawaii Team from Indianapolis, Fla., comes Bruce Valluzzi, last year's all-events winner. Dick Catr, acclaimed World's Best on the east coast by Surfing Illustrated; Mimi Monroe, last year women's winner; Fletcher Sharp, last year's second place winner in the boy's division; and Gary Propper, 18, who has placed in several west coast contests and is acclaimed as one of the best on the east coast. He has won a place in the Virginia Beach contest every year.

Back to the couch, the pillows and blankets and with small light glowing softly, someone decides some singing is in order. Songs from "Red Roses for a Blue Lady" to "The Farmer in the Dell" to "Jesus Loves Me" and everything between are rendered with varying degrees of gusto depending on the knowledge of the tune and words.

Now it is time for a midnight snack. Everyone up again for cookies, graham crackers, and milk. More tooth brushing. And cookie and cracker crumbs join the popcorn kernels under pillows beneath blankets, etc.

One "party-pooper" has retreated to a bedroom in a bed and gone to sleep, but the rest are still going strong determined not to let their drooping eyes close. But the relentless Sandman has his way and sometime around 1 a.m., peace prevails.

Until 7 a.m. Now they are ready for breakfast. Mother of hostess takes orders like short-order cook and serves a variety of pancakes or English muffins or scrambled eggs or cereal.

After some frantic scurrying around to find a lost slipper, misplaced toothbrush and pillow cases which somehow disappeared off pillows, the little girls go dashing home to tell all about the great time they had at the pajama party. And mother of hostess goes back to bed.

Door Closed On Cinema

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Eden Alley Cinema has been closed before it opened. Scheduled to open Wednesday night, the 70-seat movie house was not allowed to open because of City objections to sanitary, electrical and fire safety conditions.

A stop work order was put into effect, after the City's supervisor of inspections said "the whole set-up was not right".

The main objection to the new movie house reportedly was the use of an old walk-in wooden freezer door, to be used for the entrance door, according to Milton Holland, City Inspector. It is stated in the City code that an entrance door must be six foot, eight inches high. The freezer door was six foot, three inches high.

The Eden Alley Cinema planned to show old films of all types in the small theatre, which opens on an alley on 17th street between Atlantic and Pacific Avenues. The first film scheduled had been "The Wild Ones" with Marion Bracy. The theatre is one of many projects being developed on the alley, including a leather shop and an art gallery.

One of the founders of the project, William Krajencik said he was optimistic that the difficulties could be worked out and that the theatre would open around September 1. About $2,000 has already been spent on the venture, according to one of the founders.

New Pumping Station Voted

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Virginia Beach Erosion Commission voted Tuesday to advertise for bids on a new booster pumping station. It will be the third such facility, and will be located on the boardwalk at 18th Street. The present, Rudee Inlet to about 25th Street. The new station would serve the north end of Virginia Beach Borough.

The consulting engineer of the commission, Joseph McDonald, said the new structure would be 23 feet by 18 feet and rise only five feet above the boardwalk. He added that he expects bids to be received for the commission at its next monthly meeting.

In other monthly meeting, the commission voted to seek about $45 thousand in matching Federal funds from the U.S. Corps of Engineers for beach nourishment programs, and appropriated $1,000 for construction of a workshop to be used in the overhaul of dredging equipment. The Commission had already voted $9,500 for the project previously.

Beach Graduate At Auburn University

AUBURN, ALA.—Some 638 degrees were awarded during summer commencement exercises at Auburn University Wednesday, Aug. 24. Leonard Joseph Deal, Jr., of Virginia Beach received a bachelor of aero engineering.

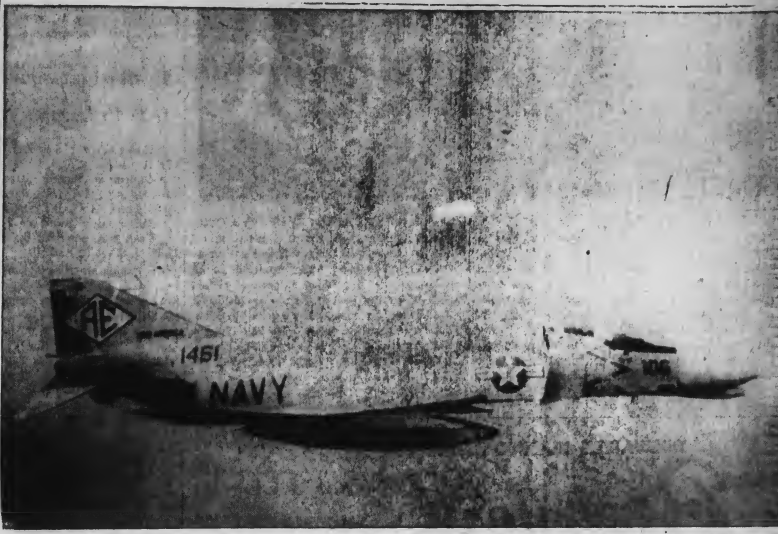

In all, 221 were awarded the graduate degree with another 427 to receive the undergraduate degree. Among the graduate degrees are 18 Doctor of Philosophy, nine Doctor of Education, and two Specialist in Education candidates.

Speaker for the commencement was Mrs. Sarah Blanton Folsom, a native of Alabama and now State Superintendent of Public Instruction in Arizona.

These Diamondbacks Don't Rattle Before Striking Down Their Prey

Restaurant Assn. Elects

VIRGINIA BEACH—The newly formed Virginia Beach Restaurant Association, modeled after a similar statewide organization, met Tuesday afternoon at the Black Angus Restaurant on Pacific Avenue and elected its first officers.

Michael Savvides, of the Black Angus, was elected president of the new group. Tom Ross, of the Donut Kitchen was elected vice president; the new secretary is John Peros, of the Plaza Pancake House; and the treasurer is Leo Michael, of the King of the Sea Restaurant.

Savvides said the purpose of the new association is to discuss collectively the problems facing the different restaurants.

"Summer help is a problem to all of us," said Savvides. "We hope the association can bring to light answers to our problems."

He added that the association will work to maintain the already high standards of restaurants in Virginia Beach and will work with the Health Department and other City offices in any way possible.

The Virginia Beach association is the third one formed in the State. The other two are in Newport News and Roanoke.

OCEANA — I reported to the ready-room of VF-102 about an hour prior to my flight with Cdr. Jim Clare, the Diamondbacks' executive officer. Ensign Phil Slaton took me to the riggers' room where I was fitted out with flight suit, gloves, boots, parachute harness, oxygen mask and helmet.

After much twisting, pulling, zipping, and turning I was ready to go back to the ready room and await the arrival of Cdr. Clare for the preflight briefing session.

When he did arrive, the exec explained that we (there was another aircraft going along) would be the permanent "intruder" in several intercept missions. The other Phantom would be piloted by Lt. (jg) D. E. Thompson with Lt. (jg) Chids as radar intercept officer. I would fly with Clare in the vacant RIO seat of his F4.

The exec told us that while we were up there Thompson and Chids would make several simulated head-on and rear intercept passes while we were out over the Atlantic. The head-on shots would be the simulation of that made when shooting a Sparrow air-to-air missile. The rear shot would be the simulation of a Sidewinder air-to-air missile. The difference between the two missiles is that a Sparrow has a radar guidance system and the Sidewinder has a heat-seeking system.

Although it sounds easy, one does not just go for a ride. First I had to go through a very intensive training program at Norfolk Naval Air Station.

That program consisted of two classes—in high altitude flying, oxygen and what effect the lack of oxygen had on a human being and the all-important ejection seat and its proper operation.

The other students who were at training the course and I were told by the instructors at the onset to listen carefully, because this instruction might save our lives. Fortunately I did not have to put any of the instruction to any practice.

Besides the classroom lectures we went to the equivalent of 34,000 feet in the pressure chamber and experienced the effects of the lack of oxygen and the symptoms warning of the lack. We were also shot out of an ejection seat simulator so that we might have some practice in "punching out".

In addition to all this instruction tons of power work had to be taken care of. The Public Affairs Officer at Oceana Naval Air Station, Lt. (jg) Ken Blackwell, and his able crew took care of arranging everything.

Following briefing we went out to the flight apron to "mount up". I had a slight tingling sensation. I don't know exactly what caused it, but it was there. My mind quickly fixed on one thing—I was flying with one of the best squadrons the Navy had to offer, so I had nothing to fear.

Ens. Slaton went on this trip, so he helped me "buckle up" and get situated in the back seat of the plane. We began to roll toward the runway as a slight, misty rain started falling.

Cdr. Clare wanted both planes to take off at the same time as a squadron unit, but the tower advised us that we would have to take off singly. We then received our final clearance from the tower and permission to roll. And roll we did!

I was pushed back into the seat by some invisible hand as the plane quickly picked up momentum.

um, and before I realized it, we were airborne.

We climbed to our preset altitude and waited while the other plane began to make its first pass.

I couldn't see a thing. We climbed to 40,000 feet and still didn't break through the stuff. Over the radio I could hear radar control on the ground talking back and forth with the other aircraft and at the same time giving us directions. These directions, given at different intervals, simulated an evasive action on our part.

All of a sudden a loud "BEEEE" shattered the stillness. We had just been "shot down" by the intercepting plane without having seen it. We knew it was coming, but not when. These diamondbacks don't rattle. An aggressor would not know when or where. I doubt if he would even know if another aircraft was after him until it was too late. I guess that's why they call it the Phantom.

This went on for more than an hour before we broke off and headed home. As we were coming home I realized, by listening to the radio, that we would have to make a blind, ground-controlled approach—something that was not called for in the original flight plan.

We entered the haze over Elizabeth City, North Carolina and flew blindly until we saw the end of the runway from about 100 yards. Cdr. Clare followed the instructions given him by the GCA officer and we came in for a perfect landing. A little wet, but perfect.

Even though I got soaked to the skin walking from the plane to the hangar, I wouldn't have missed it for the world. It was one great experience.

ON THE WAY BACK to the base we waited for the other aircraft to pull along side and into formation. I looked into the rear-view mirror and saw that it was already there. (Sun Photo By Moore)

DORIS PADRICK'S

VIRGINIA BEACH
(Copyright, 1965 — Doris Padrick)

Take eight little girls, ages 7 through 10, move furniture back, open out hide-a-bed couch, add sleeping pads, pillows and an assortment of blankets, mix all together in a medium-size living room on a dark and rainy night... what have you got? A summer-less Summer Party!

Putting a page from the teens' book of fun activities, this pre-teens' pajama party is like one city in name. It's not boys and beauty preparations nor food and frolic these little girls are interested in; their get-together produces scary stories and singing, popcorn and prayers, plus a lot of door-banging and drinks of water.

Arriving right after supper and shining clean from their home baths, they already are clad in pajamas and robes ready to begin. It's way ahead of time for their regular sleeping hour, yet each is ready to lay out her bed in a favored position (to be changed at least a dozen times before sleep comes!) If one arrives in a nightgown and the others have pajamas (or vice versa), she must go back home and change to coincide with the majority group.

Each brings her own toothbrush and much discussion on the merits of the hostess's tooth paste and method of brushing etc., accompany their vigorous night ablutions. The mirror gets speckled and little splatters of water dot the sink and floor, but there is usually one little housekeeper type who gets busy with a cloth (it might be an expensive guest towel) and cleans up after "these sloppy kids".

The TV is on but no one is paying any attention to it, as it is about now that they decide some popcorn and koi-and-aid to be a good bedtime snack. The popcorn must be separated into different bowls as some like it buttered, others want more salt, and a few want it plain. Buttered, salted, or plain—it all gets eaten except for innumerable kernels which somehow become mixed in with the bedclothing.

Now they have to brush their teeth again.

After much controversy as to who will sleep next to whom, whether the front door should be left open or shut, and "I can't sleep with the light on" or "I can't sleep with the light off," they settle down (temporarily) with the light off. Someone starts to tell ghost stories. The little ones get scared and stumble over prone figures to turn the light back on. One invariably gets stepped on and a bleeding nose results.

Everyone gets up to see victim. Mother of hostess administers first aid and the few drops of blood disappear. A couple of others complain of mashed toes and bumped heads which mother of hostess also must soothe and sympathize with. Little one, with big tears welling up in sleep-wanting eyes, holds her tummy and says, "I feel sick." Mother of stomach-ache patient is consoled and an aspirin given which little one chews happily now that she got some of the attention.

Back to the couch, the pillows and blankets and with small light glowing softly, someone decides some singing is in order. Songs from "Red Roses for a Blue Lady" to "The Farmer in the Dell" to "Jesus Loves Me" and everything between are rendered with varying degrees of gusto depending on the knowledge of the tune and words.

THE F. O. P. BUILDING at Princess Anne Court House is being readied for its new occupants—the members of the Virginia Beach Department of Finance. City Council must give final approval to the rent price ($2,000 a year) at its Aug. 22 meeting. It is expected to do so. Workmen were in the process of cleaning the building up last week. Awards Ceremony At NAS Oceana

OCEANA—Fighter Squadron 11 (VF-11), based at Oceana Naval Air Station at Virginia Beach, has been selected from the fighter squadrons of the Atlantic Fleet for the annual Safety Award for Fiscal Year 1966, presented by the Chief of Naval Operations.

The awards are presented each year by the Chief of Naval Operations to the squadrons maintaining the highest safety records as compared to other squadrons of their type.

During the past year the squadron, known as the "Red Rippers" operated as part of Carrier Air Wing 1 aboard the attack carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt. They completed a six month Mediterranean Cruise in December 1965, a three week deployment to the Atlantic Fleet Weapons Range at Roosevelt Roads, Puerto Rico, and a month tour at Key West, Fla. on alert duty.

In addition, the Red Rippers provided an aerial demonstration team to represent the United States in the independence ceremonies of Guyana (formerly British Guiana) in South America.

VF-11 moved to Oceana Naval Air Station at Virginia Beach, Va. from NAS Cecil Field, at Jacksonville, Fla. on July 15, 1966. The squadron, which has flown the F-8 Crusader for the past 7 years, is scheduled to transition to the F-4 Phantom II within the next few months.

Faculty Increases

VIRGINIA BEACH — With the opening of public school just a few weeks away, it has been announced that of the current 1,425 teachers and principals employed by the City of Virginia Beach, 385 will be new.

Mrs. Louise Luxford said that they are "coming to Virginia Beach from all over the United States to teach in our schools." She was "especially delighted and proud to say that a goodly number of teachers in our school system are local young men and women who after graduating from college come back home to teach."

When school opens on September 6, there will be close to 37,000 pupils enrolled, and keeping abreast of the increase in population is school construction. Two new high schools, First Colonial and Kempsville High, will be ready as will the new grade school, Alantone Elementary.

W&M Extensions Registration Set

WILLIAMSBURG—A new bulletin describing the extension program offerings at the College of William and Mary, has been issued for distribution.

The fall semester 1966-67 Extension Bulletin is available at most public schools, at the Educational Services offices, of the various military bases or may be obtained by contacting the Extension Division at the College of William and Mary.

The most notable change in the extension program is the increased tuition fee. Authorized last spring by the Board of Visitors, the new tuition is $16 per semester hour.

Extension Director E. Leon Looney also announced that fall registration will be held September 22-September 28 at the appropriate Extension Centers, including the centers at Princess Anne High School, Dam Neck, NAS Oceana, and Ft. Story in Virginia Beach.

"The organization meeting of the class will be held on the same date as registration," said Looney. "This will also be considered as the first of the 16 required class meetings."

PVT LEE NAMED SOLDIER OF THE MONTH—Private William G. Lee, a trumpet player with the 302nd Army Band, has been named the post Soldier of the Month. This is the second consecutive month that a 302nd Band member has been selected for this honor, and the seventh consecutive month that a member of the Band has been Soldier of the Month for Special Troops (2154). The young soldier was cited for his outstanding performance of duty, military bearing and appearance, and knowledge of general military subjects and current events. In a ceremony on July 27, 1966, PVT Lee was presented an engraved plaque, award certificate, and $50 check by Major General Victor J. MacLaughlin, commanding general, U. S. Army Quartermaster Center and Ft. Lee (left). Mrs. Lee proudly witnesses the presentation. The Soldier of the Month was assigned to Ft. Lee on May 1 of this year after completing basic training at Ft. Benning, Ga. Beach Frosh Visit ECC

GREENVILLE—Some 875 of the freshmen who will begin their college careers at East Carolina College next month visited the campus for the final two sessions of ECC's summer pre-college counseling program.

They came from 75 North Carolina counties, the District of Columbia and 11 other states: Delaware, Florida, Maine, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Virginia and West Virginia.

College officials greeted them on the day of their arrival and started them through a series of orientation activities. They stayed overnight for more orientation and counseling the following day and then returned to their homes.

Because of their visit to the campus, according to Dean of Men James B. Malloy, the new freshmen will be better prepared to make the transition from high school to college when the 1966-67 college year begins in September.

Gary Hicks and Carol A. Weekly of Virginia Beach attended the sessions at ECC and will attend the college this fall.

Seaside Park Goes To Teens

The teenagers will just about take over the Frantics at Seaside Amusement Park, Virginia Beach, for the last two weeks of the 1965 season. The management has set aside the first four nights of each week, Monday through Thursday, for the teens exclusively.

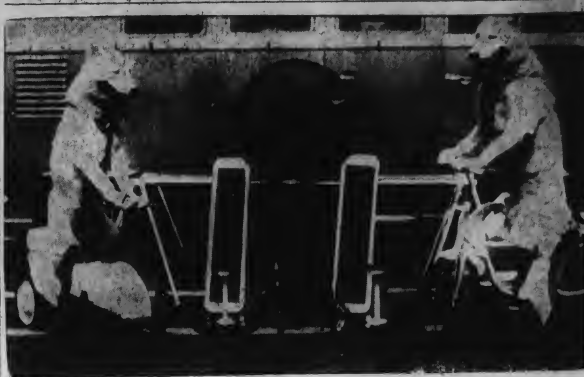

Mus'ic for dancing at the Frantics is provided by the Hang's Mann combo, a seven-piece group introduced to the Seaside Park scene for the first time this year, but already one of the most popular ever to play its park.

Another attraction at the Frantics is the HulaBells Go-Go Girls, who display the latest in today's strenuous dance routines in their illuminated cages on each side of the bandstand.

This week's free circus attraction on the Seaside Amusement Park outdoor stage may not beat the heat, but it at least will remind visitors of cooler climates. It is Texas Tommy and his trained huskies, a group of remarkably intelligent dogs from the far North. This is a return engagement for the act, which played here last year and won many requests for a repeat.

Two weeks of fun, sun and surf bathing remain for Seaside Park patrons to enjoy the rides, amusement devices and other entertainment features, along with the conveniences of a modern bathroom and bathing on one of the Atlantic Coast's finest ocean beaches.

Admission to Seaside Amusement Park is free.

TEXAS TOMMY'S ANIMAL ACT Free act attraction at Seaside Amusement Park on the outdoor stage, August 22 through Aug. 23, at 2:30 P.M. and 10 P.M.

Beach Youth Theatrical Apprentice

With muddled thoughts and plenty of ambition, Roger Peacock of Virginia Beach began his apprentice program at Wedgewood Dinner Theatre. Roger wasn't sure how he would find life as an apprentice but he was fully willing to explore the idea.

Arriving on June 18, along with the twelve other apprentices, Roger found himself in an atmosphere of organized confusion. The first task was to become settled in the dorm, the second was to become settled into a schedule. In the first weeks, rehearsals for "The Boy Friend" were the primary factor in apprentice life. A day's routine included morning classes, then dance class, followed by a voice class, followed by rehearsal in the afternoon, and rehearsal or crew assignment at night.

Roger's first obstacle as an apprentice came with dance class. "I hated every minute of it, but it sure has been helpful." Having never been exposed to it, his right foot, Roger underwent warm ups, and rehearsals of the various Charleston routines in total surprise. His attitudes toward the French waiter he plays in "Boy Friend" carries through all his work. Roger explained how he had never before been aware of what went on in good theatre, from the dancing to the strike night finishing touches, to the techniques of voice control.

Much of this new found awareness has been developed through scholastic class work. The apprentice program includes study in voice and diction, oral interpretation, acting and directing. With a special interest in the field of acting, "because I enjoy it" and directing, "because it gives you a freer creative hand" Roger found extra pleasure in class room activities. His role in "Boy Friend" will be followed by an off-Wedgewood production of Sartre's "No Exit." This one act is a combined effort of the apprentices to put on their own show, using their own resources which have been developing throughout the summer.

Besides work on stage, Roger has had a full work load in crews. Set crew introduced him to the wonders of tools and unshaped wood, a field in which Roger had never worked. Working in the box office has given him a chance to meet the public, work with their problems and learn what audiences hope to find in theatre. Another new experience for Roger has been the introduction of costume construction. On crew for "The Seven Year Itch" Roger is now spending afternoons remaking clothes, taking up hems, or lengthening a sleeve.

Roger describes his summer and his feelings toward theatre in one word, "co-operation." "For theatre to be successful it has to be a co-operative effort on everyone's part. I guess that and tolerance have been the most important lessons I've learned all summer."

Golf Briefs

VIRGINIA BEACH — In the Kempsville Meadows Ladies Invitational golf tournament last Tuesday, Carla Stevenson fired an 82 for the low gross of the field and fielen Brown with a 73 took low net honors.

In the Eagle Haven Ladies Day play Tuesday Betty Wood and Doris Barek tied with 65's. It was a throw-out-three word-26 tournament. Chris Ogle with 25 had low putts.

Summer Sands Has Variety

VIRGINIA BEACH—Continuing their pattern of variation in entertainment, Summer Sands Tent Playhouse, across from the Dome at 17th and Arct'c in Virginia Beach, will present William H. Smith's adaptation of "The Drunkard." This classic melodrama, presenting the unparalleled history of American theater at its peak, is a moral play against the evils of drink and is highly recommended as family entertainment.

With refreshments served in a cabaret atmosphere, this production under the direction of Ed Blonts, will also feature vaudeville entertainment during intermission. Opening on Saturday, August 27th, the play will continue on August 28th to reopen August 31st and again September 1st through the 5th.

Featured in the play will be Alan Quatermain, Susan Epstein, Robert Wilson, Kay Gore, Ed Blonts III, Lisa Meyers, Sue Ferguson, Alice DuBois and others. By popular demand, two extra performances of Summer Arthur Long's "Never Too Late" will be presented this Wednesday and Thursday. Under the direction of Alice DuBois, this comedy features Ed Blonts, Jane Fleming, Allan Quatermain, Gordon Creevy, Lynne Good, Alice DuBois and Mike Moring. Tickets may be purchased daily at the tent until curtain time at 8:30, and children under 13, when accompanied by a parent, will be admitted free of charge.

Boat Tour Of Beach Man In Canal System Nat'l Contest

VIRGINIA BEACH — Flooding problems in Virginia Beach was the topic of discussion last Friday when City officials and agriculture agents took a firsthand tour of the drainage canals in the city.

The three-hour tour also included a stop at the site of the proposed canal between Lake Rudee and Back Bay. The project was halted last May, but will probably be resumed after the completion of a City Council authorized study of the city's canal system.

City Manager W. Russell Hatch, said the boat trip pointed out the need for the canal system's completion. Roper Scott, assistant to the City Manager, said the two boats used in the tour covered about ten miles along two canals.

The agriculture agents were shown how the small watershed drainage projects already completed had helped the farmers in those areas of Virginia Beach.

Instructors Are Needed For Adults

The Virginia Beach Department of Parks & Recreation would like to procure from the ranks of the citizenry of the City, Qualified instructors to lead classes in its Adult Activity program.

The classes run for six weeks, meeting once a week for a two hour instructional period. Instructors are compensated for their work.

Areas in which instructors are needed are as follows: oil painting, ceramics, charm, silmsastics, knitting, dog obedience, cake decorating, arts and crafts, flower arranging and flower arranging.

CAMP PERRY, OHIO—The National Rifle Association of America announced that Viecko E. Le-vander of 1922 Sunnys Dr., Virginia Beach, Va. was to be a competitor in the 1966 National High-Power Rifle Championships, during the National Matches, at Camp Perry, Ohio, August 16 to 28. The National Matches, a joint endeavor of the U.S. Armed Forces, NRA and the National Board for the Promotion of Rifle Practice, bring together, in a competitive spirit, more than 7,000 shooters who will fire in shoulder-to-shoulder competition.

Mr. Levanter and his fellow shooters, who number more than 2,600, represent this nation's top high-power rifle shooters. They will compete for honors and awards on ranges varying from 200-1,000 yards. The High-Power Championships are divided into two categories — Service Rifle and Bolt Rifle. In addition to firing, competitors, veteran and amateur, will attend the Small Arms Firing School. Classes are conducted by the highly skilled instructors from the Army's Marksmanship Training Unit, Fort Benning, Georgia. Both basic and advanced schooling is offered. Courses for juvenile shooters and for those desiring to become rifle marksmanship instructors is available through NRA's Instructor-Junior School.

The National Matches which include the High-Power Rifle, Pistol and Smallbore Rifle Matches, are fired annually at Camp Perry.

Barry L. Kipp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan C. Kipp of 713 Mulford Rd., has been selected for technical training at Lowry AFB, Colo., as a U. S. Air Force munitions specialist.

Borland Award To Drustup

NORFOLK—The 1966 Borland Award, presented by the Hampton Roads Sanitation Commission, will be presented to Vice Admiral N. J. Drustup, C.E.C. United States Navy, Commander Atlantic Division Naval Facilities Engineering Command.

The award, which will be presented to Drustup on August 31 at a regular meeting of the Hampton Roads Sanitation District Commission, is being given for outstanding helpfulness in the requirements of the expansion program of the Hampton Roads Sanitation District. The award carries with it a citation which will be presented at the meeting.

The 1966 Borland Award Committee is composed of Chairman Frank D. Turrell, Jr. of Virginia Beach, Judge Herbert G. Smith of Newport News, Robert E. Gibson of Chesapeake, Lewis W. Webb of Norfolk, and John Mittelmeier of Hampton.

The recipients of the Borland

Award in the past have included Virginia Beach City Manager W. Russell Hatcher, who was cited in 1960, for his outstanding services on an area-wide committee whose efforts resulted in the passage of stronger oil pollution legislation by Congress. Last year's winner was also from Virginia Beach. Outgoing City Councilman from the Lynnhaven Borough, James G. Darden was honored for service as a member of the Princess Anne County Sanitation Authority and the Council of Virginia Beach, which led to implementation of the City-District pollution programs and plans.

The Borland Award was established in recognition of Charles B. Borland, former City Manager of Norfolk, later Chairman of the Hampton Roads Sanitation District Commission and also General Manager of the District. The award was established on Borland's retirement in 1958.

Six Receive Degrees

CHARLOTTESVILLE—A record 436 students including six from Virginia Beach received degrees Saturday during summer Final exercises at the University of Virginia, topping the 388 degrees awarded last August.

For the first time, graduation ceremonies were held in University hall, the auditorium-gymnasium-field house complex last fall.

Degrees were conferred by University President Edgar F. Shannon Jr., who briefly addressed the graduates and their guests.

Stressing the importance of leadership in a free society, he warned that colleges and universities today have a tendency to train technicians and specialists instead of leaders.

Degrees were awarded to 99 bachelors degree candidates and 356 graduate and professional degree candidates. One of the bachelors degrees was conferred with high distinction and three with distinction.

The School of Education awarded the highest number of degrees with five doctorates, 225 masters and 11 bachelors degrees.

The College of Arts and Sciences awarded 62 bachelors degrees; the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences, 30 doctors of philosophy, 63 masters of arts, 13 masters of science, and three masters of arts in teaching; the School of Engineering and Applied Science, six doctors of science, 13 masters and seven bachelors degrees; the School of Law, one master and six bachelors degrees; the McIntire School of Commerce, 11 bachelors degrees, and the School of Nursing, eight bachelors degrees.

Fund Appeal To Begin Here

RICHMOND—Mr. H. Hiter Harris, Jr., president of the Children's Home Society of Virginia, announced today that Mrs. James H. Kabler will serve as chairman of this year's fund appeal in Virginia Beach. He remarked: "We are indeed fortunate to have Mrs. Kabler to conduct the appeal this year."

Since 1900, when the Society was organized, it has rendered services to more than 8000 Virginia children. In 1965, 222 babies were received into care by the Society and 265 were placed with adoptive parents, as compared to 209 received and 194 placed in 1964. Although services were expanded this past year, over 100 infants could not be helped due to the lack of resources; more staff is needed to counsel with parents and give preadoptive study to babies. There is a constant growing need for funds.

These babies must look to the people of Virginia Beach, and other citizens of Virginia for help. We hope everyone will give generously to support the work of this most worthwhile organization.

Council Petitioned By Surfers

VIRGINIA BEACH—Mrs. W. G. Sale, Jr., of 1475 Watersedge Dr., addressed Virginia Beach City Council Monday and presented a petition signed by 246 persons, seeking more surfing space on the ocean for surfers next summer.

Mrs. Sale told Council that she had volunteered to help the young people out in this matter, and added that the petition signers regarded the present conditions as "highly dangerous".

Although she obviously had done a great deal of research before confronting Council, she said she was not aware of the 1,250 feet allotted for surfing at Little Island Park at Sandoridge. She told Council that lifeguards had taken a survey for her, determining that there were about 3,000 surfers in Virginia Beach who use the area around Steel Pier.

She added that surfing shops in Virginia Beach say they have sold a total of 2,700 boards during the last twelve months.

The actual number of surfers at Virginia Beach is unknown, but Mrs. Sale's figures would seem to agree with those of H. Web's Brown, Jr., one of the co-chairmen of the forthcoming Virginia Beach Surfing Carnival.

A separate survey conducted by Roger Scott, assistant to the City Manager, showed that surfers now have 3.2 per cent of the total beach area allotted to the public. His survey showed that on July 4, the heaviest day for surfers this summer, a total of 1,500 surfers used the two areas. If that were 3 per cent of the users of the ocean that day, then the other 97 per cent of the land area would have been used by only 50,000 people. Scott said there were "closer to 150,000 to use that other 97 per cent".

Scott added that he feels the surfers have enough area at present if they would utilize both areas to advantage. Mrs. Sale cited several accidents that have occurred, saying that at least one serious accident happens every week.

She said, "These accidents do not come from their carelessness."

Scott did not disagree with her, but did blame carelessness for some of the major accidents.

Mrs. Sale then suggested tags of different colors to be attached to surfboards in order to alleviate the problem somewhat. She suggested one color tag for surfboard owners who live on ocean front property and another for those who did not. Under the provisions of her proposal, the surfers who lived on the ocean front could surf in front of their own property legally. Others would still be confined to surfing areas.

In addition, Mrs. Sale described the average surfer as an average fun-loving teenager, looking for a place to have a good time at a healthy sport.

Her description of surfers came only minutes after model operator, Wilson Chaplain had described surfers in a completely opposite manner, saying the last time surfers had stayed at his motel they had stolen five rugs "right off the floor".

Chaplain's remarks came while discussion was held concerning a new State Park south of Sandbridge. He also did not approve of campers, whom he said, along with surfers "do not spend a dime in Virginia Beach".

There has long been a controversy about space for surfers, and Council more than tripled the available space last year with the purchase of the Sandbridge tract, part of which is set aside for surfing.

Mrs. Sale then asked Council "not to pigeon-hole the matter". Council took the matter under advisement, and will probably continue to study the situation, as it has in the past. Scott's survey is only a part of Council's investigation.

Bank Class Taught

A Class in Principles of Bank Operations will be offered for the first time to bankers in the Virginia Beach area by the Norfolk-Fortmouth Chapter, American Institute of Banking.

The course, which began on Wednesday evening, August 24, is taught at Princess Anne High School by Mr. Joseph C. Washington, Virginia National Bank.

New Civic League

VIRGINIA BEACH—A meeting to discuss the possibility of forming a new Civic League was held Wednesday night at Malibu Elementary School. The league would serve the Wayside Forest and King's Forest sections of Virginia Beach, both new communities north of Malibu.

The neighbors talked over several matters, including street lights for the area, and there was general interest in a strong civic organization in the area.

Sales Tax Questions And Answers

In order that the citizens of Virginia Beach may be better informed concerning the provisions of the Virginia Retail Sales and Use Tax Act which goes into effect September 1, 1966, The Virginia Beach Sun will publish these sample questions and answers as compiled by the Virginia Retail Merchants Association. The first 62 questions were answered by the Virginia Department of Taxation. The last seven were answered by counsel for the VRMA, on which the Dept. of Taxation expressed no opinion. The 69 questions and answers will be published in three consecutive issues.

(Third in a series of three articles)

51. Q. Are chartered boats subject to the sales tax?

A. If the boat is under the control of the person who charters it from the owner, it is taxable as the rental of tangible personal property. On the other hand, if the boat is under the control of the owner, the charter is deemed a non-taxable service.

52. Q. Are sales of clothes, meals, and the like at church bazaars subject to the tax?

A. Yes. Organizations regularly conducting such affairs must register as dealers with the Department of Taxation, P.O. Box 64, Richmond, Virginia 22205.

53. Q. Is the sale of a school yearbook subject to the sales tax?

A. Yes.

54. Q. Is the cost of room and board in a hospital, or blood plasma and oxygen supplied by the hospital, subject to the sales tax?

A. No. Meals and lodging in a hospital are incidental to the services rendered by the hospital, as is the furnishing of blood plasma and oxygen.

55. Q. Is fuel oil for home heating subject to the sales tax?

A. Yes.

56. Q. Is electricity for home heating and other uses subject to the sales tax?

A. No, but local consumer utility taxes may apply.

57. Q. Is the rental of a safe, deposit box or baggage locker subject to the sales tax?

A. No.

58. Q. Are services provided by coin-operated washing machines subject to the sales tax?

A. No.

59. Q. Are cigarettes and beer subject to the sales tax?

A. Yes.

60. Q. Are alcoholic beverages sold by ABC stores subject to the sales tax?

A. No, but such sales continue to be subject to the special 10% State excise tax.

61. Q. Are auction sales and bankruptcy sales subject to the sales tax?

A. Yes.

62. Q. I place an order with a Virginia florist for the delivery of flowers "by wire" to a friend outside Virginia. Are the florist's charges subject to the sales tax?

A. Yes. The Virginia florist who receives the order from you collects the tax from you, irrespective of where delivery of the flowers is made.

NOTE: The answers given above have been approved by the Virginia Department of Taxation for the Virginia Retail Merchants Association. Set out below are additional questions and answers prepared by counsel for The Virginia Retail Merchants Association on which the Department of Taxation expresses no opinion.

63. Q. What needs is the State sales tax designed to meet?

A. The revenues from the State sales tax primarily are intended for the promotion of public education in Virginia. A secondary objective is the improvement of Virginia's highway system.

64. Q. How are the sales tax revenues divided among the State and local governments?

A. Of the State's 2% tax, the State retains 1% to offset all costs of administration (including costs of collecting the local sales taxes), certain tax reductions, and highway improvements not met by the 2% motor vehicle sales tax. The other 1% of the State tax is earmarked for public school purposes and is divided monthly among the cities and counties of the State on the basis of their current school age population (ages 7 to 20), with a further intra-county division for special school districts. (Towns do not share in this division unless they qualify as a special school district.) The local 1% is levied by a city or county (or a town within a county which does not levy a county sales tax) and collected by the State, and its revenues may be used for general governmental purposes; provided that a county has to divide its 1% local tax with any school district as before and, further, a county has to divide one-half of its 1% with its incorporated towns on the basis of the town's school-age population to the total school-age population of the entire county.

65. Q. How many cities and counties have adopted the local option sales tax?

A. Effective September 1, 1966, 32 cities (excluding only Danville and Fairfax) and 30 counties (excluding only Allegheny, Cumberland, Frederick, Pittsylvania, Powhatan and Spotsylvania) will impose the local 1% sales tax.

66. Q. Is the sale or lease of motor vehicles subject to the retail sales tax?

A. No. The sale of new and used motor vehicles, however, is subject to the Virginia Motor Vehicle Sales and Use Tax Act.

67. Q. What is the difference between the Retail Sales Tax Act and the Motor Vehicle Sales Tax Act?

A. The Motor Vehicle Sales and Use Tax Act (often referred to as the "tilling tax") imposes a 2% tax on all motor vehicles which are required to have a certificate of title. It differs from the retail sales and use tax in the following respects:

a. Its rate is a flat 2% without local option and no automatic increase on July 1, 1968.

b. It is collectible only by the Division of Motor Vehicles at the time a request for a certificate of title is made.

c. The tax is based on the total sales price of the motor vehicle (grossed up, the manufacturer's list price or the "blue book" value) without deductions for trade-in allowances.

d. It has no broad scheme of exemptions. Thus, a motor vehicle sale otherwise qualifying as an "occasional" sale, a sale to a non-profit educational institution or hospital, etc., is not exempt from the 2% tax.

e. The rental of motor vehicles is not subject to the tax. The rental agency will have paid the tax at the time the certificate of title is obtained.

f. Rules and regulations, interpretations, and disputes must be resolved by the Division of Motor Vehicles.

g. Although deductible for Virginia income tax purposes, the deductibility of the motor vehicle sales tax for federal income tax purposes has not yet been determined.

68. Q. To what extent are automobile parts, accessories, and attachments subject to the general sales tax?

A. Motor vehicles, together with "all attachments thereon and accessories thereto," as reflected on the sales invoice presented to the Division of Motor Vehicles for registration and obtaining a certificate of title, are subject to the separate Virginia Motor Vehicle Sales and Use Tax Act and are excluded from the retail sales tax collected and administered by the Department of Taxation. Parts, accessories, and attachments not so reflected at the time the certificate of title is obtained are subject to the state and local retail sales tax, and the dealers engaged in the retail sale of such items must register with the Department of Taxation.

69. Q. Are the merchants going to make money on the sales tax?

A. No. As the State's tax collectors, the merchants will have to incur substantial record keeping and administrative costs (i.e., training sales personnel, establishing accounting procedures, maintaining records, undergoing audits, etc., etc.). The 3% discount (amounting to only $30 for each $100.00 in taxable sales) and the repeal of the unfair merchants license tax which would have been levied on the same sales proceeds, without regard to profit or loss or ability to pay (the main reasons almost every other state has repealed such taxes) will reduce the net cost, but no merchant is expected to make money on the sales tax. It also should be remembered that merchants must pay the sales tax on business purchases for their own use (such as cash registers, sales counters, office supplies, etc.) and thereby will represent significant taxpayers in their own right.

70. Q. Is the sale or lease of motor vehicles subject to the retail sales tax?

A. No. The sale of new and used motor vehicles, however, is subject to the Virginia Motor Vehicle Sales and Use Tax Act.

71. Q. What is the difference between the Retail Sales Tax Act and the Motor Vehicle Sales Tax Act?

A. The Motor Vehicle Sales and Use Tax Act (often referred to as the "tilling tax") imposes a 2% tax on all motor vehicles which are required to have a certificate of title. It differs from the retail sales and use tax in the following respects:

a. Its rate is a flat 2% without local option and no automatic increase on July 1, 1968.

b. It is collectible only by the Division of Motor Vehicles at the time a request for a certificate of title is made.

c. The tax is based on the total sales price of the motor vehicle (grossed up, the manufacturer's list price or the "blue book" value) without deductions for trade-in allowances.

d. It has no broad scheme of exemptions. Thus, a motor vehicle sale otherwise qualifying as an "occasional" sale, a sale to a non-profit educational institution or hospital, etc., is not exempt from the 2% tax.

e. The rental of motor vehicles is not subject to the tax. The rental agency will have paid the tax at the time the certificate of title is obtained.

f. Rules and regulations, interpretations, and disputes must be resolved by the Division of Motor Vehicles.

g. Although deductible for Virginia income tax purposes, the deductibility of the motor vehicle sales tax for federal income tax purposes has not yet been determined.

Bridge-Tunnel Best Month

CAPE CHARLES — Traffic and revenue reached new peaks on Virginia's Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel in July and gave the 17.6-mile long facility its best month to date. Executive Director J. Clyde Morris reported today.

The world's longest bridge-tunnel served 161,881 vehicles and collected $1,049,583 in tolls during the month.

Vehicle count showed a 2.5% gain over last July, beating that previously high month by more than 100 vehicles per day. Toll revenues were up 2.5% over July, 1965, and edged out last August's former record revenue by $28,700.

"We had hoped to show an even higher percentage increase," Morris said in releasing the figures. The Bridge-Tunnel has posted traffic and revenue gains in all but two months of its 27-month operating existence, but has not yet attained the levels originally forecast by traffic engineers.

A breakdown of the July traffic showed 136,700 passenger vehicles, 22,478 trucks and 2,697 buses, compared with counts of 134,606, 20,899, and 2,438 for the same month of 1965. The vehicles carried 333,201 paying passengers compared with 323,809 last year.

Herzer In Michigan

VA. BEACH—Clifford Herzer of the Mayflower Apartments, local well-known concert pianist, is in Northern Michigan attending the seventh annual conference of the International Society For Music Education at Interlochen.

On Tuesday, he heard the famous Dmitri Kabalevsky lecture, and discussed with him his third Sonata which Mr. Herzer will play this Fall.

Van Cliburn played two concerti by Brahms on Wednesday. An old friend of Mr. Herzer, Thor Johnson, conducted the World Youth Orchestra. The Detroit Symphony Orchestra was the following day. Lectures during the day followed by great music in the evening is making this conference especially enjoyable for Clifford Herzer.

Vets' Claims Up In Number

VIRGINIA BEACH—In a report issued last week, the Norfolk office of the Division of War Veterans' Claims, which also serves Virginia Beach, said it held a total of 42,976 personal and telephone interviews with claimants.

The office also reported handling 23,582 notices of mail last year and noticed a 24-plus per cent increase in monetary claims filed.

The amount of personal interviews, 29,304, is up 13 per cent over last year.

Almost 3,000 claims were filed last year with the lions share of them being in the education, training and vocational rehabilitation department.

Medical claims noticed a 14% per cent increase, while education applications increased by more than 90 per cent.

Running awards (an amount still being paid annually in areas served in annuities, monthly-paid benefits of disability and death compensations and pensions) in 714. New awards (amounts obtained within the fiscal year) in Virginia Beach for the fiscal year ending July 1, 1966 totaled $670,503. Last year's new awards in Virginia Beach amounted to only $276,421. That's an increase of more than 140 per cent.

Based on aging of veterans, veterans population, length of time after wars, complex legislation, and statutory cost-of-living increases, the estimated increase in new awards for next year will be 25 per cent more than this year.

The Division of War Veterans' Claims is a state agency under the Department of Law of Attorney General Robert V. Button and is directed by Harry F. Carper Jr. from the division's home offices in Roanoke.

There are 19 regional offices throughout Virginia (Such as the office in Norfolk) which have itineraries to all counties and cities. The Claims Division in Roanoke personally acts as the claimants' advocate presenting and arguing a contested claim or an appeal in behalf of the claimant or claimants.

The field office processes and develops, with procured evidence, the claims for monetary, medical and other benefits for veterans, service personnel, dependents and survivors of servicemen and their representatives. The same is true of appeals of unsatisfactory decisions.

By counselling also on other related matters, they perform a humanitarian service as well as valuable in some cases as the other duties. All personnel are highly trained, have long experience and stay currently informed on all legislation relating to the endeavor.

They act as liaison between veterans and civic organizations, civic agencies, courts, etc., and Veterans' Administration and other governmental agencies involved.

Area Director T. A. Moore and Maurice J. Hunger, Veterans' Claims Agent, maintain a regular itinerary on the afternoons of the second and fourth Thursdays of each month at the Alan B. Shepard Civic Center.

Last year Hunger traveled a total of 1,138 miles between the Norfolk office and Virginia Beach.

'Eggs' Not Eggs

"The 'eggs' that many people have reported seeing on the blades of their lawn grasses aren't really eggs at all," says Elgia L. Easter, horticulturist for the city. What they are, however, he continued, is a gray smut. It is nothing to become unduly alarmed over. This is caused by the excessively high humidity that the City has been experiencing the past few weeks. When the humidity goes down, the smut will disappear.

This smut which is affecting many lawn areas in the City is often described as resembling tiny eggs on the grass blades, except that they are gray.
"If a large area is affected," Easter added, "the overall appearance of that area may be dark gray in appearance."

Local Girl: Local Teacher

By Douglas Barnes

As we interviewed Miss Sylvia Jean Capps, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russel A. Capps, who own and operate the Virginia Beach Cleaners on Virginia Beach Boulevard, we were impressed with her sincerity toward helping her race, and others less fortunate than she, along educational lines.

Sylvia's mother is a veteran teacher at Bettie F. Williams Elementary School; and her brother, Thurmond, is a candidate for his master's degree at George Washington University. He is working this summer as an accountant.

Sylvia gives credit to her family for their continuing assistance in helping her achieve her educational "place in the sun", and this fall, she will teach literature, speech, and dramatics to the 8th graders at Union Kempville.

Last Spring, Sylvia filled in a term at Seastack Elementary School teaching English and reading in the 8th grade.

We asked Sylvia, neatly attired in a white silk jersey, with black pin stripes, and accompanied by her pleasant mother, to tell us if she liked Virginia Beach, and to tell us something about her self before we met her. (She had called the Sun about doing Little Theater work here.)

Librarian Named

VIRGINIA BEACH — Virginia Wesleyan College has announced the appointment of a librarian for the college's first academic session scheduled to begin next month. The announcement was made by Lambuth M. Clark, president.

Miss Inogen S. Ficklen of Virginia Beach has been named to assemble the college's first collection of books and to set up the library in Virginia Wesleyan's $1.5 million academic village complex.

The new college librarian holds an A. B. degree from American University in Washington and a Master of Library Science degree from the University of North Carolina. She has served with the Brooklyn (N. Y.) Public Library and with college libraries at Hunter College (N. Y.) and the University of Nevada. Her past experience includes work with the United States Foreign Service in Madrid, Mexico City, Athens, Tel Aviv and Bangkok. Miss Ficklen has done graduate work in diplomatic history at George Washington University.

Nine teaching faculty appointments were announced earlier this week.

New Teachers At VB Schools

VIRGINIA BEACH — When children return to school, they will see many faces in the front of the classrooms. Some teachers have returned after having taught elsewhere, while others are new to the Virginia Beach Public School system.

The list is not complete as assignments are still being conducted by the personnel director of Virginia Beach Public Schools, Miss Louise Laxford. At the present time the names of those listed who are new or are returning, with their home towns or colleges, and where they will be teaching are:

Algebra: Genevieve B. Harrell, Portsmouth; Rebecca Randolph Kellam, Williams & Mary.

Arithmetic: William Sloan Boring, Atlantic Christian; Cheryl Lee Corbell, W. & M.; Alice Marie Creech, University of North Carolina; Janet Eller Edwards, Appalachian State; Patricia Green, Radford; Margaret Overman Gregory, UNC; Susan James Heston, Elizabeth City, N. Local Girl: Local Teacher

By Douglas Barnes

As we interviewed Miss Sylvia Jean Capps, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell A. Capps, who own and operate the Virginia Beach Cleaners on Virginia Beach Boulevard, we were impressed with her sincerity toward helping her race, and others less fortunate than she, along educational lines.

Sylvia's mother is a veteran teacher at Bettie F. Williams Elementary School; and her brother, Thurmond, is a candidate for his master's degree at George Washington University. He is working this summer as an accountant.

Sylvia gives credit to her family for their continuing assistance in helping her achieve her educational "place in the sun," and this Fall, she will teach literature, speech, and dramatics to the 8th graders at Union Kempville.

Last Spring, Sylvia filled in a term at Seaford Elementary School teaching English and reading in the 6th grade.

We asked Sylvia, neatly attired in a white silk jersey, with black pin stripes, and accompanied by her pleasant mother, to tell us if she liked Virginia Beach, and to tell us something about her self before we met her. (She had called the Sun about doing Little Theatre work here.)

"This is my home, and I am willing to share with others the knowledge and experience which I have gained. I hope to provide teaching in a school which gives broad enough viewpoints and skills of understanding for this rapidly changing society. At the present age of my pupils, with their pliable, impressionable minds, and their rapidly growing bodies, we must start early to train minds to psychologically and without frustration meet the adult world of today. Sylvia spoke in a quiet, low pitched southern voice, with a determined, optimistic view into the future.

As to her background (she's 22), Miss Capps attended the Booker T. Washington High School and graduated in 1961. She was a member of the National Honor Society Washington Staff, The Executive Board of the Student Council and a member of the School Choir.

In 1961 she was presented as a debutante by the Bachelor-Benevolent Social Club of Norfolk, Virginia. In 1961 Miss Capps entered Hampton Institute. While there, she was quite active in extra-curricular activities. In 1962, she won the title at Hampton Institute as "Miss Listerwick."

She was property manager for the play "Machbeth" and director's assistant of "Three Plays: A Raisin in the Sun," "Wave Goodbye" and "The Little Foxes." In addition she played an active role in "J. B."

Miss Capps was secretary of W.H.O.V. Hampton Institute's own radio station, while a student there. She was also active in the Women's Senate.

In 1962, she received the B.S. degree in Speech and Drama with a minor in English and Art. She has done further study at Old Dominion College and plans to study further for a Master's Degree in Dramatics.

In addition to her achievements, she is active in social and civic activities in the community, and a member of Union Baptist Church, Kempville.

Librarian Named

VIRGINIA BEACH—Virginia Wesleyan College has announced the appointment of a librarian for the college's first academic session scheduled to begin next month. The announcement was made by Lambuth M. Clark, president.

Miss Imogen S. Ficklen of Virginia Beach has been named to assemble the college's first collection of books and to set up the library in Virginia Wesleyan's $1.5 million academic village complex.

The new college librarian holds an A. B. degree from American University in Washington and a Master of Library Science degree from the University of North Carolina. She has served with the Brooklyn (N. Y.) Public Library and with college libraries at Hunter College (N. Y.) and the University of Nevada. Her past experience includes work with the United States Foreign Service in Madrid, Mexico City, Athens, Tel Aviv and Bangkok. Miss Ficklen has done graduate work in diplomatic history at George Washington University.

Nine teaching faculty appointments were announced earlier this week.

Girls Surf For Fun

By Doris Padrick

VIRGINIA BEACH—"Surfing to girls is more of a fun sport than a competitive sport," reports Leslie Thurston, 19-year old local girl who lives on the ocean front. And though she came in second in the ECSC in 1963, and second again in the mid Atlantic competition held in Ocean City, Maryland in 1965, she modestly disclaims any title of surfing expert. "Not many girls were in the contests," is the way she dismisses her accomplishments.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Thurston Jr. who moved to Virginia Beach four years ago from Norfolk, Leslie's brown eyes light up with enthusiasm on the topic of all water sports. She loves swimming and took up surfing "because everyone else was doing it."

Learning to surf is not really difficult, according to Leslie, but like learning to ride a bicycle, it's something you can only master on your own. Riding tandem on a big board with an expert surfer is a good way to get the feel of the waves and to adjust your balance to the shifting currents, she said, and "boards come in different widths, length and weight so you must experiment with those of various dimensions till you find one that fits."

"And that's how you become a surfer," says Leslie.

Many girls learn to surf and enjoy it. "But competition sometimes takes the fun out of the sport. Competing is hard, and I guess we girls would rather play surfing than work at it," is the way Leslie explained the reasons why

League Football Meeting Held

VIRGINIA BEACH—The organizational meeting of all Community League Football coaches was held Tuesday night at the Recreation Activity Center, on Nike Site Road, according to the Virginia Beach Department of Parks and Recreation.

A number of coaches were in attendance. They were reminded that September 6 is the deadline for entering teams into the League. No teams will be accepted after that date.

All coaches interested in entering a team in the Community Leagues were invited to attend the meeting. If anyone wishes additional information about the Community League football teams, the Virginia Beach Department of Parks and Recreation may be contacted.
